ORGY INQUIRY SWINGS HERE

Ten Face Hearing Today in Pomona Case

Woodman Will be Tried on Nude Dance Count

Three Accused May Plead Guilty to Charges

With the entrance of a plea of not guilty to charges of having procured one Jane Doe to dance in the nude at a fraternal gathering by J. W. Gibbs, district manager of the Woodmen of the World, in Police Judge Bowen's court in Pomona yesterday, the investigation of that city's asserted "strip" poker, dice and drinking parties swung to Los Angeles today, where ten men, charged with offenses against minor girls, were scheduled to appear in Superior Judge Archbald's court for preliminary hearing.

Gibbs was granted a jury trial by Judge Bowen and the case was set for trial on the 21st inst. The charge is said to be the sequel to a stag party of Pomona Woodmen on the night of January 15, in which George Tyler of the Pomona lodge alleges the defendant took to the entertainment the girl who is asserted to have danced sans clothing.

FOUR MEN HELD

Four men held on contributing charges were arraigned before Judge Archbald yesterday. They were Norman Hill, accused of contributing to the delinquency of 17-year-old Ruth Pickrall; Robert Bird, Dave Hills and Jack Hoppell, the latter a Pomona police officer. Bird was released on his own recognizance, Mills and Hill produced $2000 bail each and Hoppel was remanded to jail in lieu of the bail money.

It was reported that three of the accused men had signified their intention of pleading guilty and offering to be witnesses for the State.

SENT TO JAIL

Hoppell, who also faces a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Audrey Kelly, was remanded to the County Jail in lieu of $2000 bail. Pauline Wilson, 17, was named in the complaint issued yesterday against Hoppell, who recently surrendered himself to the authorities in Pomona following a leave of absence.

While preparations for the hearings were under way here, reports from Pomona were to the effect that Rev. John Hall, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Pomona, had presented Police Commissioner Adamson with evidence against the records of some other members of the Pomona Police Department and had requested the Commissioner to act upon the information. The demand was said to have been made following an announcement by Mr. Adamson of a police reorganization that included no more discharges.

SHIFT TWO OF POLICE AT PARTY

Captain at Wilmington Had Recommended Fine of Four Days' Pay

Capt. W. L. Hagenbaugh of the Wilmington Police Station forwarded yesterday to Police Inspector Jackson a recommendation that four young patrolmen who recently had an all-night party at the station house be fined four days' pay each. He recommended that they be not suspended, as no harm was done by the party, but the captain declared, and he thought severe punishment should not be meted out.

Inspector Jackson was away from Central Station yesterday and Capt. Slaughter, his assistant, said nothing would be done without a thorough investigation. It is said the inspector intended to go to the bottom of the affair.

The accused patrolmen are Sergeant J. Wood, N. H. Masterson, Jas. E. Moudy and E. N. Scott. The matter came up on charges by Miss Vera Stone and Mrs. Beulah Henderson that they had lost $45 from their pocketbooks while attending the party, at which they said liquor was served.

Capt. Hagenbaugh issued as orders last night transferring Patrolmen Scott and Wood, with two other patrolmen, to Los Angeles Harbor and four patrolmen from Los Angeles to Wilmington to take their places.

LARGE TYPE LOCOMOTIVE MADE HERE

First of Eight for Use of Pacific Electric is Put Into Service

The largest electric freight locomotive ever built on the Pacific Coast was put in service yesterday by the Pacific Electric Railway after it had successfully met trial tests. Seven more locomotives of the same type are nearing completion at the shops of the company.

The new locomotive is of standard 220 horsepower. The local shops bid for it against eastern manufacturers and it is different entirely a Los Angeles product, castings and frame being cast in local foundries and the remainder being built in the shops. The other new locomotive is to be completed at a rate of one a week, and are expected to facilitate local freight traffic greatly.

The new machines cost $45,000 each and work was begun on them last summer.

"Aside from the encouragement given local industry," said General Manager Pontius in speaking of the achievement, "it shows confidence in our own shops in our ability to deliver them when we can get in the East. We are encouraged over the prospect of building our own equipment."

TAX DEBATE IN HOUSE

Will be Cut Off on Monday

Amendments on Income Rates Will Then be Next in Order

Speakers For and Against Mellon Bill Applauded by Filled Galleries

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]
WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. — The fight over the tax bill, centering on the revision of income taxes, today reached the floor of the House.

General debate was begun on the measure, which substantially carries out the recommendations of Secretary Mellon under an agreement for its termination at 4 p.m., Monday. Thereafter amendments will be in order, with the income-tax section expected to be disposed of first.

Members of the Ways and Means Committee, which framed the measure, occupied the floor today. After Chairman Green of Iowa, had explained the general provisions of the bill, Representatives Garner of Texas, ranking Democrat on the committee, and Mills, Republican, New York, whom Mr. Garner singled out as the "spokesman of the administration" opened the debate in partisan speeches provoking many personal exchanges.

WARNS DEMOCRATS

Mr. Mills, who is a staunch advocate of the Mellon tax rates, said he expected that "about twenty or thirty men elected as Republicans" would join the Democrats "when the critical sections of the bill" were reached, and granted that the "minority will then be the majority."

He declared, however, that according to Treasury estimates the Democratic tax reduction plan would result in a loss in revenue of $620,000,000 annually against an estimated surplus annually under the present system of $320,000,000. He warned the Democrats that they would be charged with responsibility if their plan was accepted, for raising sufficient revenue to operate the government.

Representative Garner charged the public had never been given an opportunity to study the Democratic tax reduction plan proposing lower normal income rates and higher surtaxes than the Mellon scheme because of "extensive propaganda for the Mellon plan." He also criticised the address of President Coolidge at New York Tuesday as "unprecedented and humiliating to members of Congress" in its ap-

HOLE RANCH BOUGHT FOR SUBDIVISION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
RIVERSIDE, Feb. 14.—Sale of the W. J. Hole ranch of 9500 acres near Arlington for a consideration of $1,500,000 to a group of Los Angeles and Long Beach business men was announced tonight. It is the purpose of the new owners to subdivide the land into five and ten-acre tracts, it was announced, and name it Happy Valley.

Among the purchasers of the land are Llewellyn Bixby and W. M. Cook, directors of the Security Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles; Clarence A. Lyman, publicity director of the same bank; W. E. Babb, Los Angeles builder; John B. Mills, Los Angeles real estate operator and E. E. Short, Los Angeles.

The ranch is known as La Sierra Rancho and is a part of the original Spanish grant of 18,000 acres. A large percentage of the land is within the city limits of Riverside. The area was bought by Hole about fifteen years ago. About eight years ago he sold part of the grant for the townsite of Norco. One year ago 400 acres were sold to the Seventh Day Adventists.

Hole came to Riverside twenty years ago and took charge of five Spanish grants totaling 300,000 acres, comprising a section of from Riverside to the ocean. Since that time Fullerton, Santa Ana and Anaheim have been built on that territory.

Mr. and Mrs. Hole will leave shortly on their private yacht for a trip in Alaskan waters to be followed by a visit to Florida.

SCHICK DIGS FOR BODY OF HIS BROTHER

Reports Efforts Futile in Search for Missing Real Estate Man

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]
SAN DIEGO, Feb. 14.—Martin Schick, brother of the missing George E. Schick, real estate man, for whose death Everett Drew Clark is held responsible in a murder indictment, made a trip to a spot about thirty miles from this city today in an effort to dig up Schick's body. He returned late today and said the trip had been futile.

Schick went out today equipped with a heavy shovel and was accompanied by George Adams, former deputy sheriff, who carried grappling irons and a coil of rope. They did not tell where they went, but said they had tried with the grappling irons and rope to find the missing broker's body in two or three "pools of water."

J. C. Richardson, a resident of Chula Vista, a suburb of this city, reported to the District Attorney's office today that the skull which was found a few days ago in Sweetwater Valley and which it was thought might be that of Schick, was not Schick's, but had been found by Richardson on a beach in Mexico some time ago and had been retained as a relic until his family had asked him to, get rid of it.

DEAD REBELS COVER HILLS AFTER PALO VERDE CLASH

Two Hundred Killed in Battle and 300 Are Wounded; Estarda Army Completely Routed

BY JOHN CORNYN
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, by the Chicago Tribune.]

PENJAMO (Mex.) Feb. 14.—The vastness of the disaster of Palo Verde reveals itself more clearly this morning with the report of the generals and other officers who pursued the enemy into the hills beyond the town. The hills are covered with dead and wounded.

Official counts show the following rebel losses:

Dead, 200; wounded, 300; dispersed, more than 1000.

This number comprised more than half the forces taking part in the battle of Palo Verde. Gens. Enrique Estrada and Dieguez, rebel leaders, both are making their way toward Morelia with a little more than 400 of the fine cavalry army which entered the battle of Palo Verde two days ago. This force is being pursued by Federals.

Gen. Gonzelo Escobar, Federal commander, although wounded, continued to direct the battle to the finish and after a few hours under doctors' care, was about again this morning directing preparations for a vigorous pursuit of rebel forces.

In the battle of Palo Verde the insurgents lost an immense quantity of arms of various kinds, all their baggage and their archives. Among the spoils was the gorgeous uniform of Gen. Enrique Estrada with which he was accustomed to dazzle the natives in the interior. Among the insurgent dead are many officers, among them Cols. Pablo Arreola and Vincente Estrada, brother of the revolutionary leader.

Gen. Escobar's forces leave this morning in pursuit of the rebels, whom they expect to reach by forced marches as they did at Palo Verde.

PREDICTS RAPID CAMPAIGN

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]
MEXICO CITY, Feb. 14.—Predicting there would be a rapid campaign in the State of Oaxaca in which Oaxaca City would be captured by the Federal forces, Gen. Isaac Ibarra has left Mexico City for the front, carrying with him large quantities of ammunition. Gen. Ibarra said 5000 men, fully armed, were only awaiting the arrival of the ammunition to begin the campaign against Fortunato Maycotte and the rebel Governor of the State, Manuel Garcia Vigil.

Atlixco, in the State of Puebla, was attacked Tuesday night by a rebel band aggregating 100, acting under orders of one of the rebel chiefs who have been marauding in Puebla since recent defeats compelled the rebels to break up into small bands. The fight lasted one hour. Gen. Loabto and Gen. Ayaquica, who defended the town were seriously wounded and the rebels suffered a large number of casualties.

The Federals finally succeeded in routing the rebels who fled into the mountains.

MARY STARS AS VALENTINE

Chicago Delighted With Vision of Screen Star Clad in Silvery Gray; Doug Also Along

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—Chicago received a lovely Valentine today when Mary Pickford arrived clad all in silvery gray.

Her gray dress was edged in narrow green piping, her gray leather coat was trimmed in gray ermine, her large fur coat was of platinum baby caracul, and her small hat was of gray leather trimmed in a band of gray ribbon and silver gray feathers.

Her blonde hair and violet eyes and bouquet of orchids and lavender sweet peas made her the vision that delighted the crowd that had gathered to welcome her and Douglas Fairbanks, her husband, on their way to New York.

When asked what she had received for her valentine, she replied:

"Well, you see, we did not really remember that this was Valentine's day."

Some one suggested that her flowers might be, but she replied, pointing to the bouquet, "every day is Valentine's day with me. Doug gives me presents every day. I try to discourage it, because then Christmas and my birthday don't mean so much."

The station was so crowded that Mary and Doug had to fight their way out. On all sides their admirers thrust letters and notes at them.

As to films, she said that she had made two this last year, and had directed her brother, Jack, in one, adding "and that record is better than Doug's."

"Charlie Chaplin told us we might as well die now, because we already have done our best pictures," she laughed.

Little Mary Pickford Rupp and her grandmother, Mrs. Charlotte Pickford, were members of the party. They will remain in New York until April and then sail for Europe, visiting England, Norway, France and Ireland, where Douglas has been invited officially to the Tael Taen games, the first to be held in 100 years.

They will also attend the Olympic games.

"And I suppose Doug will drag me to Egypt, too," was Mary's parting shot.

MACDONALD IS HECKLED

Parries Thrusts in Parliament

British Premier's Statement of Policy is Accepted Without Challenge

Cabinet Chief Urges Halt in Armament; Capital Levy Plan Abandoned

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]
LONDON, Feb. 14.—The government in the House of Commons today was subjected to a rapid-fire of criticism and questions on every conceivable subject, most of which the ministers were inclined to parry. But when debate concluded tonight no division had been taken. Thus Premier Macdonald's declaration of policy was accepted without challenge.

The Prime Minister made two important statements, the first with respect to national defense, when he declared emphatically that he wished to avoid any policy calculated to increase armaments and that the government was inquiring into the whole problem with the object of preventing the growth of war conditions, and second, that as the country had rejected the idea of a capital levy, it could not be enacted in the present Parliament.

The novel position of a minority Labor party government continues to supply amusing incidents. Austen Chamberlain alluded to former Premier Asquith's peculiar position, describing him as "sitting on one side of the house, speaking on the other and voting alternately on one side and the other," which created much laughter.

STANDS ON DIGNITY

Another amusing passage arose from an attempt by Mr. Chamberlain to elicit what sort of parliamentary defeat the government would regard a vote of censure. To this Mr. Macdonald replied that it was impossible to define.

"Defeat on the Poplar question might be a vote of censure," he said, "but I can imagine defeat on Poplar which would not be a vote of censure at all: I can assure the House that the government will not remain in office five minutes after a vote depriving it of its sense of dignity."

With regard to Russia, the Prime Minister reiterated that the government had been assured that Russia, far from trying to repudiate her obligations, was anxious now to meet the wishes of the British government in all outstanding questions, and further, concerning the suggestion that Italy had got the advantage of England in this respect, Mr. Macdonald thought it not indiscreet to express the belief that the British government would get the same terms, or terms of equivalent value to those of any other power recognizing the soviet government.

VIEWS ON DIPLOMACY

The Prime Minister repeated and enlarged on his well-known views aiming at improved foreign relations as a means of enabling economy in the cost of defensive services, but not to the extent of endangering the nation's safety.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Philip Snowden, stated that the committee of inquiry on the national debt would probably be confined to nine or ten men, but none of them memers of Parliament.

Premier Macdonald in the course of his speech contended that some reduction of the burden of the national debt was inevitable if the nation was again to be in a position to compete in the world markets. He considered that since the country had rejected the Labor party remedy, namely, a capital levy, it was up to the Conservatives or the Liberals to produce some scheme to save the country from the exceedingly bad effects of the heavy debt—and some honest scheme—because he considered either repudiation or inflation as dishonest and would reject either.

Concerning Mr. Asquith's ultimatum to the government over the Poplar question, which last night seemed likely to threaten the existence of the government, the Prime Minister appeared but little disturbed, and ventured the prediction that the question would be settled by a single day's debate.

He took the view that the so-called Poplarism was a problem which it was as much to the interest of the other parties as his own to solve.

OIL COMMITTEE TO SIFT RUMOR OF SLUSH FUND

E. B. McLean Summoned to Testify in Scandal; Chicago Publisher Bares Teapot Dome "Gift"

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]
WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Out of another day of lightning developments in the oil scandal there emerged tonight a definite determination by the Senate investigating committee to go to the bottom of a rumor that a $1,000,000 oil slush fund had been deposited in Washington for distribution among men in high places.

Edward B. MacLean, publisher of the Washington Post, was summoned for questioning regarding the slush-fund report, and committee members said Otto H. Kahn of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Benjamin F. Yoakum, retired president of a western railroad, would be called later.

Information reaching the committee was that the story had been a subject of discussion among New York financiers and that some of its details had been brought to Washington by Mr. Yoakum after he had talked to Mr. Kahn.

The oil committee continued to hold out tonight against approval of Atlee Pomerene as government counsel in the oil cases after President Coolidge had withdrawn the name of Silas Strawn. The President took the position that no conclusive evidence of Mr. Pomerene's ineligibility had been produced.

VANDERLIP NOT HEARD

Throughout the day's hearings Frank A. Vanderlip, the New York banker, waited in vain in the hearing-room to be called to the witness stand for questioning regarding his recent references to the sale of President Harding's Marion Star. He and other witnesses on the same subject will be heard tomorrow.

The testimony given during the long session related largely to the methods by which former Interior Secretary Fall put into operation his leasing policy and provided the investigators with several new sensations.

John C. Shaffer, publisher of the Chicago Post and several other newspapers, testified that Fall told him in the same month he entered the Cabinet that he would lease Teapot Dome to Harry F. Sinclair.

He himself, Mr. Shaffer said, got a one-eighth share in the $1,000,000 Sinclair paid the Pioneer Oil Company in connection with the Teapot Dome deal and through an advance agreement with Fall was promised in addition 200 acres in Teapot Dome.

DEAL MADE PRIVATELY

E. C. Finney, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, testified that the Fall leases were negotiated privately and that not even the department's own solicitor was asked for an opinion as to their legality.

A letter written before the contracts were signed by H. Foster Bain, director of the Bureau of Mines, saying he understood Attorney-Gen. Daugherty had given an "informal and verbal" opinion upholding the leasing policy, was put into the committee record.

As a result the committee authorized a search of the files of the Department of Justice. Mr. Daugherty has said he never gave an opinion on the subject.

Oscar Sutro, general counsel for the Standard Oil Company of California, testified that he had given his company a formal written opinion against the legality of the proposal, afterward translated into contracts with the Doheny interests, to exchange naval fuel oil for tankage at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. It was disclosed that his opinion had been transmitted to the Interior Department.

MORE ABOUT LOAN

In announcing the issuance of a subpoena for Mr. McLean, who is in Palm Beach, Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, said the committee desired to question the publisher not only with reference to rumors of the $1,000,000 slush fund, but also as to the $100,000 which he first said he had lent Mr. Fall, but which he later testified

FARM LOAN PLANS ARE COMPLETED

New Organization Scheme is Outlined to Aid Credit Situation Stringency

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]
CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—Organization plans for the new $10,000,000 Agricultural Finance Corporation designed to relieve the credit situation in the Northwestern States were completed here today at a meeting of more than 100 representatives of banking, industrial and railway interests.

The new corporation should be able to function within ten days, John McHugh, president of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank of New York, and chairman of the organization committee appointed at President Coolidge's conference in Washington, said after today's meeting. The corporation will immediately make available for the relief of the stringent credit situation throughout the wheat belt of the Northwest, a maximum of $100,000,000 since it is eligible to borrow from the War Finance Corporation in amounts up to ten times its capital.

C. T. Jaffray of Minneapolis, president of the Soo Lines, was named chairman of the executive committee and chairman of the board of directors.

McADOO FOLLOWERS HERE PLEDGE FAITH

LOCAL DEMOCRATIC BODIES URGE CANDIDATE TO STAY IN RACE

A declaration that William G. McAdoo had been entirely exonerated and a demand that he continue his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for President were adopted yesterday at a meeting of various Democratic organizations of Los Angeles city and county at the Alexandria.

The resolution recited that Mr. McAdoo had appeared voluntarily before the Senate committee investigating the Teapot Dome oil lease and had undergone a "most searching and far-reaching examination," and that the facts detailed by him "should and do fully satisfy every fair and impartial person in the United States cognizant of said investigation, that not even the remotest suspicion of a questionable act or deed can be justly charged or found in his private or official life" and deplored the "political and vallainous attempt" to connect him with scandal.

The resolution assured Mr. McAdoo "that we will link our fortunes with his, that we are ready for battle in his behalf, that where he leads we will follow, that his cause shall be our cause and his success shall be for the glory of our common country." A copy of the resolution is to be sent to the Chicago meeting of the candidate's friends.

JAPANESE BIRTHS LOWER

Rate in State Drops From 5275 in 1921 to 4986 in 1923; Chinese Ratio Doubles in Five Years

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]
SACRAMENTO, Feb. 14.—California's Japanese birth rate in 1923 was slightly lower than in 1922, according to estimates compiled by L. E. Ross, director of the State Bureau of Vital Statistics.

The Japanese birth rate gained steadily until 1922 when it commenced to fall off.

Here are the figures for five years: 1919, 4433; 1920, 4971; 1921, 5275; 1922, 5066; 1923, 4986.

But while the Japanese birth rate is practically stationary, the birth rate among Chinese in California has almost doubled in the past five years. The number of births among Chinese in 1923, based by Ross on reports for ten months, is fixed at 800. This is a slight decrease over the returns for 1922, but indicates that the Chinese births are steadily increasing.

CHINESE GAINING

Here are the figures from 1919 to 1923: 1919, 435; 1920, 504; 1921, 609; 1922, 777; 1923, 800.

Chinese women in California are bearing children in far greater numbers than Japanese women, according to Ross. The number of births in proportion to the number of married women of child-bearing age is double that of the Chinese over the Japanese, and of the Japanese married women of child-bearing age is double that of the white women.

Among the Chinese 621 married women of child-bearing age out of every 1000 in California gave birth to a child in 1922, while among the Japanese only 317 married women of child-bearing age bore a child in 1922. Among the whites 135 women of child-bearing age out of every 1000 bore a child in 1922.

ONE OF ELEVEN

One birth out of every eleven in California is in a Japanese home, and one person out of every fifty in the State is a Japanese, Ross says.

The Japanese population of the State, Ross estimates from figures at hand and compilations made for 1923, is 79,831. The Chinese population, he placed at 26,897 and the colored population, he estimates, is 44,934.

Contrary to common belief, Ross says, the Japanese population is not increasing while both the number of negroes and Chinese show substantial gains.

California's total population in June, 1923 was 3,913,239. Since those figures were compiled, the State has gained nearly another 100,000 people and the total population is now well over 4,000,000, he estimates.

COMMITTEE TO AIR NEW RUMOR

Reports of Large Slush Fund to be Investigated

E. B. McLean is Summoned to Testify in Inquiry

had been returned to him in uncashed checks.

The subpoena was telegraphed to Palm Beach and Mr. McLean is expected to come to Washington within a few days. When he was summoned six weeks ago, his physician notified the committee that his health would not permit him to come here and Senator Walsh took his statement at the Florida resort.

Tonight no service on the new subpoena had been returned.

While the three witnesses were being vigorously questioned today by the committee, Frank A. Vanderlip followed the proceedings with intense interest.

There was a visible disappointment among the spectators when the committee failed to call Mr. Vanderlip as the first witness. It had been the plan to examine him after Mr. Sutro left the stand, but the line of evidence given by the Standard Oil attorney opened up a field of inquiry which readily could be pursued through other witnesses then present and the New York banker's examination was deferred until tomorrow.

REMAINS THROUGHOUT

For an hour or more he remained in his chair, but as the cross-examination began to grow more pointed, he stood up and leaned forward the better to follow the sharp questioning and responses. He remained until the committee adjourned after a session lasting three and a half hours.

Mr. Shaffer's statement on the witness stand that Mr. Fall had told him in March, 1921, of his intention to lease Teapot Dome to Sinclair was preceded by an explanation that he could not be wholly certain of dates, as he had hurried to Washington without having opportunity to refresh his memory with regard to details of the oil transactions.

When asked the pointed question, however, he let the record stand that the conversation with Fall as to Teapot Dome occurred almost immediately after the Interior Secretary took office.

The publisher told the committee that he had land adjoining the Teapot reserve and that he had entered into an agreement with the Pioneer Oil Company, by which he was to obtain a one-eighth interest in the company's holdings in the Teapot field. He said he did not put up a dollar, and conceded that he had never rendered any service in connection with the matter.

ARRANGED BY FALL

Thus far, he said, he had received $32,000 on account of the $125,000 share out of the $1,000,000 Sinclair paid the Pioneer company. He testified that Fall had arranged with Sinclair to give him a holding in the naval reserve after it was leased because he had submitted an application to the Interior Department at the time Franklin K. Lane was Secretary.

Shaffer indignantly denied that the influence of his newspapers had in any way entered into the transaction. He asserted that no oil company or anyone else had undertaken to shape the policy of those papers with regard to this or any other matter.

Assistant Secretary Finney was questioned broadly with respect to all of the Fall leases and he told the committee that he thought the leasing policy was surrounded by "indiscreet circumstances." He agreed with committee members that Fall was without legal authority to lease a foot of the reserves themselves but contended that the contract with Doheny for the offset wells and construction of tankage at Pearl Harbor was entirely legal.

HOLDS FALL WRONG

Moreover, Mr. Finney expressed the view that Fall was wrong in dismissing the proceedings which had been started by the government in an effort to recover two sections within reserve No. 1 in California which had been purchased by the Standard Oil Company of California from the State.

Comparatively early in the examination of the Assistant Secretary, Senator Walsh said he regretted that he had to reach the conclusion that Mr. Finney was not telling the committee all that was in his mind in connection with the leases. Declaring that the Senator was mistaken, the witness said that all he had was his good name and he regretted that Mr. Walsh had formed or expressed any such conclusion.

Later on, after committeemen had pressed him as to why he had not protested against the methods pursued in making the leases, several members said they could not feel that he had done his full duty, although all of them attested to the high standing for official integrity which the Assistant Secretary had enjoyed over the country throughout the twenty years of his service with the government.

Mr. Finney was visibly moved, and as Senator after Senator first praised him for his fidelity to the public service and then criticised him in connection with the leases, he brushed tears from his eyes, and in a faltering voice replied that he had gone as far as he thought he could in opposing the orders of his superiors.

There was another tense moment in the committee room as the letter of Director Bain was read into the record. It was addressed to the then Secretary Fall at his ranch at Three Rivers, N. M. less than a month before the Doheny-Pearl Harbor contract was signed. It related largely to the question of the legality of such an agreement.

"None of us wants Mr. Doheny to get into trouble," the letter said, "and I take it we will want to do anything we can to make it easy for him."

Bain informed his chief that the original proposal to have one of the smaller oil companies go into court and fight the contract had not been carried through because some had felt "it would embarrass the department and would give support to the trouble makers in Congress."

While the Bureau of Mines director said he realized the objections to asking Atty.-Gen. Daugherty for an opinion as to the legality of the contract, he told the Secretary he was letting him know "the difficulties that are being raised here so that you might reconsider" about asking for an opinion and have "the Attorney-General put in writing what I have understood was his informal and verbal expression of opinion favorable to the action the department has taken."

Senator Walsh asked his special investigators, who produced the letter, whether he had found "anything in the record which would throw any light on how it would be embarrassing to have the Attorney-General put in writing what he had expressed orally." Receiving a negative reply, he had the committee give the investigator full authority to search any and all files of the Department of Justice.

DEAL HELD ILLEGAL

Senator Walsh led in questioning Mr. Sutro when the committee session began. He asked whether the witness knew of the advertisement issued by the Navy Department for the construction of oil storage tanks at Pearl Harbor.

"I do," replied Mr. Sutro.

"Did your company bid?"

"I do not think we made a formal bid."

"Why?"

"One of the company's officers said there was a considerable quantity of oil involved and that we would like to have it. I made as thorough investigation as I was capable of making and rendered a written opinion to the vice-president of the company, who was particularly in charge of the purchase of oil, that the contract would not be legal, and that I could not approve it."

Sutro read the formal opinion which he delivered to his company under date of January 27, 1922 in which he held that the Act of June 4, 1920, did not authorize the Secretary of the Navy to exchange fuel oil for anything except fuel oil. Exchange for any other thing, the opinion continued, "would defeat the intent of Congress" in passing the act authorizing the Secretary to work the naval oil reserves.

NAVY ADVISED

"Was the Navy Department advised of this opinion?" asked Senator Walsh.

"I know they were advised of our attitude. I don't think they were given a copy of the opinion."

Sutro then related a conversation with Assistant Secretary Finney of the Interior Department in which he expressed the hope that the Attorney-General would pass on the opinion.

"Mr. Finney reply, in substance, was that it was not the wish of the Secretary of the Interior—no, I dont think that expresses it. He said that the Secretary of the Interior considered it unnecessary to have the opinion of the Attorney-General."

John Holland, Secretary to Senator Walsh, testified that he had found a copy of Sutro's opinion in the files of the Interior Department and that there had been official correspondence about it.

BAIN WRITES FALL

H. Foster Bain, Director of Mines, wrote to Secretary Fall on May 12, 1922, at Three Rivers, N. M., advising him of the Sutro opinion.

The Bain letter, written from San Francisco, follows:

"I have been here for the last few days arranging for a transfer of the accumulated royalty oil and for future royalty oils to the Pan-American Company. I have been surprised to find the Standard and General Petroleum in particular are adopting a very technical attitude toward this transfer, going so far as to raise a question as to whether either company would be safe in making such a transfer or in later handling any of the oil in case the Pan-American desired to have them do so.

"As you will recall, Mr. Sutro and Mr. Wyle have been doubtful as to the right of the department to make the exchange contract. They now seem to have become positive that no such right exists and Mr. Storey is even interpreting the law so far as to question the right of the Standard to deliver oil to the Pan-American on our order. I have arranged that Mr. Campbell as representing the department, should receive the oil and give a receipt for it, and while I am not a lawyer, my impression is that that should end the matter as far as pipe-line companies are concerned.

CLEAR ON RIGHTS

"Of course this is not a matter which primarily concerns the department since we have all been entirely clear in our minds as to the right of the government to make this exchange and have in fact, gone ahead and contracted for the exchange with the Pan-American and as the latter is an entirely responsible concern, that I assume ends it as far as we are concerned.

"There is, however, another phase of it. None of us wants Mr. Doheny to get into trouble and I take it we will want to do anything we can to make it easy for him. I have been told that there was a definite proposal to have one of the smaller oil companies go into court and fight this contract with a view to getting a decision as to the right of the department to make such a bargain. This proposal was not carried through. Mr. Storey tells me that he objected to it as he felt that it would embarrass the department and would give support to troublemakers in Congress. He professed to be anxious and willing to do anything he can to help the department carry on its plans, but to be in the awkward position of having an opinion from his attorney which might be quoted against him in case the matter ever came up.

REALIZES OBJECTIONS

"Out of all this has come the suggestion repeatedly that the opinion of the Attorney-General be obtained as to the legality of the contract. I realize the objections to asking such an opinion, but I have thought it proper to let you know the difficulties that are being raised here so that you might reconsider the matter and decide as to whether you might not properly ask the Attorney-General to put in writing what I have understood was his informal and verbal expression of opinion favorable to the action the department has taken. I am not certain that Mr. Doheny cares, but Mr. Cotter will see him tomorrow and if it does seem to them important, I am giving Mr. Cotter this letter to show you so you may know what I have found out here.

"The wells on the north line of twenty-two are coming on in good shape, and Anderson has done excellent work in pushing them ahead.

"I am sorry to bother you with this business while you are at home."

Senator Walsh asked Holland whether he had found anything in the record which would throw any light on how it would be embarrassing to have the Attorney-General put in writing what he had expressed orally.

"No, sir," said Holland.

Then, upon motion of Senator Walsh, the committee gave Holland authority to search the files of the Department of Justice.

SHAFFER TESTIFIES

John C. Shaffer, publisher of the Chicago Post, the Rocky Mountain News, and other newspapers, was questioned by Senator Walsh about his holdings in the Pioneer Oil Company, a Standard subsidiary.

"I have received from the Pioneer Oil Company, in which I had an eighth interest," Mr. Shaffer said, "so far $92,000."

"Did you render any services in connection with the matter?" Senator Walsh queried.

"None."

"Didn't you at one time demand $60,000 from the Pioneer Oil Company for services?"

"No, sir."

"Mr. Shaffer," Senator Walsh proceeded, "I have a record before me of proceedings of directors of the Pioneer Oil Company, granting to John C. Shaffer an eighth interest in the Pioneer Oil Company because of services rendered."

"I've never seen those minutes," Shaffer returned, "and never heard of them until you read that."

"What service did you render?"

"None. I had a contract calling for an eighth interest in the property the Pioneer company had in Teapot Dome. They had three wells there some time in 1918."

CONTRACT MISSING

Senator Walsh asked for the contract; the witness said his copy of it was in Chicago.

"I had land adjoining Teapot Dome," Mr. Shaffer continued, "a holding known as the Maryland Oil Company, and purchased some oil from the Pioneer wells on Teapot Dome."

His payment from the Pioneer Oil Company, Shaffer added, came out of $1,000,000 paid to that company by the Sinclair interests. Senator Walsh pressed the witness for reasons which led the Pioneer company to give him an eighth interest in the Teapot Dome matter.

"The Pioneer people felt we had a common interest in the Teapot holdings in case the Dome was ever thrown open to the public," Mr. Shaffer said. "They made the proposal to give it to me. I gave up nothing. It was their idea."

Mr. Shaffer recognized his signature to a letter dated April 19, 1922, to Assistant Secretary Finney, calling his attention to newspaper reports that a contract had been made with the Mammoth Oil Company.

"As you know, I have a personal interest in this deal," the letter read. "Secretary Fall had arranged with Mr. Sinclair for some acreage for me personally." He therefore asked that a copy of the Sinclair lease be sent him.

MEMORY REFRESHED

The witness having just testified before the reading of the letter that he had no interest in the Sinclair lease, Senator Walsh asked:

"Does that refresh your recollection?"

Back in 1917, Shaffer replied, he had applied for land on the Teapot Dome under lease and had been promised 200 acres of land by Secretary Fall.

"How in the world do you think a mere fact that you had applied for land gave you a right to share in the Sinclair lease?" Senator Walsh demanded.

"It didn't," Mr. Shaffer replied.

"Didn't you think it was the duty of a public officer to get something for the public out of it? Was it your opinion that anybody in this country could go to Secretary Fall and demand a share in the Sinclair lease or money for it?"

"I think so," Shaffer said.

"And you think that was consistent with Secretary Fall's discharge of his duty," Senator Walsh said, "and that he could distribute the interest around just as he saw fit?"

"I think so."

PROMISED LAND

Shaffer explained that when he pressed a claim previously presented to Secretary Lane, Secretary Fall told him he was then negotiating with Sinclair for a lease.

"He then said as I had made my application in 1917 he would see that I would have some land there," Shaffer testified. "He told me afterward that he had told Mr. Sinclair that he was reserving for me 200 acres because of my previous application."

Chairman Lenroot took over the witness' examination.

"I had a conversation with Secretary Fall two months after he took office," Shaffer said, "and told him I had spent $150,000 trying to develop oil at the Teapot Dome. He promised me that I would be given a chance to get some land if the reserve was ever opened. Later he said, he would take it up with Mr. Sinclair."

Following this, Sinclair made a proposition to develop 200 acres of the Teapot Dome land in his behalf, Shaffer said.

"What was the obligation you undertook in getting an eighth of the Pioneer company?" Senator Lenroot asked.

"Just that I was to help them develop," Shaffer said. "That we would both have land inside the Teapot, and I would have felt obliged to give them an eighth interest in mine."

MORAL OBLIGATION

"Was there anything in the contract to fix this obligation?" Senator Lenroot asked.

"No, it was a moral obligation, but we would have had to put up pipe lines together and make joint agreements. I would have agreed to develop jointly with them."

"Do you mean a business man would make arrangements like that, without a contract and on the basis of a moral obligation?" Senator Lenroot queried.

"I think so," Shaffer responded. "You were to furnish no money, no service, and were free to make a lease yourself," Senator Lenroot commented. "What was the consideration you gave for this eighth?"

"It was $1 and other valuable considerations," Shaffer responded, "as the contract said."

"So they just gave you this eighth?" Senator Lenroot interjected.

"Yes, but Senator, there were 9000 acres of land there," Shaffer protested. "I was just to get one small section."

Senator Lenroot took the witness back over the history of his attempts to get a lease on the Teapot. Shaffer said his contract with the Pioneer company was made in 1918.

LAND NOT OPEN

"You knew when you made your application that all this land was withdrawn from leasing?" Senator Lenroot asked.

"Yes, and it was my understanding that this was not open," Shaffer said.

"But on the basis of this application, made before the land was open, you made a demand on Secretary Fall for some of this land on a preference basis?"

"No, not at all. I made no demand. I just urged that I get it. Anybody could have done the same thing."

"Do you think they would have got the same answer?"

The question was unanswered.

Shaffer said he did not come to Washington especially to see Fall, but was here on a visit and called on him. This was soon after Fall came into office.

Senator Lenroot asked what Fall had said when he asked for the land.

"Mr. Fall said he then was in negotiation with Mr. Sinclair," was the answer, "and he would request Mr. Sinclair to set aside 200 acres."

CONFIRMED BY SINCLAIR

Sinclair subsequently confirmed that Fall had made the request, he said.

Senator Kendrick, Democrat, Wyoming, sugested the lease was not signed until 1922.

"Then I've got my dates wrong," the publisher said. "I saw him first in March of 1921—I saw him again in 1922 after announcement was made that Teapot Dome was to be opened."

Pressed by Senator Kendrick, Shaffer insisted that before the lease was signed Fall had told him he was negotiating with Sinclair for Teapot Dome.

Public announcement of the lease was made two weeks after it was signed.

Shaffer said his recollection was that he got the information that Teapot Dome was to be leased just as anyone else could.

"I did not get it from Mr. Fall," he said.

Adverting to the agreement with Sinclair, the publisher said it was oral and that he was to get 200 acres.

LAND SET ASIDE

"I want to develop it myself, but Mr. Sinclair wants to do all the developing in Teapot himself. Mr. Sinclair proposed that he set aside 420 acres of land out of the reserve, develop that at his own expense and share the profits '50-50' with me."

"You didn't own the land, you didn't have a claim on it, and the whole of your right depended on Secretary Fall's verbal statement that you would be taken care of?" Senator Lenroot demanded.

"That's right," Shaffer said.

Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, pointde out that Frederick G. Bonfils of the Denver Post "got 50 per cent of the deal he made with Stack, while you only got 12½ per cent of the Pioneer proposition."

"I just wondered whether the difference in the proportion of these two properties you got depended on the difference between the circulation of your two papers," Senator Dill commented.

"Well, there was a little more liberal view," Shaffer replied, "but I don't want to discuss Mr. Bonfils. We don't publish a paper like he does."

REASON FOR GIFTS

Senator Dill said he noticed Shaffer besides getting one-eighth interest in the Pioneer got 200 acres from Sinclair.

"What's the reason these men came to you and made you these gifts," Senator Dill asked.

"It was because I had this land alongside," Shaffer returned.

"You used that land alongside to get this interest from the Pioneer people," Senator Dill continued, "and used it, too, to get half the oil from this 420 acres of Sinclair?"

"That's right."

Shaffer said Sinclair had sent him a written contract, but that he had not signed it. His plan with Sinclair is held in abeyance now, witness said, because the whole Teapot Dome lease might be canceled as a result of the oil inquiry.

"How did you say here you had no interest in the Sinclair lease?" Senator Dill queried.

"It's a difference between having some land and having an interest in the lease itself," Shaffer responded. He added that he "didn't have a share of stock or interest in the Sinclair companies."

HAZY ON DATES

Pressed by Senator Walsh, Shaffers said he had no recollection that he had called on Fall after his visit in March, 1921.

"When did Secretray Fall tell you he had arranged with Sinclair to give you an interest in the lease?" Senator Walsh asked.

"I can't remember as to these dates. I went to Secretary Fall soon after he took office, and told him I wanted to make application for a part of this land when it was opened to the public, if it ever was. He made no pledge to me, but later he told me he had arranged with Sinclair to take care of me on this 200 acres."

"Secretary Fall must have told you this some time prior to April, 1921," Senator Walsh pursued.

"That's right."

"It must have been as early as March, 1921," Senator Walsh said.

"Then it follows that as early as March, 1921, Fall had an arrangement by which Sinclair was to get this lease."

"I'll grant that," Shaffer responded. "I want to give the facts."

"We'll draw the inferences," said Senator Walsh.

SUPPORT NOT MENTIONED

"The Pioneer Oil Company was engaged in trying to get legislation to open up these lands," Senator Walsh said, "wasn't the consideration you gave for this lease the support of your newspapers for this leasing legislation?"

"The support of my newspapers was never mentioned or promised," Shaffer replied. "I don't even know what position they took on the proposition."

The amendment described at length his actions in getting title to his Maryland company land outside the Teapot reserve.

"That land was withdrawn in 1909, itself, wasn't it?" Senator Lenroot asked.

"I don't know," Shaffer returned. "It was drilled under the old mining law. I got it from the widow of the first owner for $25,000, and went on developing it. I succeeded simply to their rights."

He was excused.

A letter had been sent by Secretary Payne in the Wilson administration, denying Mr. Shaffer's request for drilling permits in Teapot Dome, Mr. Finney said, but the Maryland company was allowed drilling permits on land outside the Dome.

"I mentioned the matter to Secretary Fall, likely," Mr. Finney continued, "and filed memoranda showing Mr. Shaffer to be asserting some equity on Teapot Dome as did a man named Taylor and another named Campion. All these claims were filed under mining locations."

"Secretary Fall told me later he had some negotiations with Mr. Sinclair about taking care of the Shaffer claims. He said Sinclair had agreed to do so."

"This letter (from Shaffer to Finney) says Fall arranged to take care of Shaffer with some acreage on the Dome," Senator Walsh continued. "Is that substantially what Fall told you?"

"My recollection is that Secretary Fall said Sinclair would either give Shaffer money," Mr. Finney replied, "or share up some of the oil."

UPHOLDS LEGALITY

Finney said he disagreed with Oscar Sutro, counsel of the Standard Oil Company of California, a previous witness, who held there was no legal authority for the Fall leases.

The witness could not recall all the circumstances, but said he would not deny Mr. Sutro's testimony as to their talk about the reasons for not asking Atty.-Gen. Daugherty for an opinion.

"My superior having decided upon a policy," Finney said, "it wasn't up to me."

Finney said there had been "so-called bids" for the offset wells in the California naval reserve and the Pearl Harbor tankage project. The bidders included the Standard Oil Company of California, the Associated Oil Company and the Doheny company.

Asked directly why Atty.-Gen. Daugherty was not asked for an opinion, Finney said the Secretary did not regard it as necessary.

Finney said the Teapot Dome contract was handled "very largely" by Secretary Fall.

Finney testified that Fall instructed him to issue a statement denying that leases had been entered into a week after Teapot actually had been leased to Sinclair.

Explaining how he came to sign the Doheny Pearl Harbor contract, Finney said Fall was in New Mexico and wired him to sign after the Secretary had studied the summary of the bids sent to him at his home.

The real reason why the Teapot Dome lease announcement was held up, Finney said, was because Fall didn't want it made public until the Doheny lease to the California reserves had been signed.

PRIVATE NEGOTIATIONS

Finney disclosed that the question as to the legality of the leasing program never was referred to the Interior department solicitors. He said he was very certain the program was legal.

He said the lease negotiations were conducted "in the manner of private negotiations," and added:

"I would not have handled them that way. It impressed me as a wrong way."

Fall left Washington for his New Mexico ranch immediately after signing the Teapot Dome lease, Finney testified. He could not say where it was signed.

Before leaving, he said, Fall locked the lease up in his desk and it remained there until he returned.

Asked if he was "suspicious," Finney said:

"I thought then and hope now Fall was an absolutely honest man."

In dismissing the proceedings to recover Sections 36 and 16 in California from the Standard Oil Company of California, Finney said Fall had asked the department officials only if there was a dispute as to facts.

There was no dispute as to facts, Finney said, but there was one of law. Fall did not ask to that, he testified, adding that he then and now believed Fall's action was wrong.

FEDERAL BONDS CHECK CORRECT

ton expressed a similar view of charges made by J. W. McCarter of South Dakota in 1920, after an inquiry into bureau affairs. The charges then, as now, in Mr. Mellon's opinion, were based largely on "misinformation and misunderstanding" and the Secretary declared emphatically there was no evidence at any time to substantiate the charges of fraudulent issue of Federal bonds.

Mr. Mellon said the Brewer charges, in fact, related principally to the temporary issues of securities, nearly all of which were exchanged into permanent bonds as rapidly as conditions permitted. That exchange, in the Secretary's opinion, provided a good check upon the integrity of the issue of the temporary bonds and "it furnishes a conclusive answer to the charges of duplication."

There are now only about $27,000,000 in temporary bonds still outstanding out of a total of more than $15,000,000,000 issued, the Secretary asserted.

NOT AFFECTED

"In other words," the letter said, "the Liberty bonds now in the hands of the public are practically all permanent bonds which are not in any way affected by the charges, so that there is no occasion for any public uneasiness in this regard."

Beyond all this, Mr. Mellon asserted, there have been periodical audits of the accounts of paper stocks held by the banks on which the emergency notes These audits, he explained, covered the entire period beginning of the war and no irregularities were found, be "beyond the petty defalca that would naturally occur in transactions involving one hundred million pieces of

Men Patrol Tomb to Prevent Access

Investors and Egypt in Split on Ownership

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LUXOR, (Egypt) Feb. 14.—The interrupted slumber of King Tutankhamen has been resumed. The golden effigy of the pharaoh remains staring up at the star-studded lid of his coffin behind the padlocked doors of his sepulcher.

The approaches are patrolled by soldiers strengthened police force with loaded rifles and with strict injunctions to prevent access to the tomb.

Howard Carter has moved to his house, worn out by the heat and worry, while in Cairo the Egyptian Premier is personally inquiring into the legal aspects of the dramatic breach between the excavatory and the government.

There is reason to believe that the question of the proprietorship of the treasures of the tomb played a large part in the long dispute that led to the split. If the tomb is ruled to have been opened as a "violated sepulcher," it is said, according to the agreement between the Cairo museum and the excavators, all finds of treasure will go to the Cairo museum.

Mr. Carter is reported to claim that the treasure on the former ground, while the government has the standpoint that as the tomb bore the impression of royal necropolis seal the tomb and its contents are held to have been intact.

There is bitter disappointment in the turn of affairs exists among the score of tourists now at Luxor, many of whom had applied to the ministry of public works for permits to enter the tomb.

CAIRO, (Egypt) Feb. 14.—The Egyptian Minister of Public Works announced today that when Howard Carter visited him on the 7th inst., a conversation was of the most friendly character. Mr. Carter then made a request of women being admitted to the tomb on the 17th, which was the day appointed for the press inspection, but Minister declined and said that the wives of Cabinet Ministers would not be admitted to the tomb until after the 17th inst., when public visits were to be allowed. An agreement was then drawn up and signed on that basis.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 14.—One accused bandit was killed, another shot and a third captured by Ensenada police Wednesday following the robbery of a drug store in the Mexican town, according to word received here. The wounded bandit was not expected to live. Details of the robbery and subsequent fight between police and bandits have not been received by the Mexican Consulate or by officials of the American customs and immigration services but unofficial advice is that Chief Manuel Labastida of Ensenada, Police Assistant Chief Moliva and ex-Mayor Beltram led a squad of police that overtook the bandit trio south of Ensenada and a gun battle ensued.

DEBATE ON TAX BILL IN HOUSE

peal for the public "to let Congress know its wishes on tax reduction."

The debate attracted a large attendance on the floor and the galleries were filled as the bill, providing for a complete revision of the income taxes, was taken up after two months' consideration in committee. Applause was frequent on the floor as speakers drove home their points.

The solid Democratic opposition to the income rates section of the bill, brought about by a party caucus vote, was joined today by some of the members of the Republican insurgent group, leaders of which announced after a meeting that they would support the proposal of Representative Frear, Republican, Wisconsin, and if this bill fails, vote for the Democratic plan.

Mr. Frear will submit an amendment to cut the normal income taxes 50 per cent and leave the surtax maximum at 50 per cent. Democrats want the maximum surtax cut to 44 per cent, whereas the Mellon plan provides for a maximum rate of 25 per cent.

BEGG OPTIMISTIC

Despite the stand of the Democrats, Representative Begg, Republican, Ohio, who has conducted a poll of the Republican delegations, predicted today that Republicans would agree upon a surtax rate lower than that proposed by the minority.

Mr. Garner announced Democrats were anxious to expedite passage of the bill, and Chairman Green said an agreement would be sought to take up on next Tuesday the income rates section, the vital point of the measure.

Representative Longworth, Republican floor leader, predicted the measure would be passed within two weeks if the proposed course of procedure was followed. The majority leader also stated that a poll of the Republican delegations had shown that 208 members would approve a surtax of 25 per cent, or ten less than a majority if the 435 members of the House voted.

Other speakers today included Representatives Oldfield of Arkansas, and Dickinson of Missouri, Democrats, and Young of North Dakota and Kearns of Ohio, Republicans.

Their arguments centered in the main on the income tax provisions.

Representative Garner discussed the excise and estate taxes, declaring for repeal of more of the former than approved by the committee. He proposed a reduction, at least of the taxes on automobiles and accessories, and proposed an additional tax on cigarettes to make up for the loss in revenue which would result. He argued for higher estate taxes and favored a gift tax as a "necessary complement" to the interitance or estate tax.

Chairman Green refused to take up the controversial income rates section for questioning by members from the floor, declaring that as chairman of the committee, he was interested today in presenting the complete plan, calling attention particularly to his provision in the bill providing for a 25 per cent reduction in 1923 taxes payable this year.

Mr. Garner argued that any tax revision bill approved, should be made retroactive to include the 1923 taxes.

Representative Oldfield belittled arguments that the Mellon plan with a 25 per cent maximum surtax rate would raise more revenue than the Garner scheme proposing a maximum rate of 44 per cent. He charged the Mellon plan was a scheme "to break down the income tax law" so that a sales tax might be substituted. He also favored restoration of an excess profits tax with lower rates than carried formerly.

YOUNG CITES BENEFITS

Mr. Young said it was in the interest of the farmers, "few of whom had to pay any income tax," to see that the surtaxes were reduced and thereby relieve themselves of the burden of indirect taxation. He claimed those subject to the surtax rates passed some of the burden off to those who did not pay a surtax.

Representative Kearns indorsed the Mellon income rates and declared their adoption would serve to increase the amount of capital available for industry and thereby promote competition and decrease the cost of living.

Opposition to any surtax cut at all was voiced by Mr. Dickinson who insisted the government should pay its debts before considering a reduction in the taxes on high incomes. He also denounced alleged propaganda in favor of the Mellon plan.

Representative Mills pointed out that prior to the World War the maximum surtax rate fixed by the Democrats was 10 per cent, whereas the now oppose a reduction in this rate to 25 per cent. Mr. Garner answered that the personal exemptions allowed them was greater than now and still not as large as the Democrats proposed to make them in the present bill. The bill provides for an increased exemption.

VANDERLIP TO TESTIFY TODAY

Attacks Slanderous Gossip in Washington

Insinuations Against Late President Hit

Tales About Newspaper Sale Nailed as Lies

BY GRAFTON WILCOX

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Frank A. Vanderlip, the New York financier, who stirred the country by repeating in a speech some of the gossip from Washington which he says is "undermining confidence of the people in our government," waited in Washington today to testify before the Senate oil investigating committee.

Mr. Vanderlip will be heard tomorrow and he is anxious, he says, that the "wells of poison at Washington" either be dried up or that guilty men, if such there be, be sent to the penitentiary. He has no evidence to support any of the rumors he gave utterance to, and is glad that friends of the late President Harding are coming forward to "nail as baseless the slanders circulated against him."

Senator Willis, Republican, Ohio, today received a telegram from James F. Hopley, editor of the Bucyrus (O.) Telegraph, quoting a letter to him from the late President Harding written last April, which sheds light on Mr. Harding's intention to sell the Marion Star and the fact that it sold for a high price.

WANTED HIGH PRICE

"I have your note regarding the proposed purchase and consolidation of the two papers of Bucyrus," Mr. Harding's letter read. "I am sure that I do not have the slightest discouragement to offer. It is in harmony with the tendency toward consolidation of newspapers in order to make them consistent business enterprises as well as self-reliant agencies of becoming public service. It is possible there is some political significance to the program now on foot in Ohio. Proposals were made to purchase the Star and if the price were ample and the proposition broad enough to properly care for the minority stockholders, I should not hesitate to sell, although I fear we should ask a very unreasonable figure before being persuaded to dispose of the property."

Mr. Hopley in his telegram, added:

"The Marion Star has not sold too high because it meant an exclusive field. I understand the Star made a profit of $65,000 the last year of the Harding ownership and will do about as well this year. The Telegraph sold for $110,000 and never paid a dividend. The Star always paid dividends. Judging from Vanderlip's assault this is the open season for 'skunks.'"

CENTER OF GOSSIP

"For years," said Mr. Vanderlip tonight, "Washington has been the pesthole of foul and often malicious gossip. Reputations of many public men have been befouled by frequent false reports. The effect of this sort of thing is disastrous on the public mind. People are losing faith in the government and we are rapidly becoming a nation of cynics.

"In my Ossining speech I repeated some of the startling rumors emanating from Washington, vicious rumors. I have no evidence to support them. I do not know whether they have any foundation in fact and hope they have none.

"But I made that speech deliberately; no accident about it. Other than rumor and gossip, which I repeated as rumor and gossip and nothing more, I gave utterance to a few expressions of personal opinion. When I said Senator Jim Reed is a 'political skunk and that he ought to be spanked with perfume,' I was giving utterance to my personal opinion, and it still is my opinion. I suppose I am entitled to that.

HOPED TO STIR NATION

"I hoped that my little speech would stir the country. It is high time either that the wells of poison at Washington are dried up or that guilty men—if there are guilty—are sent to the penitentiary.

"I made no charges against the late President of the United States. I simply said out loud some of the things—not all—that have been whispered about for months by thousands of people all over the United States. My purpose was to drag this campaign of slander out into the light of day. I am glad to hear that friends of the late President welcome this opportunity to nail as baseless lies the slanders which have been circulated against him."

OFFERED $350,000

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

POUGHKEEPSIE (N. Y.) Feb. 14.—Ernest L. Owen, manager of the Poughkeepsie Evening Star and Enterprise, in a telegram today to George B. Christian, Jr., who was secretary to President Harding, said:

"On September 22, 1922, I offered President Harding $350,000 for the Marion Star. Have all correspondence which was carried on through my agent, John Griffiths of Poughkeepsie.

"In file of late President you may find copies of correspondence containing original offer.

"I think that my offer was the basis of Brush's purchase price and the paper well worth it."

Mr. Owen formerly lived in Marion.

HOUSE COMMITTEE TO DISCUSS ALIEN BILL

CHAIRMAN OPPOSES IDEAS GIVEN IN HUGHES JAPAN PROTEST

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Objections of Secretary Hughes to the Johnson immigration bill, particularly with regard to provisions which practically would exclude Japanese from the United States, will be considered tomorrow at a meeting of the House Immigration Committee.

Chairman Johnson declined to comment on the protest of Mr. Hughes beyond reiterating prediction that the committee would not be disposed to back down on its stand against Japanese immigration. He did, however, issue a formal statement in which he charged that "professional leaders of foreign blocs," aided by paid leaders of other groups which benefit from the continued arrival of aliens are now boldly proclaiming that they have beaten the proposal for restrictive immigration legislation this year."

"They are gloating too soon," said Mr. Johnson, adding:

"The public, however, should understand that if Congress can be coerced by threats from these representatives of aliens, to lay aside the pending restrictive bill so that their followers may swarm into the country, the time will soon come when the people of the United States will have lost control of their own affairs."

The minority report on the bill approved by the House Immigration Committee, signed by Representatives Sabath of Illinois and Dickstein of New York, Democrates attacking particularly the provision to restrict immigration on a basis of 2 per cent of the foreign born of each nation here in 1890, was made public today.

CONGRESS TOLD OF FARMER AID

Loan Board Reports Work to Assist Growers

Land Bank Operation is Outlined in Data

Total of 60,100 Loans Hit $192,083,000 Mark

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A detailed statement on government aid to the farming industry through the Federal land banks and the intermediate credit banks during 1923 was given Congress today by the Federal Farm Loan Board in its annual report on operations.

The board said it hoped especially for greater use of co-operative organizations in order that facilities of the credit banks might be employed to a larger extent. Wheat and wool producers thus far have failed to organize extensively and the board has sent emissaries among them to encourage co-operative associations. Hope was expressed that the wool co-operatives would be prepared to take care of the 1924 clip.

CONFER ON PLANS

The report also discussed efforts being made by the board through its various subordinate agencies in behalf of crop diversification. In the areas where the one-crop method has long been in practice land and credit bank officials have suggested resort to use of the dairy herd as a certain income producer and production of less important commodities.

Satisfaction was expressed with the operations of the twelve land banks during the year. They made a total of 60,100 loans amounting to $192,083,000 divided in number and amount in each district as follows:

DISTRICT AMOUNTS

Springfield, 2413 and $8,179,440; Baltimore, 4041 and $12,046,601; Columbia, 3955 and $7,882,224; Louisville 6053 and $19,329,600; New Orleans 10,152 and $21,938,000; St. Louis 3429 and $9,243,800; St. Paul 6511 and $27,373,800; Omaha 3808 and $23,632,300; Wichita 4794 and $17,045,200; Houston 3103 and $22,239,100; Berkeley 2150 and $1,750,600; Spokane 4331 and $16,422,650.

During the year the twelve land banks also retired treasury stock to the amount of $1,830,495. Treasury stock in the banks at Omaha, St. Paul, Houston and Spokane was entirely paid off and those banks had remaining substantial surpluses, indicating, it was said, that the business had been soundly administered and that the banks are now permanent institutions and assets to the national life.

Schoellkopf Jewels Are Found With Indicted Jeweler's Aid

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—One hundred precious stones stolen from Mrs. Hugo C. P. Schoellkopf of Buffalo, New Year's Eve, 1923, were recovered for the police today by John Mahan, jeweler to whom they were sold by the thieves. All the gems, valued at $20,000, had been taken from their settings.

Mahan, who is under indictment for criminally receiving stolen jewels, recently revealed that $86,000 worth of Mrs. Schoellkopf's stolen gems were hidden in a fruit jar at Denver. Later he gave information that led to the discovery in a local shop of another batch valued at $75,000.

The total value of the gems taken from Mrs. Schoellkopf was estimated at $245,000, of which about $181,000 worth have been recovered.

Mahan, after exacting a promise from the police that they would not follow him, made several nocturnal excursions, bringing in the jewels.

ELEANOR GOSS TO PLAY HERE

Country's Third Ranking Net Star is Coming

Mrs. Bundy Expected to Give Her a Battle

Midwinter Net Play Starts Tomorrow

Miss Eleanor Goss of New York, third ranking woman player of the United States and conqueror of Miss Helen Wills in two out of three starts last year, will be a headliner in the annual midwinter tournament on the courts of the Los Angeles Tennis Club starting tomorrow. Against Miss Goss will be pitted Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of Santa Monica, and they are practically a certainty to meet in the finals as was the case last year.

The appearance of Miss Goss has special significance, as she was one of the members of the American Olympic team and is regarded as the equal of Miss Wills, national champion, in every way. Miss Goss defeated Miss Wills at San Rafael just previous to the midwinter tournament a year ago, and later defeated her at Newport, but lost a close match in the nationals.

Mrs. Bundy's last real tournament appearance was the occasion on which she defeated Miss Wills a year ago, but when Miss Goss sent her entry for the tournament to President Nat B. Browne of the tennis association that worthy prevailed on Mrs. Bundy to enter the defense again. In addition to Mrs. Bundy and Miss Goss, the pick of the Southern California women players will take part in the tournament.

Harvey Snodgrass, ninth ranking player in the U.S.A., Walter Westbrook, Tom Ferrandini and Hardy Strodtbeck promise to battle it out among themselves for the honors among the male contingent, not only in singles but in doubles as well. All events will be played on the tournament, and actual tournament play will start tomorrow morning.

ALL YOUNT HAS GOOD MATERIAL AT REDLANDS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

REDLANDS, Feb. 14.—William Yount, the track coach of Redlands High School, has about forty men out for track, but not a single weight man in the crowd. Yount says he has good hurdles, a couple of quarter-miler, a good dash man, some distance runners who can go well, a good broad jumper and a fair high jumper, but no one who can handle the weights. The track men are going through their daily dozen each evening and are rapidly getting into shape for the season.

TROJAN FROSH TRACK TEAM MEETS PIONEERS

Coach Dean Cromwell's high-powered collection of U.S.C. freshmen tracksters will go out after another victory this afternoon, taking on the L.A. High cinderpathers in a dual meet at Housh Field. As the Pioneers are rated as weak on the cinderpath this year the Trojan peagreeners should manage to grab an easy victory.

Jimmy Marcus Again Hangs It on Bud Soules

Jimmy Marcus sure has it on Bud Soules for he again put it on Buddy, this time at the C. P. O. bouts last night at Los Angeles Harbor. The first three rounds went to Jimmy, but Buddy grabbed the fourth. The set-to was a crackerjack all the way. Joe Behan got a draw with Sailor Ackerman. The milling was fast and torrid at all times. In the special event Hank Grattan drew with Bud Nolan. Sammy Marco won in four rounds over Billy Hogan.

Paul De Haute won the decision in four rounds over Eddie O'Leary Paul had it on Eddie most of the journey. O'Leary, however, was game and stuck to his guns to the end. Herbie Ryan copped the verdict over Young Brown of Minneapolis and Eddie Spiley of San Bernardino lost on a technical knockout to Sailor Emasco.

A good-sized crowd witnessed the scraps and went home well pleased with the night's entertainment.

MISS CUMMINGS SETS MARK

National Women's Golf Champion Breaks Pebble Beach Record in Practice

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
DEL MONTE, Feb. 14.—Edith Cummings, who holds the national women's golf title, set a new women's record of 81 for the Pebble Beach course here today. Miss Cummings, who is here for the women's championship tournament which starts tomorrow, made the mark in a practice match.

Playing with Marion Hollins, former national champion, Miss Cummings gave a wonderful exhibition of golfing, her putting and driving being splendid. Her partner went around the course and turned in a card of 84.

Golfers from all over the country are here tonight in preparation for tomorrow's tournament. All of the California stars are ready for the strenuous competition they will get from some of America's best feminine players. Alexa Stirling of Atlanta, who has been well up in front among the country's golfers for the past half dozen years, is expected to offer plenty of rivalry for the State stars.

Miss Rosamond Sherwood of Philadelphia, was forced to withdraw from the tournament this evening, an infection of the arm making it impossible for her to play.

It was announced that more than 60 of the best women golfers of the country are here to take part in the tournament. This is one of the largest entry list of real stars ever displayed in California.

VIC FOLEY IN DEBUT AT LEGION

Seattle Bantamweight of Note Meets Teddy Silva in Hollywood Feature

Bantamweights will furnish the action in the feature go at the Hollywood American Legion stadium tonight—two bantamweights who are recognized as just about the classiest boxers in their division now performing on the Pacific Coast.

Vic Foley of Seattle, who numbers among the boys he has defeated many bantams well known to the local four-round game followers, and Teddy Silva are the boxers programed for this go. Foley whipped Silva in a feature event for a Seattle club several weeks ago, and just to make the win decisive enough, knocked Teddy to the floor three times during the argument. Tonight's bout is therefore in the nature of a rematch, and Silva will have an opportunity either to wipe out the sting of the defeat with a decisive win, or else to know for sure Foley is the better boy.

Foley, en route to Los Angeles for his bout with Silva, dropped off at Oakland Wednesday night and scored a win over Bud Hamilton, Denver bantam, who has put up some very pleasing battles at Vernon and Hollywood of late. Among the boys he has whipped in feature goes for the Northwest clubs are Teddy Silva, Dandy Dillon, Johnny Farr, Midget Smith and Charley Moy.

Jimmy Marcus tackles tough Alec Maurice in the semi-wind-up. Marcus is probably a much better boxer than Maurice, but Dick Donald's boy is a hard nut to crack, and it's no secret that he can absorb all kinds of punishment without slowing up for a minute.

Joe Layman and Sid Marks, local lightweights, are programed for the special event, and promise to unfurl an interesting battle. Frankie Novey mets Young Nationalista, a newcomer, at 115 pounds; Nick Antonio and Johnny Reese meet at 135 pounds; Sailor Shafer and Jack Doran get together at 150 pounds, and Young Pancho Villa will start the show with Mike Lamar at 115 pounds.

George Blake will referee. "Handsome" Billy Coe will handle the gong, while the one and only Dan Tobey will be on hand as usual as announcer.

Vernon Fight Card Complete for Tuesday

With Jimmy Delaney and Bert Colima headlining the evening's program, the card for Tuesday night's entertainment at Doyle's Vernon arena is now complete. Delaney and Colima will meet at catch-weights and the bout is sure to go over big.

Willie O'Brien and Harry LaBarre, 128-pounders, are to get together in the semi-wind-up. Both are clever millers. Sailor Ashmore and Joe Layman, popular and hard sockers, hook up in the feature event, the men making 135 pounds for the fight.

Other bouts are: Dick Evans vs. Bert Myers, 145 pounds; Pico Ramies vs. Toby Montoya, 118 pounds; Al Grayber vs. Mickey Rockson, 158 pounds, and Louis Jordan vs. Billy Edge, 128 pounds.

DICK FRAYNE LEADS IN CASABA SCORING

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)
SEATTLE, Feb. 14.—With the 1924 basketball season more than half over, Dick Frayne, captain of the University of Washington basketball team, with 74 points, was leading the Husky players in points scored, according to figures published today. George Anderson, lanky center playing his first year on the varsity squad, was second with 65 points. Bob Hesketh, forward, who has played but a small part of the games contested to date because of injuries, was third with 56 counters.

Other leading scorers on the team were Dick Welts, diminutive running guard, 50 points; Chet Froude, forward, 28 points, and O. C. Gardner, guard, 14 points.

FENGLER BUSTS RECORD

Boy Wonder Rambles Around Beverly Bowl at a Speed of 123 Miles Per Hour

Harlan Fengler, the boy speed king, stepped his speed up to 123 miles per hour on the Beverly Speedway yesterday afternoon in practice for the February 24 250-miles race. Fengler had startled the followers of the racing sport on Wednesday when he turned the track at 121.6 miles an hour, but yesterday he reeled off the mile and a quarter on the board oval in 36⅘s., which is 123 miles per hour and the Beverly Speedway record, with 122-inch cars. Predictions of a new world's speed record for 250 miles are now being made for the day of the great speed battle.

Word came from Mr. Wrigley yesterday announcing that the baseball magnate and chewing-gum king could not accept the position of referee of the 250-mile race on the 24th inst. because a change in his business plans made it necessary for him to go on to New York from Chicago and he could not be back in California for the race.

A. M. Young and Cliff Durant, president of the speedway, had a conference after Wrigley's wire was received and Charles H. Warner of New York and Pasadena was selected to referee the meet. Warner, who is the speedometer king in the motor-car industry, is a great racing enthusiast, and his presence will be greatly appreciated by the drivers and race officials.

Young and Durant also received wires yesterday from T. E. Myers, manager of the Indianapolis speedway, and Horace Murphy, manager of the annual Syracuse race, announcing that they would be present for the classic on the 24th inst. Richard Kennerdall, chairman of the contest board of the A.A.A., yesterday wired Val Haresnape, local representative of the governing body, that he would arrive in Los Angeles with Myers on Wednesday of next week. Young immediately made reservations for Kennerdall at the Athletic Club and Durant announced that the boss of the great Indianapolis speedway would be with him and Joe Boyer at the Biltmore. Horace Murphy is to be the house guest of Fred J. Wagner, veteran race official, at the latter's country place near Covina.

The entries closed at midnight last night and there were seventeen stars of the speedway mounted on seventeen of the fastest cars in the world lined up for the great race when the bars went down and the flags were declared closed.

The seventeen drivers and their cars are:

NEWSIES GREET BENNY

Benny Leonard, greatest fistic lightweight of all times, endeared himself to the hearts of 500 laddies last night when he appeared at the regular Thursday night's newsboys' boxing bouts. Benny was given a whale of a reception, the striplings vying with one another to do him the loudest homage. The popular pugilist responded with a few sidesplitting stories that soon put all present in a joyful mood. He then refereed an exhibition bout between Georgie Lavigne and Joe Schlocker, who went two fast rounds. Benny remained for considerable of a spell after that, good naturedly answering a host of questions swung by the admiring newsies.

The bouts were the best ever given since the boys went into their new clubrooms on Spring street near First. The results follow:

Morris Katz lost to Jimmy Olivaz, Abie Miller won all the way from Davy Ariola, Hyman Miller beat David Messinger, Armand Copella won over Johnny Lawrence, Emil Vendale lost to Dominic Starcy, Dick La Pan beat Art Soloman and Rudy Benton knocked out Pete Tinna.

Col. Jac. Doyle, Deacon Pyle, Larry McGrath and Ray Long and George Lavigne acted as referees at various times. Fred Solomon, a great friend of the newsies, occupied a front seat. Carlos Curtis was master of ceremonies and everything went off in spic-span style. Leave it to Carlos. Irving Messenger made a dandy announcer.

VALLA, RHYNE HOLD OUT ON SAN FRANCISCO

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—Among the regular players of the San Francisco baseball club of the Pacific Coast League reported today still holding out against renewing their contracts were Gene Valla, outfielder and Hal Rhyne, shortstop. Both men played star games last season and there is said to be considerable doubt whether they can come to terms with the management.

Paul Waner, another outfielder, has not signed, but is expected to reach an agreement with the Seals.

Either Valla or Rhyne would prove a serious loss to the Seals. Rhyne, a cog in an excellent infield combination, would be missed especially if he fails to report Ray Flaskampf, who did not quite make the grade last year, would be the most likely candidate for shortstop.

ORANGE HIGH TOSSERS ARE COUNTY CHAMPS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
SANTA ANA, Feb. 14.—The hoop team of Orange High School today held the championship of the Orange County High School Basketball League by virtue of a 29-to-9 defeat administered to Coach Harold Black's Huntington Beach Oilers last evening. With the victory the Orange team won the right to enter the semifinals of the Southern California high school championship competition.

At the end of the first quarter Orange led 2 to 0, and increased the score to 11 to 4 when the half ended. By uncorking a spectacular passing game in the final minutes of play, the Orange players piled up a big lead. The line-up:

Orange.		Huntington Beach.
Brice (2)	F.	Terry (2)
Durrell (5)	F.	Russell
Nichols (8)	C.	Nichols (5)
Spencer (6)	G.	Nash (2)
Nunn (3)	G.	Brewster

OBSERVATIONS by the INNOCENT BYSTANDER W.M.H.

With the Stanford-U. S. C. basketball series out of the way it looks almost certain that the Trojans will at least tie for the championship of the southern half of the Pacific Coast conference with better than an even chance of winning. As far as the Trojans are concerned they have but two games to play, both with the University of California, and an even break will make it hard to beat them, while a double victory over the Bears will practically cinch things for the local hopes.

Stanford furnishes the Trojans with their chief opposition. If the Cardinals beat California again Saturday night they can lose both of their remaining games to the Bears and tie the best that the Trojans can hope to do. All of which makes it interesting. Incidentally the Trojans have considerable hopes of beating the Bears in both of their remaining contests despite the almost certain absence of Capt. Gordon Campbell, whose fine floor work and sensational basket shooting is much missed.

There has been more talk about "rough" basketball this season than ever before and the reason is not difficult to perceive. When you get a lot of enthusiastic young men weighing about 190 to 200 pounds apiece playing anything from drop the handkerchief to football they are going to make it a rough, tough pastime. The mere fact that the game is rough doesn't necessarily mean that it is dirty, it is merely rough by comparison with the game played by smaller men.

The minute the U. S. C. basketball team put in an appearance this season with its gang of blood-sweating behemoths averaging about 190 pounds apiece the cry went up that we were in for a lot of rough basketball. And rough basketball has been the rule, for Stanford is just about as big as the Trojans but it is to be noticed that in the games played so far this year there have been fewer fouls called on the Trojans than on any of their opponents.

The triumph of Harvey Snodgrass and Walter Westbrook over Bob Kinsey and Ray Casey makes it rather certain that Southern California has at last found a top-notch doubles combination in the local demon and the former Detroiter. They were playing under a double handicap, Westbrook with a stiff neck and Snodgrass with feet that made it torture to stand on them, and still managed to nose out Kinsey and Casey,

MIDWICK SQUAD PLAYS CAVALRY

Local Poloists in First of Two Matches Today

Burke to Send Low-Goal Team Against Rivals

Fast Army Outfit Comes Here With Good Record

BY BRAVEN DYER

Up against the proposition of meeting a low-goal team that has shown splendid form this season, Carleton Burke, leader of the Midwick Country Club poloists, is undecided as to his line-up for today's encounter with the hard-riding Eleventh Cavalry squad. The match is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock at the Alhambra field, and will be the first official week-day tilt of the season for the local four.

The visitors came here from Del Monte with a handicap rating of seven goals, which would seem to indicate that they are not a particularly dangerous aggregation. Their highest rated man is Capt. J. C. Rogers, playing back, and he carries a handicap of three goals which is lower than any of the Midwick regulars.

HAVE DONE WELL

However, in their matches to date the army riders have shown plenty of punch, having scored victories over the San Mateo and Honolulu squads. The Islanders got only one goal in their battle with Uncle Sam's representatives. All of which gives rise to the belief that the cavalry players are pretty good despite their low goal rating.

Should Capt. Burke elect to send his regular outfit against the visitors, it would be necessary to spot them fourteen goals to start with. Rather than do this, the Midwick skipper will send a lower-goal team into the match and take chances on the outcome. If things don't pan out right for the locals, the regulars will take the field against the cavalry in Sunday's match.

SUBSTITUTES IN

The Midwick team will probably have C. B. Wrightsman and Harry Hunt in the scoring positions. Both of these men have ridden well this season, and Hunt especially is capable of great playing. Arthur Perkins, regular No. 3 man, will play his usual position, with Will Rogers holding down the back berth. This aggregation has a rating of 11 goals, and will thus have to shot the visitors four points to begin with.

Capt. Gordon Campbell Lost to U.S.C. Basketball Team for Rest of Season

HARD BLOW FOR TROJAN OUTFIT

Coach Turner Busy Trying Out New Combinations

Norm Anderson and Reeves Getting Attention

Faced with the knowledge that Gordon Campbell, captain and stellar forward of the University of Southern California basketball team, will in all probability be unable to play again this season, Coach Les Turner began searching around last night for a new combination to throw against the Golden Bears in next week's contests. Campbell was injured in Tuesday night's encounter with Stanford, and examination of his shoulder, which was dislocated, indicates that he will not be able to get into the harness again this year.

The task is a doubly hard one. In the first place, the Trojans have gone through the season using five men. Coach Turner has followed the plan of playing his regulars straight through all games, not only on account of most of the early season battles having been tough affairs, but also because he desired to develop a smooth-running machine. He succeeded in doing just that.

LACK SUBSTITUTES

Secondly, the Trojan mentor is short of capable substitutes. Men who turned out at the first of the year gradually got downhearted at not being able to play and the U.S.C. coach now finds himself with only four extra men, none of whom is a topnotcher. Cot Rice filled in very creditably Tuesday night and was the hero of the game, but Cot played his best basketball some time ago.

Coach Turner had Rice as a player in Seattle during the big fellow's high school days, and he was one of the best tossers in the Northwest. Since that time Rice has played at Centre College and as a result is about "burned out," an athletic term for being used up. Rice is the best of the subs, but Turner seeks another change to combat the Golden Bears Tuesday and Wednesday.

MAY SHIFT HAWKINS

There are two or three alternatives open to the Trojan mentor. One is the shifting of Johnny Hawkins, guard, to forward, and the installation of Norm Anderson at Hawkins's old berth. Hawkins played center in high school and also last year. However, it is doubtful if this would greatly strengthen the locals. Anderson played as regular last year, but is slow. He knows the game well and would make a whale of a standing guard, but would not fit in too well with the rest of the speedy Trojans. The two-sport rule recently adopted at the Methodist institution makes it possible for Anderson to take part in only football and track, his favorite sports. However, this edict was aimed to hit men who are in the more strenuous events, such as the dashes and distance runs. Anderson is a weight man and special permission can undoubtedly be secured for him to play basketball.

AFTER MR. REEVES

Coach Turner hopes to get two or three new men out immediately. One is Reeves, a senior, who reported for practice early in the season, but since then has been playing with the Sheetz Mission Candy club. That outfit has disbanded, and Reeves, who is a forward, would be a very welcome addition to the Trojan aggregation. Johnny Hunter is also eligible, and may turn out. He hurt his knee early in the year and had given up the game.

At any rate the Trojan mentor must do something and do it quick, for the Golden Bears will be here within three days, and the winning or losing of the Coast championship depends on the ingenuity of the U.S.C. skipper. It's a tough blow to lose Campbell when everything pointed to a championship team, but many a coach knows just how Turner feels.

OBSERVATIONS BY BYSTANDER

showing flashes of form that indicated complete superiority.

It is a little early in the year to begin making wild predictions about Snodgrass and Westbrook and it is certainly unreasonable to expect them to set the world on fire in their first year of competition together but there is every reason to believe that right now they are capable of trimming any team on the Coast with the exception of the Johnston-Griffin and Kinsey Brothers combinations and it wouldn't be terribly surprising to see the locals upset those veteran pairs.

Announcement that Occidental College is to send a team to the eastern relay carnivals will arouse considerable interest in view of the success which has always accompanied the invasions of local teams. Back in the days of Boyd Comstock at U. S. C. the Trojans went back to the Penn relays with Howard Drew, Ben Ward, etc., and cleaned things up. Redlands, with a sensational four-man one-mile team, did exceptionally well for two years at the Penn event and two years ago Occidental won all honors in its class at Drake. The Tigers have good material this year and ought to do well.

PETE SCHNEIDER VERNON HOLD-OUT

Pete Schneider, who led the Vernon baseball team in batting last season with an average of .360, thinks his owners don't realize his true worth and is reported to be holding out for an increase in salary. Pete is a great swatter, specializing in two-baggers and home-run clouts.

GOLF GOSSIP

BY CHARLES WEST

After trailing most of the other women's teams in interclub competition, the San Gabriel Country Club players came to life yesterday with a victory over Hollywood, 5 points to 4, on the Mission links. Mrs. Rex Taylor and Miss Anne Webster turned in 3 points for Hollywood in the first match, defeating Mrs. Hillman and Mrs. C. W. Cook. Mrs. J. F. Clark and Mrs. George Laubersheimer retaliated by winning first nine, second nine and match from Mrs. Horan and Miss Ruth Killian, while Mrs. Sheppard and Miss Murray won the deciding match from Mrs. R. J. Breed and Mrs. A. C. Lillie of Hollywood, 2 to 1.

The standing of the women's teams follows:

Club—	Played.	Points.
Midwick	5	20½
Los Angeles	4	20½
Brentwood	4	20
Hillcrest	4	15½
Hollywood	4	14
California	3	9½
San Gabriel	5	13½
Wilshire	5	4½

SOUTHPAW EVENT

The southpaws will have their innings next week at the Los Angeles Country Club when some four dozen golfers who swing from the wrong side will be out competing for the Pacific Coast left-handed title. Players from up and down the Coast have sent in their entries, the list of fifty men comprising some of the best southpaws who ever swung a club.

Qualifying rounds in the tournament will be played Monday, with match play being scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. All play will be over the south course at the Los Angeles Country Club.

D. Scott Chisholm, who is handling the event, waxes enthusiastic when talking of the mob of low scorers who will play, including some from Boise, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, San Diego and more from Southern California clubs. San Francisco will be represented by Paul T. Carroll of the Olympic Club, C. W. Stoines of the Presidio Club and R. M. Finn and S. F. Holmore of the Mill Valley Country Club, while Frank O'Keefe, a real star, has sent in his entry from San Jose.

MORE STARS

Jack Frost will come down from Ojai, and Santa Barbara will be represented by J. D. Burnham and T. R. Palmer. From San Diego are coming Capt. Thomas Sharp and Admiral A. H. Robertson, officers of the naval air service station, while the list of competitors from closer to the scene of activities includes Arthur Letts, Jr., A. L. Cheney, Curt Rosenthal, J. A. Burke, Aman Moore, Walter Hunter, Dr. E. R. Campbell, E. N. Wright, Dr. Angus Cameron, James Woods, Sterling A. Lines, F. W. Converse, Dr. L. N. Rudy, L. Bixby, C. C. Simpson, C. E. Wolfendon, I. L. Merritt, S. F. Mallette, Frank Hunter, D. P. Lockhart, J. A. Burke, Walter Hunter, Dan Jones and Taylor Curtis, in addition to Scotty Chisholm, whose chief bid to fame is that he eliminated Jack Neville in the State championships at Del Monte several years ago.

There is one player from whom great things are anticipated by Tommy Langdon, caddymaster at the San Gabriel Club. The player in question is Neil Miller, who shoots consistently in the low eighties, and has scored in the seventies on several occasions, making a 76 in his latest attempt. Miller is only 19 years old, and plays right or left-handed with equal ability. He is expected to figure prominently in the tournament.

INVITATION TOURNEY

Although the Montecito Country Club invitational tournament will take place in Santa Barbara Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week, the next event of local importance on the S.C.G.A. calendar will be the San Gabriel Country Club tournament, scheduled for February 27, 28, 29 and March 1. Only one day has been set aside by the tournament committee for qualifying, although plans are being made to accommodate ten flights of sixteen players each making a total of 160 competitors.

Probably over 200 golfers will tee off in the medal round, and the experience of other tournament committees has gone to prove that one day of qualifying is not enough in Southern California. The congestion in the Wilshire invitational event last summer, through an unexpectedly large entry list, resulted in the adoption of two days of qualifying by almost every other country club.

Match play will be played Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week, the finals in the first flight calling for thirty-six holes. Prizes will be awarded for the best gross and net scores made in the medal round and for the winners and runners up in each flight. The course will be open to entrants one day of the week preceding the tournament for practice.

LADIES' DAY

Today is ladies' day at the Flintridge Country Club. Feminine players from all Southern California country clubs are invited to participate in a match play against par sweepstakes on the Arroyo links.

The mixed foursomes scheduled for next Sunday at the San Gabriel Country Club have been postponed, according to Mrs. A. E. D. Trabue, chairman of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the S.C.G.A.

OXY BASEBALL HOPES BRIGHT

New Mentor Expected to Put Punch in Tigers

Seven Veterans on Hand for This Year's Team

Frosh Outfit Boasts Many Diamond Stars

Baseball has started in earnest at Occidental College. Coach Wilkie Clark, who is going to head the nine, has a very good record. Coaching the Tiger aggregation in 1911 and 1912 when they won the conference championship, he showed his superiority in the coaching game. For the last several years he has been holding the position of mentor at the University of Maine. Although he has not shown up personally as yet to take charge of practice, suits have been issued and things have begun to take on a business-like appearance.

Prospects for the varsity now look exceedingly bright. Veterans who are ready to don the orange and black suits are Tanaka, DeMandel, Lindquist, Powers, Argue, McDonald and Fulton. Tanaka, the star outfielder who played a sensational game last year, is expected to come back this season a hundred strong and will undoubtedly do his share. DeMandel and Lindquist are also out going the rounds and much is expected from them this year. Fulton, Powers, and Argue are unable to toss the ball around as yet as they are out for track but they will shown up later.

OFFER MUCH SUPPORT

From last year's frosh team the varsity will receive much support, in the persons of Hazeltine and Smith. Red Westland, a newcomer at the Tiger institution, has shown up well in practice and with a little coaching should make an A1 player. Jess Hess of the class of '25, is out bidding for the catcher's position, and will make somebody fight for that berth.

Wonderful prospects are in store for the frosh. With the best of Franklin's championship team of two years ago and of Hollywood's runner-up team of the same year they should clean up on everything in sight. With Teachout and Hitch pitchers, from Franklin, and Brobst, catcher from the same institution, they should have a battery that will compare with any in the south. From the movie town are Mishkin and Hasserot. Mishkin will fill the position of first base while Hasserot will fill a berth in the infield, where he is ranked as one of the best in the city.

TWO PUENTE STARS

From the town of Puente comes two personages who are mighty handy with the horsehide pellet. Vic Condie, who was captain of the nine of that city, can fill the place at home plate with great success. Hammersly is credited with no mean ability and is expected to make his place on the team. There are many other prospects who look good this early in the season. All in all, Occidental should be a very formidable team in baseball this year.

FRESNO FANS TO SEE "SPARRING MATCHES"

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, Feb. 14. — William Stanahan, Commissioner of Public Works, cannot make up his mind whether to allow "sparring matches" in the Civic Auditorium under the auspices of the American Legion. Under a recent city ordinance no fights but "sparring matches" alone may be held in the city, and the interpretation of this law in the light of the recent killing of a boxer in Stockton are given as the reason the commissioner pauses.

According to the legal opinion expressed to Stanahan yesterday by City Attorney Simpson, the commissioners are thoroughly protected under the law. The Legion promoter, Phil Williams, said last night: "Every man who enters the ring under my management must sign a sworn statement that he is an amateur and that he is sparring in conformity with the State law. None of those who have fought in my contests can ever swear that he was ever paid any money or given anything other than a medal of the value allowed by the State law."

VISALIA GOLFERS DEFEAT TERMINUS

In the Terminus squad were the following players: E. Goodale, C. Goodale, Perkins, Holloway, Father Stack, O. W. Carr, S. Tyson, Dequett, J. Davis, K. Perkins, H. C. Carr, C. Ginner, Jahant, Schilling, Richardson and Dr. Hicks.

WINTER BASEBALL IS ON SAD DECLINE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, Feb. 13.—Baseball fans of Imperial Valley are this week mourning the demise of the winter league which has put on a more or less desultory schedule in the last few weeks. Lack of proper support for the clubs forming the league was given as the main cause of its disintegration. Another announced reason was internal disagreement over its proper management. Scheduled games for last Sunday failed to materialize and immediately there followed the announcement that there would be no more winter league this year.

1924 Basketball Captains

Blair Gullion of Purdue is one of the best centers in the western conference. He is a quick jumper and covers the floor in a clever manner. Coach "Piggy" Lambert has had much success lately with his Boilermaker basketball teams and Blair Gullion is one of the reasons.

Johnnie Talt, fast, rangy forward of the University of California five, was chosen for the All-Pacific Coast team the last two years.

Harold Tedford of Idaho, although a guard, has the habit of outplaying and outscoring his opposing forward. Harold is another instance where, when you start getting bald, you begin to get famous. As has been said before, "Successful men come out on top."

Capt. K. Friedmann is center at Dartmouth, where they make 'em big and husky. Coach Zahn puts much faith in Friedmann as a floor coverer and point scorer.

America's Half-Milers Have Always Been Supreme, Can They Keep It Up?

BY BOYD COMSTOCK

Coach Citrus Union H. S. National champions 1919, University of Southern California, Coast champions 1913-14, Field coach Yale University 1923, Author A. G. Spalding's new series of Track and Field Books.

A. B. Helffrich of Penn State and the New York Athletic Club is in many respects another Eby. He first won the nationals in 1921, this was prior to his collegiate competition—and barring a slump in his first intercollegiate race made a fine record the following year by first winning the national collegiate championship and later by retaining his national title.

In 1923 he won the intercollegiate 880, the national collegiate 880, but lost to Watson at the national championships. Watson again defeated Helffrich in a return match, but in a third competition Helffrich regained much of his lost standing by winning a decisive victory over the Middle Westerner.

These races did much to stimulate the belief that America would be well to the front in the next games in this event, for both men apparently possess all the points that go to make up a first-class Olympic competitor.

Helffrich has another year of collegiate competition and there is no reason why he should not retain his intercollegiate title and in this event it is probable that he will have little difficulty in placing first or second in the Olympic try-outs.

STARS IN MILE RUN

Watson formerly starred in the mile run and during his collegiate competition found it comparatively easy to win from his Middle Western competitors. He has beaten Ray on several occasions, although he made a poor showing in the 1922 nationals. In this race he was beaten by Ray, Connolly and Wharton. In 1923 he gave up the longer distance and, much to the surprise of everyone, showed ability in excess of that formerly displayed in the mile. Watson has the ability to follow a fast pace—or to make it and then at the finish is able to let loose a sustained sprint that shows no signs of weakening in the last fifty yards. Ordinarily so much stamina is not accompanied by such a degree of speed, hence it is practically certain that he will either retain his title or lose it to Helffrich, the former champion.

Campbell's career has been one of "ups and downs." While still a schoolboy he won the national championships in fast time and subsequently showed flashes of rare ability. He has recently been allowed two world's records over shorter distances and his indoor performances have always been of high order. His outdoor work, however, has not been up to the standard which he first established. His best race was against Rudd in the Oxford-Cambridge vs. Yale-Harvard dual meet three years ago. In this race he upset all predictions and defeated the British champion in fast time. In 1922 he ran second to Helffrich in the nationals, but last year he could not better a fifth position at the intercollegiates, although his dual performances were fairly good.

DEPENDS ON DUO

In general it might be said that America is mainly dependent upon the efforts of Helffrich and Watson, for this year none of their competitors showed equal ability. There are, of course, several men who may show a decided improvement during the coming season, and it is more than possible that such will be the case. At all events, there are several who particularly seem to deserve this prediction.

Connelly, better known as a miler—and a very good miler—also deserted his distance last year and thereby gained a third place in the national 880. He has a world of physical stamina and for years has been a contender for first place in many competitions. Generally, such a runner will find it to his advantage to take on the longer events.

Dodge, who placed fourth in the national, is a sound performer and may be classed with Connelly in point of ability.

Buker, who placed first in the junior 880, made his reputation in the two-mile event and for years was considered to be the best in the East. He was beaten by inches in his last intercollegiate two-mile race, but always has been a high-class performer in both the mile and two-mile events. It is not likely that he will attempt this shorter distance in the Olympic try-outs.

In the intercollegiate ranks, Enck, another Penn State runner, seems best qualified to make the team. He placed second to Helffrich in the 1923 intercollegiates—his first collegiate championship—and was just beaten for a second place in the national collegiates. Enck is a strong, powerful runner and there is no reason why he should not advance rapidly, particularly as he has an opportunity to gain a great deal of experience from Helffrich, his team-mate.

Marsters of Georgetown and Conger of Princeton, intercollegiate point winners, have been running for several years. Although both of them have more than ordinary ability it is not probable that either one will advance beyond his present position. Before this year Conger was more accustomed to the longer races, therefore his sudden rise in this event was rather out of the ordinary.

MAKES GOOD TIME

Ray, the mile champion, has been able to run the half in good time but he is better equipped to handle the longer distances, therefore it is certain then he will make no attempt to enter this competition.

Brown, the 1922 intercollegiate champion, apparently has retired from active competition and the same may be said of Johnson of Princeton and Shields of Penn State, who placed second and third in the 1922 intercollegiates. All of the men mentioned were exceptional competitors—Shield's best event was the mile—and their failure to hold on until the Paris Games is to be regretted.

In the middle western collegiate ranks, Valley of Wisconsin seems to have the first call by reason of his win at the 1923 conference. He defeated in this race, Morrow of Iowa, a 1922 conference and national collegiate point winner and a probable contender and Hattendorf of Michigan, who placed second to Helffrich in the 1923 national collegiates. In this particular competition, Morrow was second; Hilberts of Wisconsin, was third; Reinke, of Michigan, fourth, with Hattendorf fifth.

In the National Collegiates, Helffrich of Penn State was first; Hattendorf was second; Enck, third; Reese, Texas, fourth; Morrow, fifth, with Reinke sixth.

Wolters of Ames, who placed first in the 1922 conference, 440 and 880 yards events is still a strong competitor. This year he abandoned the 880 for the 440 and placed second in the national championships. It follows that he has an excellent chance of showing in either event.

Higgins, of Ames, who placed second in the 1922 conference, Harrison of Purdue and Yates of Illinois, additional 1922 point winners, are worth-while competitors.

Any one of the foregoing prospects may jump into the limelight this coming season and in a single competition, create for himself an outstanding chance to make the trip to Paris. It will be noted that only a few athletes win consistently—the Helffrich type for instance—while the others take turns in the final placement. Fitch, the national 440 champion, was, up to this summer, one of three or four contenders for point honors in the Middle Western district. He made good in a single meet and gained a great deal of confidence by doing this. The same may be said of Archer, the National Junior 440-yards champion.

SIG HAUGDAHL AT ASCOT

Winner of Sunday's Dash to Meet Sensational Driver the Following Week

"The winner of next Sunday's Ascot helmet dash will be given the first chance to meet Sig Haugdahl in a match race at Ascot" was the promise George Bentel made Ralph De Palma, Fred Lickleider, Fred Horey and the other stars who have been uncorking speed at the new oval.

Bentel's announcement that he has secured Haugdahl and his 180 miles-an-hour "wonder car" to appear at Ascot on the 24th inst., created much excitement in racing circles. The Scandinavian speed king is reputed to be able to make almost unbelievable time with the car even over the smallest horse tracks. He is due to arrive Sunday night, just missing an opportunity to witness the driving of De Palma and his other rivals by a few hours. For years De Palma and Haugdahl have been unable to meet in contests owing to their driving under the banners of different organizations, and for this reason De Palma will doubtless double his efforts to cop the Ascot Helmet dash as well as the Frank Chance Sweepstakes on Sunday.

Ralph Hepburn is still behind the time of Gene Walker in practice time for the five-mile national championship Sunday. Walker is also leading Jim Davis and Ray Weishaar who look to be, with Hepburn, the class of the field which will oppose him in the titular event.

Eddie Meyers, Redlands driver, and holder of track records up to ten miles, will be seen at the wheel of his new car on Sunday, having nominated a Rajo Special as his mount. Meyers and Fred Frame, old rivals for honors on the San Luis Obispo speedway, will renew their feud when the field lines up in the Pasadena stakes. Art Davidson, who carries the colors of Louis and Arthur Chevrolet, will also have a new mount, a new Fronty having been received from the factory at Indianapolis.

An appeal to the contest board of the I. M. C. A. by "Pop" Evans of Glendale, resulted in a reversal of the decision of Vice-Chairman Huff Dorward barring the veteran because of his age. "Pop" wired the County Clerk at Dallas, Tex., and received a reply stating that he was not 60 years of age as had been reported to Dorward. So the "Pop Geers" of the gasoline world will be seen at the wheel of his Glendale Special next Sunday.

EDDIE ROBERTS IS MATCHED WITH DUDLEY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SEATTLE, Feb. 14.—Eddie Roberts, Tacoma welterweight, who fought several bouts in California a few months ago, will box Young Dudley of Oakland in a main event here Tuesday. The contest will be one of a series of welterweight matches Seattle promoters have been staging in an effort to decide the Pacific Coast welterweight champions. Roberts won a close decision from Dudley in Tacoma several weeks ago.

COUPLE FACING FRAUD CHARGE

Egyptian Prince and Society Matron Go to Court

Engagement News Followed by Paris Sensation

Sale of Necklace to Danish Counsel Has Sequel

BY HENRY WALES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Feb. 14.—Mrs. Jean Nash and Prince Ahmed Sabit of Egypt were haled into court here yesterday, two days after the American beauty had created a sensation by announcing her engagement to the Prince, to face charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Six months ago the Prince needed money. He was in Smyrna with Mrs. Nash, who lent her celebrated high-society manner to him for the afternoon while she tried to borrow $10,750 from the Danish Consul. She got the money, but she gave up a diamond necklace containing two large turquoises—a present from the Prince.

Mrs. Nash took the jewels off her neck and gave them to the Danish Consul, asserting that the Prince's estimate of its value was correct.

The Dane turned up in Paris and is suing both parties for fraud, but the affair is further complicated by affidavits of the Princess Ahmed Sabit, now in Cairo, asserting that her husband stole the necklace and that it really belonged to her family.

Mrs. Nash denies everything except that the Prince gave her the necklace.

Like her other appearances, her visit to court yesterday gave her an opportunity to wear clothes like the spring showing of a costumer and pose before rows of cameras to keep up her well-known "best-dressed-woman-in-London" label. She handed over enough jewels to pay her bail and left for Monte Carlo tonight.

TUT STYLES WOULD GIVE OLD BOY FIT

Professor Asserts Queens of Ancient Egypt Didn't Dress That Way at All

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—If Old King Tut should climb out of his gilded tomb and take a stroll among modern females he'd get a headache trying to figure out what the 1924 "ancient Egyptian" styles are all about.

"They're all wrong," Prof. T. G. Alles of the oriental institute of the University of Chicago confided to the co-eds today. "If a woman in Egypt 3200 years ago had dressed in what they now call "King Tut styles" her friends probably would have tossed her in the Nile."

The noted Egyptologist said the fault lay with the ancient artists, who were more or less like the futurists of today and conventionalized their pictures and sculptures.

"The women in Egypt in that day were not built with right angles and they were not muscle-bound, as the old friezes showing them doing the kind of goose-step indicate," Prof. Alles said, "and the women didn't wear bizarre colors and grotesque designs.

LONGEVITY INCREASES BRITISH PENSION LOAD

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Longevity has put a crimp in the British budget. The low mortality, according to the most accurate tables, has required additional appropriations of $500,000,000 to meet the old age pensions for the fiscal year. Supplementary estimates, totaling $40,000,000, include an additional $14,000,000 for foot and mouth disease, $15,000,000 for railway building in Kenya and more money to assist the Northern Irish government, bringing the total help for the year there to $5,000,000.

URGES QUIZ ON BREAD PROFITS

La Follette Asked to Seek Congressional Action

People's Service Director Charges Profiteering

Submits Report to Several Other Progressives

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Recommendation that the Senate adopt a resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to report the profits of all baking and milling companies as disclosed by their tax returns from 1918 to the present time is made in a report submitted today by Basil H. Manly, director of the People's Legislative Service, to Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, chairman of the organization.

The report, said to have been submitted also to other progressive Senators and Representatives, "as outlined in a letter from Mr. Manly to Senator La Follette, charged that as a result of outrageous profiteering the American people are now paying more than $1,000,000 a day too much for their bread."

URGES THOROUGH QUIZ

The report also recommended a "thorough and searching investigation by the appropriate Senate committee of the tribute levied by wheat speculators, grain elevators, railroads, millers, jobbers, bakers and retailers from the time the wheat leaves the farm until it reaches the dinner table in the form of bread."

Whereas the price of wheat on the farm, the report said, had declined to 93 cents a bushel last September, or 55 per cent since 1917, the average retail price of bread of 8.7 cents a pound represented a decline of only 5.4 per cent, the "deflation of wheat being ten times as great as the deflation of bread." Labor cost figures were cited to show that high wages were not responsible for the present level of bread prices.

Asserting that as a result of present prices the average per capita consumption of bread in the United States is forty-four loaves a year less than it was during pre-war years, the report declared this had contributed seriously to "farm bankruptcy" by reducing wheat consumption.

"UNCONSCIONABLE PROFITS"

The financial reports of baking corporations disclose "unconscionable profits," the report said, while retailers also were declared to be exacting margins from two to four times as great as before the war.

While the large flour milling corporations were said to claim their profits were reduced because the "baking combinations demanded flour at unreasonably low prices," by offsetting this condition through charging high prices to the general public they, too, the report charged, were "piling up huge profits."

Ousted by Kin, Woman Takes to Rag Refuge

NEW YORK, Feb. 14. — Too frightened by the environment of a police station to talk, Mrs. Marie Stern, an elderly, apparently refined woman, cowered in the matron's room at Stagg-street station, Brooklyn, while police attempted to locate relatives in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Stern, half-starved, was found huddling beneath several old burlap bags and newspapers in the hallway of a tenement at Manhattan avenue and Stagg street, Brooklyn.

She hesitatingly told Policeman John Reuckert that she had lost her job as a piece worker in a New York factory and then had been evicted from her furnished room because she had no money. Her children in Philadelphia did not want her to live with them, she said.

Reuckert wrapped her in his overcoat and took her to a near-by restaurant, where a hot meal enabled her to recover from exposure.

In the first ice cream parlor the dusky skinned confectioner had to show the freezer and test his wares before the skepticism of the prospective consumer was appeased.

WITHIN four years it is said that this country will consume half a billion gallons a year....of ICE CREAM as a food as well as a dessert.

Remember your first piece of "pie a la mode?" Not so very long ago, at that.

Today Americans eat 350,000,000 gallons—and in 1922 CRESCENT, and 2,672 other makers, sold 161,000,000 gallons or 13,000,000 more than in 1921.

ELECTRIC CARGO SHIP LAUNCHED

First to Have Magnetic Control Machinery

M. S. Cubore Built by Bethlehem Company

To Carry Ore from Southern Ports to Baltimore

The M. S. Cubore, first cargo ship to be fully equipped with automatic magnetic control deck machinery, left the Sparrows Point plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company at Baltimore yesterday for her sea trials. Because of the wide interest in the unique equipment of this ship, many persons prominent in naval architecture and shipbuilding are on board.

The Cubore, 450 feet long and with a deadweight tonnage of 10,500, is owned by the Ore Steamship Company and will be used to carry ore from Cuba and South American ports to Baltimore. She is the first vessel to be equipped with the new type Bethlehem Diesel engine, an outgrowth of the gas engine the Bethlehem company has built for many years.

ELECTRICALLY OPERATED

All auxiliaries are electrically operated by General Electric marine type motors and control and the only steam on the ship is used for heating purposes. Three 100-kilowatt direct current generators, driven by three Diesel engines, supply all the power necessary for the auxiliaries, which include a 75-horsepower motor for the windlass, eight 50-horsepower motors for the mooring winches, six 25-horsepower motors for the cargo winches, the lighting system and all engine room auxiliaries. One generator only is required to supply this power except when the ship is in port, loading or discharging cargo, when two generators will handle the load.

The engine room equipment is of the most modern type. The pumps, which are of the centrifugal or rotary type depending on the service, and the auxiliary air compressors which are entirely automatic in their action, are operated by General Electric Company marine type inclosed ventilated motors.

MOORING WINCHES

The automatic mooring winches, required on ore boats operating in South American waters where in most cases they are loaded while anchored to buoys rather than tied to docks, are something entirely new. They were designed and manufactured by the General Electric Company and Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company. These are so constructed that, without manual attention, they will pay out and take in the mooring ropes as the boat is moved about the swells of the sea or other conditions. They will automatically keep the ropes taut at all times.

Cargo winches are ordinarily used to open and close the hatch covers but are fitted to handle cargo when occasions require. With this in view the control on the Cubore is of the latest magnetic type which is being universally used by the leading manufacturers in this country and abroad.

TIME SAVED

The magnetic control winches will result in handling the cargo in from 15 to 20 per cent less time, engineers of the General Electric Company declare. Instead of the drum type controllers, now commonly used to feed electric power to the motors, which many times are over and damage the contact tips when operated too slowly and generally result in the circuit breaker being thrown when operated too fast, the magnetic type controller is declared absolutely fool proof. Neither of the conditions mentioned above can occur. Regardless of the speed the magnetic controller is operated, the power is automatically fed to the motors at the proper ratio.

The Cubore, following her trial trip, is scheduled to leave in a few days for Cuba for a cargo of ore and the data on her first actual trip will be awaited with keen interest by shipbuilding companies.

Poincare Past Second Step in Fight on Taxes

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PARIS, Feb. 14.—Premier Poincare successfully passed through the second stage of his contest in the Parliament for new taxes today when the Chamber of Deputies rejected by a majority of 89, a Socialist motion that would have killed the proposition.

The Premier followed this up by obtaining the defeat of an amendment providing for a loan with lottery features. The government made the vote on this amendment a question of confidence and the question was beaten by 328 to 217. The Socialist motion, which was to separate from the taxation bill its third article, which provides for a 20 per cent increase in taxes, was beaten by 301 to 212.

Debt Plans to be Studied by Funding Board

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Secretary Mellon today called the Debt Funding Commission to meet Monday when the whole question of policy with respect to future dealings with the foreign debtors will be considered.

While declining to discuss in detail the subjects to be taken up by the commission, Secretary Mellon admitted that strong pressure was being exerted in many quarters to remind the foreign powers owing to the United States a total of about seven billion dollars, that the commission awaited any funding offers they might make.

Some of the commission members are known to favor definite steps toward resumption of funding negotiations but others hold that such a move might not be wise.

HUNTED MAN LOCATED BY BLOOD PATH

Alleged Bandit, Bullet in Leg, Trailed to Old Barn by Police Officer

Following a trail of blood that started at an oil station at Ventura Boulevard and Louise street, Van Nuys, shortly after midnight yesterday, Detective Lieutenant Langdon of the San Fernando Police Division soon after daylight discovered Dan Ryan with a bullet wound in the right leg hiding in an old barn at Ventura Boulevard and Woodley street.

Ryan, Langdon reported, is the bandit who attempted to hold up G. P. Reed, proprietor of the oil station at Ventura Boulevard and Louise street, shortly after midnight, but wh obtained, instead of money, a piece of lead from Mr. Reed's six-shooter. Ryan, the police state, attempted the hold-up just as Mr. Reed was counting the day's proceeds.

As a preliminary to this procedure Mr. Reed had placed his revolver on a shelf next to the cash register. Suddenly the bandit drove into the station, hopped out and ordered Mr. Reed to "stick 'em up." But instea dof complying with the bandit's demand Mr. Reed stepped back, picked up his weapon, and opened fire.

The bandit backed out of the door, firing his own revolver. None of the bullets from the robber's gun, however, struck Mr. Reed. But Mr. Reed proved a better shot than his attacker. As the latter climbed into his automobile, one of the bullets from Mr. Reed's gun struck the bandit in the leg. Though wounded the man succeeded in making his escape.

Apparently the hold-up man left the auto soon after he had driven away from the oil station, for it was but a short distance down the road that Detective Lieutenant Langdon stated he picked up the trail of blood, and finally discovered Ryan in the barn minue his revolver. The police believe that Ryan gave an anonymous name. He was booked at the Hollywood police station on suspicion of robbery.

Meeting Called to Discuss Plan for Auditorium

The project of a municipal auditorium for Los Angeles will be discussed at a meeting called by the Civic Music and Art Association the evening of the 27th inst. at Chickering Hall in the Southern California Music Company Building.

This meeting will be attended by representatives of prominent civic, social and musical organizations, which have appointed representatives on the Citizens' Auditorium Advisory Committee to co-operate with the Civic Music and Art Association.

Matters of location, cost and the method to be pursued in promoting a campaign for this project will be discussed at this meeting and a definite plan of procedure probably adopted.

Ben F. Pearson, president of the Civic Music and Art Association, states that the organization of which he is the official head feels that the auditorium project is one which should be freely discussed and that every organization in the community should have a voice in regard to the working out of the details. Organizations which are not as yet represented on the citizens' committee are cordially invited to communicate with the office of the Civic Music and Art Association, 501 Bullard Block, telephone Metropolitan 5200, station 26.

Husband Says Fortune Killed Love of Mate

The good ship mtarimony manned by A. V. Curby and his wife, Kate, managed to stem the tides of the marital seas until the wife inherited a fortune, and then came the deluge, according to a suit for divorce filed yesterday by Curby.

In 1913, sixteen years after their marriage, Mrs. Curby came into a legacy bequeathing her money and property valued at $100,000, Curby said. Thereafter Mrs. Curby began to hold him up to contempt and ridicule because he was not wealthy, Curby asserted, adding that in the meantime he was having a desperate struggle on his hands in trying to save money he had invested in Mexican lands.

Mrs. Curby was also declared to have rented out the family home, she and her daughter moving into a downtown hotel. The husband said she suggested that he rent a room for $5 or $10 a month.

COURSE TO BE HIGHEST IN WORLD

Bear Valley Golf Links to be Best and at High Elevation

The construction of an eighteen-hole golf course at an altitude of 7000 feet, which, authorities declare, will be the highest in the world, is part of an extensive plan of development at Big Bear Estates in Bear Valley, according to Miller, sales manager.

The land on which Big Bear Estates is located lies in the heart of the valley and includes the Shay & Barker ranch, which has been operated for a number of years by Will Shay and C. O. Barker, pioneer cattlemen. The land was the original "Lucky" Baldwin estate and was purchased by Mr. Shay and Mr. Barker in 1914. At Doble, north of Baldwin Lake, near Big Bear Estates, gold was discovered in the early sixties. Here "Lucky" Baldwin made the beginning of his large fortune, naming the location after Buck Doble, the jockey.

At the time of the gold rush the population rose to such numbers that it was thought advisable to move the county seat of San Bernardino county to Bear Valley. Entrance to the valley in those days was by the desert—the road which still remains as an all-year-round route.

ACTOR DIES WITH HERO OF FICTION

John Byrne, Veteran Film Miner, at End of Trial as He Reads Story

John Byrne, 62 years of age, who acted the part of the sour-dough and the desert miner in many film productions, yesterday came to the "end of the trail" on the forty-first page of a popular magazine.

Preliminary investigation of the death of the aged character actor did not divulge to the police whether Byrne had intentionally ended his life or if death was due to an accident. His body was found lying fully clothed in his room in a rooming-house at 509 Temple street. The hose connecting the gas jet in the room with a small heater had either been accidentally kicked loose or was pulled loose with suicidal intent. No note or other means of informative communication was found to indicate suicide. Death came, apparently, as Byrne lay on his bed reading the magazine. A motionless finger marked the last paragraph on page forty-one of the periodical. Stranger than the fiction he was reading was the coincidence in the last line of the last paragraph. The words used in this line by the author of the story were, "And so, with the same old cheery smile on his sun-cracked lips, Sagebrush Jim came to the end of the trail."

Byrne's real name is believed to have been John McGuire. He is said to have a brother, H. McGuire, living in San Jose. The body was removed to the Alvarez & Moore undertaking establishment.

JAPANESE MARRIAGE INVOLVED

Seek Establishment of Children's Birth; Records Prove Puzzling

"A Complication of Marriages" might be the title of the little drama played in Judge Ira F. Thompson's department of Superior Court.

Heisaburo Kawakita appeared at the hearing of his petition to establish proof of birth of his two eldest children, Kimi and Hanako. According to the petition Heisaburo and his wife were married in Japan, January 2, 1907, but examination of his passport showed he went to Hawaii in 1900.

The petition was then amended to read that the marriage took place under the laws of Japan September 22, 1905. The husband at that time was in San Francisco and his bride, Suma Yamamoto, was in Japan. On this Judge Thompson ruled that he could not admit its validity as a picture-bride marriage under the laws of Japan cannot be recognized by the court.

The petitioner then testified that they were remarried in San Francisco under American law January 14, 1906, but that the records of this ceremony were destroyed in the fire there.

The case was continued by the court until such time as the petitioners could establish better proof of the validity of their marriage. Failing in this the children of the couple will not be allowed American citizenship.

EXTEND PARKING BAN

Officials to Prohibit Machines on West Sixteenth Street

Parking of vehicles on West Sixteenth street between Hill street and Figueroa street will be prohibited hereafter mornings and evenings and evening and only forty-five-minute parking will be permitted during the remainder of the day under an emergency ordinance unanimously adopted by the City Council yesterday and which becomes effective today.

The street is a narrow one with heavy street-car traffic, and traffic tie-ups and blockades are of common occurrence, the police department told the Council in requesting the ordinance. Parking will be prohibited from 7 a.m. until 9 a.m. and from 4 p.m. until 6:15 p.m. Between those hours parking will be limited to forty-five minutes.

Any opposition that may have been started in opposition for an uninstructed delegation, possibly to support Coolidge in the end. Considerable interest attaches to the move through the undercurrent that United States Senator-elect H. L. Cameron wishes to head the Arizona delegation to Cleveland as well, to be a member of the Republican National Committee from Arizona. Four years ago he had been a candidate for the place of national committeeman, but it went to Dwight Heard, publisher, and Andrew M. Kelly, who is reported desirous of retiring for another term.

Prospective candidates for governor Gov. Thomas Campbell, who, however, is opposed to the Prescott publisher, Dwight B. Heard, publisher of the Phoenix Republican, and Harry C. Furl, vice-president of the Coolidge Club. All are for Coolidge.

The Change in Chains

Fashions do not always change just to be changing. There is often a very common-sense reason for their doing so.

For example, years ago it was the fashion in men's watch chains to fasten one end to the watch and hook the other in a buttonhole.

But the mode for a generation past has been to have the watch at one end and some useful little article like a gold pocket knife, pencil or cigar cutter at the other end. You will find a variety of such chains, both in platinum and gold, in our Men's Jewelry Department.

REFORMATION IN NEW YORK SEEN

Golden Rule Society Plans Conversion Drive

Promoter Seeking Help of Congressmen

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—"Look at yourself in the glass of transformation;
Be guided by the measurements of the Golden Rule."
—William Goodall Taylor.

Within the next few weeks New York City will be in the midst of a campaign.

Strange are its objects; unique the principles which will be applied.

If successful there will be a wet blanket thrown over the fires of sin, crime will cease, divorces will be no more, political parties will no longer be divided, but this great big metropolitan city will be transformed into the birthplace of the millenium.

The Golden Rule Society, which started out to accomplish the education needed to make everyone "do to others as he would be done by," has announced its plans to convert New York to its creed.

TAYLOR OUTLINES PLAN

William Goodall Taylor, a kindly man, with love for everyone in his heart, beamed with benignity as he outlined his campaign. He left for Washington, where he is to see several Senators, and also will broadcast a "Golden Rule" message from that city. Upon his return he will begin a drive for memberships.

The purpose of the "Golden Rule Society" is to promote harmony in human relationships through the application of the Golden Rule to everyday human problems, industrial, commercial, political, social, domestic, community, national and international.

Members can bring their troubles, either marital or from any other source, business can avoid strikes and depressions through the aid of the society's advice. States and nations can have the benefit of the experience of others.

MOVEMENT SPREADING

"The necessity for drastic laws like the Eighteenth Amendment will be avoided," said Mr. Taylor. "People will be taught to dominate their own natures, so that the ill-feeling arising from the edict of government over a person's happiness can be prevented.

"As far as the prohibition amendment goes, it should be enforced, because it is a part of the law of the nation, but I firmly believe that education is better than prohibition."

The Golden Rule Association was organized in this city in 1919, and was removed to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and has since spread to all parts of the country.

"The effort to convert New York to its teachings will be persistent and intensive," said Mr. Young.

GANNA WALSKA SAILS SATURDAY FOR FRANCE

OPERA SINGER FINDS AMERICA COLD TO HER GENIUS; PARIS WARMER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Ganna Walska is going to sail for France Saturday on the Berengaria. She is going to Paris where she will make preparations at the Theater Des Champs Elysees which her husband, Harold F. McCormick, bought for her, for a Mozart festival in which she is to appear in June.

Her season in this country has not been a brilliant one. The Wagernian Opera Company which she helped support when it was in pecuniary difficulties, permitted her to sing in some of its productions, under an assumed name, but the company has broken up, many of its members having to work their passage back to Europe. In general, she found the United States cold to her "genius."

"I am going back to warm-hearted Paris," said Mme. Ganna Walska yesterday.

PROPERTY BOUGHT

October of 1923 the purchase of the property from Adolph Ramish, who had acquired it from the school board some months previously, was announced by Mr. Blumenthal. The purchase price, according to the announcement made at that time, was in excess of $2,500,000. Mr. Blumenthal, at the time announcement of the purchase was made, disclosed his plans for the erection of the present improvements, and these plans have been followed in detail.

The two office buildings, one at each end of the arcade, occupy a frontage on Broadway and on Spring street of 150 feet, while the length of the arcade, from Broadway to Spring, is 300 feet. Each of the office buildings contains 340 offices, with unobstructed outside exposures for air and ventilation. Light for the stores, which line both sides of the great central corridor, and for the two upper tiers of stores above the ground floor, is furnished by a great dome, built entirely of glass. Powerful rotary fans furnish ventilation for the arcade section of the structure.

Throughout, the building is finished in hardwood, ornamental iron, bronze and marble, while the interior of the arcade and the store fronts are artistically finished with mural designs. Signs in the arcade will be of uniform size and design.

Each of the office buildings is served by three high-speed elevators, while the arcade shops are served by a special battery of elevators, and by the stairways of the main office buildings at either end. The second and third floor shops of the arcade section are connected with an ornamental bridge, midway between the office buildings.

RENAISSANCE DESIGN

The type of architecture employed follows the Italian Renaissance design. The two office buildings are faced on the exterior with granite and terra cotta, while the great entrance archways to the central arcade are of Spanish Renaissance design, elaborately ornamented in terra cotta.

Title to the old Mercantile Place was taken by the Blumenthal syndicate early in January of last

First Arcade Erected Over Century Ago

Of interest in connection with the opening of the new Arcade Building, Kenneth MacDonald, Jr., the architect who designed the structure, has unearthed the fact that the first arcade building in the world was erected in London during the reign of King George, the Third, more than 130 years ago.

This structure, known as the Burlington Arcade, runs through from Piccadilly to Burlington street. It is 250 feet long and only thirty-five feet wide, including the stores.

FACTS, FIGURES GIVEN

A series of interesting facts and stupendous figures concerning the new Mercantile Arcade Building has been compiled by Kenneth MacDonald, Jr., architect, who designed the structure.

The area of the site is 38,500 square feet.

Total floor space of building is 301,000 square feet.

There are 350 offices and sixty-one shops in the combined structures.

It is the largest arcade building in the United States and the only one of its kind west of Cleveland, O.

Two thousand tons of structural steel were used.

The building contains 4,550,000 cubic feet.

It is equipped with nine high-speed elevators.

The building has a frontage on Spring and Broadway of 150 feet and is 325 feet long.

The arcade itself is 325 feet long, 45 feet wide and 50 feet high.

There are 1200 windows and 1100 doors.

Excavation required removal of 38,000 cubic yards of dirt.

It contains 140,000 square yards of plastering and 45,000 square feet of glass and 260,000 feet of lumber.

It was constructed in nine months and contains two office buildings of twelve stories above ground and two below, with three-story arcade joining structures.

CITY WELCOMES ARCADE AS A DREAM COME TRUE

Broadway Edifice Solves Problems of Small Shops and Conjures Neighborly Atmosphere

BY OLIVE GRAY

Long has commercial Los Angeles cherished the dream of a great arcade and today, in the completion of the Mercantile Arcade, that vision is realized. Those who, in eastern and in European cities, have experienced the delight of shopping in arcades know what it is to pass pleasant hours safely shut away from rain or storm, from heat or cold. Even in our California there are such days and then also there is the coziness of that shut-within feeling which makes for the confidential, for reliance upon those who offer wares.

One can fancy telling one's shopping likes and dislikes quite freely to someone vending merchandise in a little shop similar to a room in a home, and after all, such a relationship—that of frankness — between buyer and seller is the ideal one to be established.

The practical side to the arcade is that here the smaller shops may find harbor well within the radius of the downtown district. Long has this been needed, since high rents preclude such shops from living in the conquested centers under ordinary conditions.

SHOPS COMMODIOUS

The shops of the Mercantilue Arcade are commodious, without exacting too much room for modest rental. Others there are within this generous structure which may be divided to house several nonconflicting enterprises, to the benefit of all.

The general decorative scheme throughout the Arcade lends itself to beautification of the shops which will be framed, as in a picture, by the soft silvery blues and modulated reds of walls and tilings. Inside the frame, each shop may devise its own decorative effects, lending individuality without conflict with the general color plan, whose unassertiveness is one of the considerate features.

The true spaciousness of the building cannot be fully realized until one stands on the bridge at the third floor level, when the immensity of the structure is borne in upon the eye and the almost stellar spaces speak to the mind.

The area of the shops extends from the main floor to the third, inclusive, the upper being served by adequate elevator service. The main or street aisles will be treated like the shops upon any city block, save that the close relationship will make toward mutual benefits.

FEATURES OF INTEREST

Many of these shops are related to shops or stores elsewhere in the city; some are new; all will possess special features of interest.

For example, Crane's Arcade Barber Shop is equipped with special chairs and mirror cases, individual service giving to each a clean hair brush and lather, brush and comb, contained in a paraffined sack. Special manicure service for men and for women will be given by this shop in quarters on the balcony, the main-floor shop being for general patronage. Phone appointments will make for time-saving to clients. Immaculate cleanliness is the slogan of this shop.

Desmond's Men's Arcade Shop will be used at present for housing hats and haberdashery of this well-known store, and later, when Desmond's great new store on Broadway near Sixth is completed, the Arcade shop will be maintained for convenience of those patrons in and near the present Spring-street location, being equipped with the full Desmond line of clothing and furnishings for men.

See's Candy Shop, specializing in fine home-made candies, will open here the sixth of its battery of candy shops, others being located at convenient places through the city.

MERCANTILE ARCADE BUILDING LOS ANGELES CALIFORNIA

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Los Angeles, Cal.,
February 12, 1924.

Mr. Reese Llewellyn, President,
Llewellyn Iron Works,
Los Angeles, Cal.

My dear Mr. Llewellyn:

At this time upon the occupation of our quarters in the new Arcade Buildings, it seems appropriate that I should say to you in writing just how the directors of the Mercantile Arcade Realty Company feel about the manner in which the steel work was handled in the construction of these buildings.

From the time the first girder was placed until the completion of the entire steel skeleton, I have never witnessed in my own experience such efficient service and such speed in erection. This was particularly emphasized by the fact that there were no accidents or mishaps of any kind during the process of this difficult piece of work.

Concerning the elevators, which we also purchased from your firm, although we knew at the time we were buying the highest-priced and most modern elevator equipment in the market, the result you have obtained in safety, speed and control, with surprising cheapness of operation, is unparalleled within my knowledge.

We congratulate you and ourselves upon both of these jobs which were so well handled and delivered ahead of the contract time.

Every member of your organization who helped in the performance of this work is to be highly commended and congratulated.

Very truly yours,

A. C. Blumenthal

Millions Invested in Local Property by Outside Capital

SHOWS FAITH IN FUTURE OF CITY

Firm's Deals Reach Total of Seventy-five Millions

Seventh and Broadway Lease First Transaction

Interest of Outside Capital Easily Aroused

About two years ago A. C. Blumenthal, San Francisco real estate broker, began to wonder at the tales of prosperity and real estate development in Los Angeles and decided to investigate. As a result of his investigation his investments and transactions in local realty since opening operations here have totaled more than $75,000,000.

Mr. Blumenthal attributes the success of his ventures here to his ability to see into the future. On the first business trip here with any serious intentions of getting into the local field he felt that real estate was far underpriced. Accordingly he opened an office and got busy.

"Adolph Ramish had just bought Mercantile Place, the site of our newest skyscraper, as a result of negotiations with Loew for a theater," said Mr. Blumenthal in discussing his advent to Los Angeles. "He got into a scrap with his principal, but in a week was offered several hundred thousand dollars profit on his buy.

"Then I became interested in finding a theater site for Loew and picked out the corner of Seventh and Broadway. The price on that for a ninety-nine-year lease was $125,000 a year.

"I scheduled the rents of the building to be put up at figures I thought the merchants would stand and was laughed at for my prices. So I opened an office here and settled down to demonstrate my figures.

PAYS LARGE RETURN

"We put up the building and it cost $1,000,000 more than we expected and at that it pays $680,000 a year, which I think is the record return for the country on a similiar edifice.

"I was so convinced about the city I talked my head off to capitalists. I induced Mortimer Fleischhacker of San Francisco to built on an L-shaped lot at Seventh and Hill that I got for $425,000 and $675,000 for the building. He has refused a profit of $750,000 for that investment.

"You people in Los Angeles have boosted the climate, the fact that you can shop here every day in the year and all day, that you have cheap water and cheap power, oil for fuel, a back country that produces millions and millions, a motion-picture industry that would make a good sized city alone, and good labor conditions. You have known all these things but haven't cashed in on them.

GETS OUTSIDE CAPITAL

"It was my good fortune to see that all that had been said about Los Angeles was true and that half had not been told.

"So I went to work on capital in San Francisco, New York, Chicago, and other places. I found it eager to jump in here if given an opportunity. It was up to me to find the chances and I did.

"There was no mystery about out. All that was needed was money to buy with and develop with."

The building of the new Arcade Building marks the completion of Mr. Blumenthal's biggest project to date—the erection of the city's biggest skyscraper and the largest arcade building in the world.

NEW CHARTER INDORSED

The Greater Los Angeles Improvement Council indorsed the proposed new city charter, at its regular meeting this week and urged all improvement associations to work in favor of the charter. The improvement council also indorsed the alternative proposition, which will be voted upon separately from the charter, providing for a City Council of fifteen members to be elected, one each, from fifteen different districts.

Among the principal tenants in this building is the S. W. Straus Company, which financed the construction of the Arcade Building. The Straus Company has taken the entire second floor of the Spring-street edifice.

The Broadway Arcade Building will be used as a general office building, occupied by tenants engaged in many kinds of work. The ehtire twelfth floor of the Broadway Arcade has been leased by Milton M. Cohen and Herbert E. Cronenweth.

Judge Bledsoe Defines Patriot in Club Speech

Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe of the United States District Court, speaking before the Proximo Club yesterday, declared that those malcontents who complain about the government and the Constitution are less dangerous to the social order than the men in better circumstances, whose ungoverned appetites inspire them to actions that tend to destroy the effectiveness of and respect for government.

"The open and obvious desire of such men is to disregard the mandates of the Constitution, and when the mandates of the law are not respected the government loses its power to function," said Judge Bledsoe.

The speaker defined the true patriot as the man who studies out the needs of his community and country, who seeks to establish justice for all men and who determines to do that which he knows is right, regardless of the opinions of others, and of sacrifice of his own personal feelings and desires.

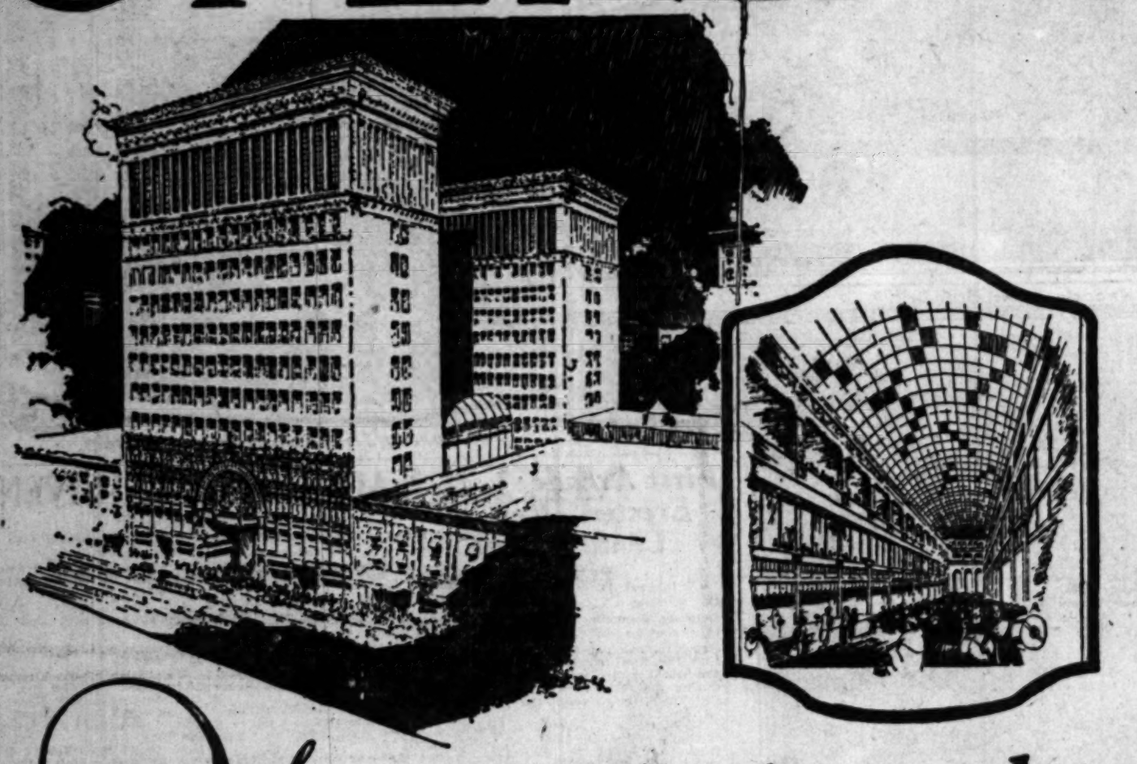
"Such a patriot was Woodrow Wilson," said Judge Bledsoe. "And such a patriot was Abraham Lincoln, who, to my mind, is the outstanding figure on the horizon of time. However, one does not need to be intellectually great in order to be great in character and to have his life shine out with a light of hope and inspiration to his fellow men. After all, that which most differentiates men is the quality of their character."

A special welcome was accorded yesterday to E. A. Bunker, prominent member of the Proximo Club, who for the last four years had not attended a meeting on account of illness. R. D. Richards, president of the club, announced that the speaker next Thursday will be Rev. C. C. Pierce, who will discuss "The Japanese Question."

CANADIAN RECEPTION

A reception and entertainment for Canadian tourists and former Canadians now living here will be given at the Vernon-avenue M. E. Church, 1029 East Vernon avenue, Sunday evening. A special program has been arranged for the occasion.

OPENING



Mercantile Arcade

"THE WONDER BUILDING OF THE WEST"

TODAY

THE Mercantile Arcade is more than a mere building, more than a mass of stone and steel—it is an ideal, a monument to the development of Southern California, an integral part of the community itself.

Aptly described as "a Three-story Street with Twelve-story Gateways," the Mercantile Arcade occupies a pre-eminent position among the great buildings of America—it is to Los Angeles what the Woolworth Building is to New York, the great Strauss and Wrigley Buildings to Chicago—and more, because of the broad scope of its usefulness.

Here, under three roofs, one of them an immense canopy of glass three hundred feet long, will be housed three-score of the Southland's smartest shops, the offices of hundreds of representative business and professional men, an immense restaurant, etc.—an edifice in which practically every personal and household need can be supplied.

The Mercantile Arcade was conceived to fulfill a definite mission—to serve the people of Southern California and is dedicated to the progress of this great community!

(At this time full credit is given to those who contributed their services to the consummation of this splendid ideal.)

...THE OLD BUILDINGS

...Demolition of the property was ...started on April 24 and at 5 p.m. ...on that day the old buildings on ...the entire plans started to come ...down. Wrecking operations were ...started on the Broadway side and ...by May 27 had progressed far ...enough that steam shovels had ...begun excavating at this end of the building. Wrecking on the entire site was completed by May 11.

Excavation had progressed far enough on May 2 on the Broadway end so that the underpinning of the adjoining buildings on the north and south were started on May 3.

The work of underpinning was one of the most serious problems that confronted the contractors, because it involved lowering the foundations of all adjoining buildings from ten feet to thirty-five feet. This work alone necessitated the excavation of 1200 yards of dirt and replacing the same with 450,000 brick and the holding up during the underpinning of 650 lineal feet of exterior walls of the adjoining buildings. This underpinning, however, was completed within a few days after completion of the general excavation.

The general excavation involved the removal of 38,000 cubic yards of dirt and was completed on June 15. This work was started on the Broadway end and at the time the last shovelful of dirt was removed from the Spring-street end, foundations were completed and ready for structural steel for the Broadway office building and half of the Arcade.

STEEL WORK STARTED

The erection of the structural steel for the Broadway office building was started on June 21, and for the Spring-street building on July 5.

The first floor of the reinforced concrete building or Arcade between the two office buildings, followed directly after the structural steel of the Broadway building had reached the second-floor level and three floors of the Arcade were completed August 21.

Structural steel for the Broadway office building was completed August 21, just two months after the first column was erected. The completion of the steel on the Spring-street building followed two weeks later.

The tonnage of structural steel used in the two buildings was 2000 tons.

The placing of the concrete fireproofing and floors of the two office buildings followed directly after the erection of the structural steel at the rate of three to four floors a week. This work together with the three-story concrete Arcade Building involved the placing of 14,000 cubic yards of concrete.

The exterior elevations are of Granitex terra cotta furnished by Gladding, McBean & Co. The four lower floors are an openwork tracery design, which is the first of its kind manufactured on the Pacific Coast. Due to the intricate design it was impossible to schedule the delivery of terra cotta at an early enough date to keep the exterior walls up to the progress of the balance of the work.

The contractors then decided to complete all of the interior work, leaving the two front elevations of the office buildings open until such time as the terra cotta delivery could be made. As those who watched the progress of the building will remember, the entire plastering and finish on many floors of the office building was completed before the exterior walls were in place.

As soon as the terra cotta was received the work of installing it was pushed with all possible speed and on completion of the two front elevations of the buildings the offices were practically ready for occupancy.

The interior finish of the building involved the placing of 1,100,000 lineal feet of channels and 65,000 square yards of metal lath for the furring of the ceiling, a total of 110,000 square yards of plastering and 65,000 square feet of glass.

The skylight over the Arcade alone necessitated the use of 18,000 feet of glass. The floors of public spaces required 72,000 square feet of terrazzo and 11,000 lineal feet of marble base.

COMPLETE PLANT

That portion of the basement not occupied by the Leighton Cafeteria is devoted to mechanical equipment of the building, including steam plant for heating and ventilating machinery for the Arcade, which consists of both a supply and exhaust system, each individual store having its own supply of fresh air and its own exhaust. The air throughout the basement and arcade is mechanically heated and cooled.

Contract schedule date for completion of the work was January 15, 1924. On January 7 tenants were moving into the Broadway building and the balance of the original contract work completed.

At that time leasing of the building had progressed so far that the owners decided to postpone the opening until the changes required by the tenants could be completed. Leases had been entered into by the first of the year for practically all of the stores on the first and part of the second floor and the work necessitated to meet the requirements of the tenants assumed such proportions that the opening date was postponed to February 14.

The entire construction program was carried out by MacDonald & Kahn, Inc., which concern is represented locally by Mr. Forderer and Mr. Cassell.

The whole project from the start of the excavation until completion consumed nine months' time and from the setting of the first structural steel columns, six months. Robert Youmans was in charge of the work on the building.

DOCTORS IN CONFERENCE OVER DINES

Will Probably be Able to Testify at Hearing of Greer on Day Set

Following a conference of physicians yesterday at the Good Samaritan Hospital, it was announced that Courtland S. Dines, Denver millionaire, who is said to have been shot by Horace A. Greer, Mabel Normand's chauffeur at a New Year's party, will probably be able to appear in court for Greer's preliminary hearing on the 28th inst.

The hearing has been continued on numerous occasions due to the sickness of Dines and other witnesses.

Physicians examining Dines yesterday were Dr. Victor Parkin, appointed at the request of Atty. S. S. Hahn, counsel for Greer; Dr. Louis Weber, appointed by the court, and Dr. Guy S. Cochran, Dines's personal physician.

There is still evidence of water in the patient's lungs, according to the report of the physicians, but it is believed it will be safe for him to appear on the date set for the hearing. His temperature is normal and he is now allowed to recline in a wheel chair for short intervals, it is declared.

Traffic Check on One Trolley Line Completed

The first step in an extensive traffic check of passengers on local cars of the Pacific Electric and Los Angeles Railway was made yesterday when every rider on line I, the West First street route of the yellow car system, was asked where he boarded, where he was going and if he was a regular rider.

The information was obtained by use of card questionnaires handed to passengers as they boarded. Checkers rode all cars of the line to distribute and collect the cards.

A similar check will be made today on Line "N" cars which run on West Ninth street.

The riding check is part of an extensive survey being made by the State Railroad Commission and the City Board of Public Utilities and the information will be the basis for recommendations of service changes.

At the same time, Boy Scouts were checking for the Los Angeles Traffic Commission 508 of the crossings in the city, keeping track of automobile traffic. The Scouts noted the number of cars passing and the number making right or left turns. They were on duty from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The check was for the purpose of discovering how heavy the local automobile traffic is. There have been nothing but estimates to go on before.

FARM LAND PARLEY

State Association Will Meet In El Centro Tomorrow

Officers of the California Real Estate Association announced yesterday that the third farm land conference will be at El Centro tomorrow. The realty boards of the Imperial Valley have arranged for a special train to take the visitors to the Colorado River for an inspection of the area. Speakers will include Henry T. Barbour, president; Dr. Herman Janss and W. E. Herren, secretary of the farm lands division and field secretary of the national association, respectively.

BUILDING READY FOR INSPECTION

year. Pending the transfer of the title, the Blumenthal interests were hampered in their efforts to get started on the improvement, but with the property held in the name of the syndicate, plans were vigorously prosecuted. On January 3 a check for $1,910,000 was paid to Mr. Ramish, who, several months previously, had bought the property from the school board, and Mercantile Place became the property of the Blumenthal syndicate, which had, a short time previously, organized the Arcade Realty Company, a $5,000,000 corporation. The following were at that time announced as members of the Arcade Realty Company: A. C. Blumenthal, president A. C. Blumenthal & Co.; Alan McDonald and Felix Kahn, of McDonald & Kahn, contractors; Marshal Hale, vice-president of Hale Brothers, San Francisco, and S. L. Lansburgh, attorney, and director of the Orpheum circuit.

ARCHITECTS SELECTED

On January 10, announcement was made that MacDonald & Couchot of San Francisco, had been selected as architects for the building through an architectural competition, in which architects from all parts of the country participated. The general contract for the structure had already been let to MacDonald & Kahn, who were well known locally as the builders of a number of important structures in the central business district of the city.

Tenants of the old buildings were imediately given notice to vacate, and on May 1 the demolition of the old structures, which had become historict landmarks of the old Los Angeles, was started. Within thirty days the excavators had completed the task of removing 40,000 cubic yards of earth for the basement of the huge arcade structure.

Before the excavation work was finished, work of pouring the gigantic piers upon which the steel frame was to rest, was under way, and imediately upon completion of the foundations and piers, the Llewellyn Iron Works, which held the contract for the fabrication and erection of the steel frame, began its work.

LARGE CREW EMPLOYED

A crew of 400 men was employed in the erection of the building, in order that delay in completing the buildings could be minimized and within five months the exterior was practically finished and the working force devoted its attention to the interior, with the result that about nine months after the razing of the old structures commenced, the completed office buildings and arcade stand ready for their tenants.

The remarkable record made in the construction of these buildings stands as evidence of the co-operation between the many interests engaged in the task. Backed by a group of men whose interests were largely centered in San Francisco, and financed through the S. W. Straus Company, which evinced its faith in the project and in Los Angeles by a loan, in the form of a bond isue, of $4,000,000, the new Mercantile Arcade Buildings are justly considered an example of harmonious and unified effort on the part of many diverse factors.

BURGLARS GET WHISKY

Rare Brands and Fountain Pens Taken From Pharmacy

Twenty-three pints of Old Cedar Brook, twenty-one pints of Four Roses, eighteen pints of Old Taylar whisky and fifteen fountain pens formed the loot obtained by burglars who broke into the Custom Drug Company store at 301 South Vermont avenue early yesterday morning, according to a report at Central Police Station. Entrance was gained to the pharmacy by cutting the screen in the transom of a side door.

WIFE ACCUSES AUTO DEALER IN APPEAL

Charging desertion and failure to provide, Mrs. Mabelle Schrader yesterday filed suit for divorce against John A. Schrader, said to be a well-to-do automobile dealer of Freeport, Ill. Mrs. Schrader listed community property she valued at $40,000 and asked the court to award her alimony of $250 a month. The couple were married December 29, 1893, and parted December 4, 1921, according to the complaint.

A TRIO ROBS DRUGGIST

Three men robbed Charles D. Purdy, druggist at Forty-sixth street and Hooper avenue, in his store late yesterday afternoon and obtained $35, according to a police report. Two men entered the store and held up Purdy, while the third remained outside in a battered Ford in which the trio drove away.

CONTRACTORS AID WORK

Thirty-two Firms Contribute Materials and Labor to Construction of Arcade

Thirty-two contractors, working under the supervision of MacDonald & Kahn, the general contractors, assisted in bringing the Mercantile Arcade Building to finished form, and to these thirty-two subcontractors considerable credit for speed and efficiency is given by the owners of the structure.

The lighting fixtures of the arcade were especially designed, under the supervision of the architects, and were made by the Schweitzer-Alexander Company. The lighting system is considered unusually attractive and efficient.

Contractors who had a part in the erection of the building include the Anderson Ornamental Iron Works; Baker Iron Works; Bayer-Rothgeb Company; Broadway Maintenance Company; Brunner Marble and Tile Company; California Glass and Paint Company; Cutler Mail Chute Company; J. E. Dwan; C. A. Edwards; Forderer Cornice Works; Gladding, McBean Company; Hammond Lumber Company; Haynes, O'Gara & Haynes; Howe Brothers; Harry Johnson; Kawneer Manufacturing Company; Llewellyn Iron Works; H. S. McClelland; National Cornice Works; Newberry Electric Corporation; Gus Odemar; Owens-Park Lumber Company; Fred E. Potts; Randall Control and Hydrometric Company; Benjamin Schonfeld; Schweitzer-Alexander Company; Truscon Steel Company; Union Hardware and Metal Company; Waterhouse, Wilcox Pacific Company; Weber Showcase and Fixture Company; Whiting-Mead; D. Zelinsky & Sons.

SPEED RECORD MADE

Steel Work on Arcade Buildings Completed in Sixty Days Time to Local Firm

In the fabrication and erection of the steel frame of the new Mercantile Arcade Buildings a new local speed record was established by the Llewellyn Iron Works, which undertook the contract for carrying out this portion of the construction program. The record is considered the more remarkable in view of the fact that the Llewellyn Iron Works erected the frames of two height-limit office buildings, as well as that of the connecting three-story arcade, which is covered with a glass roof supported on steel trusses.

The total tonnage of steel required in this construction was 4,013,400 pounds, or practically 2007 tons. The work was completed in sixty working days. When it is taken into consideration the intricate nature of this construction, the heavy girder work necessary in both of the buildings, and the complicated fabricated and erection work necessary for the two entrances of these buildings, the record is considered remarkable. The steel construction work was acomplished without any accident of any nature to any of the steel workers employed.

The Mercantile Arcade Company after investigating all of the various makes and types of passenger elevators awarded the contract to Llewellyn Iron Works for the elevator equipment for these buildings. Each limit-of-height office building is equipped with three gearless traction passenger elevators with the variable voltage control, each elevator having a speed of 600 feet per minute with a capacity of 2500 pounds at full speed. These elevators are equipped with every known safety device and are duplicates of the elevators in operation at the Biltmore Hotel, Union Trust and Savings Bank Building, Pacific Mutual Building and also of the elevators to be installed in the Hall of Justice by the County of Los Angeles. The arcade portion of the building is served with three geared passenger elevators of the rheostatic control type. These elevators are in actual operation at the present time, ready for the opening of the building.

JAPANESE ADMIRAL TO BE VISITOR HERE

Vice-Admiral K. Ide, Chief of Operations of the Imperial Japanese Navy, will pay an official visit to Los Angeles March 2, according to official advices received at the naval base at the port yesterday. Admiral Ide, now in Washington, will leave the Capital for New Orleans on the 25th inst., proceeding directly from that port to Los Angeles. He will spend two days in this city, going then to San Francisco, from which port he will embark for the Orient, March 15, on the T.K.K. liner Shinyo Maru.

PARTICIPANTS ARE MANY

Residents of Fifty Cities Have Financial Interest in New Arcade Building

People in all walks in life and in more than fifty cities of the United States are participating with Los Angeles in the sense of achievement which marks the completion of the new $6,000,000 Mercantile Arcade and office buildings structure. These are clients of S. W. Straus & Co., whose money has made erection of the building possible.

The great structure is security for a $4,000,000 bond issue underwritten by S. W. Straus & Co. Through the nation-wide organization of this investment-house, these bonds have been sold to hundreds of investors of large and small capital and in all parts of the country. Much of the cost of this project was met by outside capital thus procured for a Los Angeles enterprise.

That the building is meeting with a far greater appreciation from the public than was originally anticipated is evidenced by the demand for accommodations in it. When Straus experts analyzed the project a year or more ago, they estimated that the annual earnings of the completed property would be $848,415 and that was the rental basis on which the $4,000,000 loan was approved.

Leases have already been signed for approximately 60 per cent of the floor space at an annual rental of more than $650,000 and the management now expects the total annual earnings to reach $1,100,000 when the building is fully completed and occupied, nearly 20 per cent greater than the original Straus estimate.

Shackleton and Vernon Snively will be in charge; Western Avenue Business Men's Association, Third street and Western avenue, Deputy Collector W. P. OAKLAND, Feb. 14. — Film "thrillers" were outdone here yesterday when Samuel De Raeza, Jr., 4 years of age, was tossed from the second floor of a burning home by his father into the arms of a fireman, who carried him safely to the ground from a precarious perch on a ladder. The father then was rescued.

COUNTY JAIL RECORD

Total of 810 Prisoners Sets New Mark for Institution

The County Jail is getting too popular for comfort, in the opinion of Jailer Crouchorn. Yesterday morning 819 prisoners lined up for breakfast. This was the largest number in the jail's histor. The preceding day there were 808 guests at Sheriff Traegre's caravansary. The jail was built for 250 prisoners.

Verdugo City Organized at Mass Meeting

Verdugo City, located in the central section of La Crescenta Valley, was officially born as an organized community at a mass meeting Wednesday night. The meeting was conducted in a large tent erected at Honolulu and Los Angeles avenues. By-laws were drafted and adopted, and the officers to guide California's newest organized community selected. They are Harry N. Fowler, president; Dr. E. L. Wemple, vice-president; St. Clair De Jacques, secretary; G. C. Sears, treasurer, and A. T. Cobb, custodian. An association of commerce also was formed.

The limits of the new community will be Fairview avenue on the east, the Glendale city boundary and the skyline of the Verdugo Hills on the south, Tujunga on the west and Altura street probably on the north.

The birth of the new community will be celebrated at a fiesta tomorrow afternoon. Gov. Richardson and the mayors and city officials of all Southern California towns have been invited to attend the festivities. John Steven McGroarty, California poet and author, will preside as master of ceremonies.

Wife Gets Divorce From Mate Who Drank too Much

"I had to leave in order to have a roof for my children," Mrs. Gladys M. Brown testified yesterday in Judge Summerfield's department of Superior Court, where she was granted a divorce from Rollo F. Brown, a civil engineer. She charged that he was drunk so much he did not provide for her or their children so she went home to live with her mother.

He was intoxicated every other month, the wife testified. She also declared he drank all the time she lived with him. Her story was corroborated by her sister, who testified he was under the influence of liquor nearly every time she saw him. The wife was represented by Attorney S. S. Silverton.

PAVE WAY FOR NEW LAW

To clear the way for the adoption of the new ordinance of intention for the comprehensive Arroyo de la Sacatela storm drain system, embracing much of the western part of the city, the City Council yesterday repealed the existing ordinance for this work.

FIRE PREVENTION AIDES

The appointment of twenty-five additional fire prevention officers for service in preventing mountain brush fires has been authorized by the City Council at the request of Fire Chief Scott. The men will receive no compensation but will assist the fire department in forcing campers to obey the law.

PROBLEM WELL SOLVED

...Provides Attractive Pedestrian Thoroughfare Between Broadway and Spring

...completed Arcade Building, built through the efforts of A. C. ...ntal, represents the realization of a dream for the development ...Romantic Place. Architecturally the problem of the develop... ...of this old thoroughfare of one and two-story structures into the ...ern skyscraper that now graces it, was exceedingly interesting. ...ented by Kenneth MacDonald, Jr., the architect who designed ...ucture. ...problem presented in design- ing a street under the buildings that would offer a more attractive means of communication between Spring street and Broadway than is offered by the crowded sidewalks of Fifth and Sixth streets.

"We believe the great width of available walking space that has been provided in the new Arcade will be found a relief from the congested sidewalks, and that large crowds of people will make use of this thoroughfare," said Mr. MacDonald. "Likewise, we believe our tenants will benefit in proportion to the size of the crowd.

"An attempt has been made to find tenants representing the various branches of merchandising, with as little duplication as possible. The second and third-floor stores, shops and studios will be beautifully lighted and decorated and should present the most attractive and centrally located premises available in the city.

"The color scheme used was chosen to produce the best possible background for the various articles that will be on display in the show windows.

"The character of the construction of the limit-height buildings at the ends of the Arcade is second to none in this country. The mechanical equipment and structural work, as well as the interior finish throughout, are the finest that can be used.

"The terra-cotta manufacturers throughout the country are remarking upon the great charm and delicacy of the lace-like terra cotta which embellishes the first three floors of this building, both on Spring street and on Broadway. It is customary to construct small members of this character of iron, as heretofore it has been impossible to devise any other method."

Basement Will be Occupied by Huge Cafeteria

With the opening of the new Arcade Building a new mammoth cafeteria also is thrown open to the public, the entire basement of the structure being taken up by a Leighton Cafeteria, which will be operated by the Leighton Co-operative Industries.

Special equipment was built for this huge eating house by the contractors, MacDonald & Kahn at the time the building was put up. This task involved the installation of a fully equipped kitchen, bakery, service room and a complicated system of heating and ventilating.

The dining room of the cafeteria will seat 1000 persons and occupies 12,000 square feet of floor space. It is estimated 20,000 persons will pass through the cafeteria daily. The remainder of the cafeteria, including lobby, service room, kitchen and bakery covers an area of 30,000 square feet.

The main entrance to the cafeteria is from the Broadway side, and like the rest of the building, is finished in travetine marble. The lobby and dining room are carried out in old English design with oak paneled walls and marble floors.

Auto Repairer Must Turn Car Back or Pay Up

John B. Brokaw, operator of an automotive body works, must either deliver a car he is asserted to have held for more than two years, to Cy E. Johnson, or pay the latter $5000 for the machine and $1000 damages, according to a verdict returned by a jury in Judge J. Perry Wood's court yesterday.

Johnson brought suit against Brokaw for the recovery of the car, asserting he had put the machine in Brokaw's shop in 1921 under agreement that he was to pay $1500 to have the chassis and body rebuilt. February, 1923, he said, Brokaw notified him the automobile was ready for delivery, but refused to turn the car over to him when he offered Brokaw $1500.

Testimony tended to show the defendant was holding the car in lieu of payment of a bill said to have accrued against the machine for labor and other expenses.

The jury, however, held that Johnson was entitled to the car under the terms of the asserted contract. The $1000 damages was awarded for losses Johnson was said to have suffered by being deprived of the automobile.

RICHARDSON TO MAKE GOOD CHECKS RESULTING IN WIFE'S ARREST

A reconciliation between Mrs. Julia Richardson and her husband, A. M. Richardson of Simi, took place in Justice Russill's court yesterday, where Mrs. Richardson came up for hearing on a forgery charge. The husband said he would make good the checks she had issued, amounting to about $100, and the case was adjourned to May 15 when it probably will be dismissed, it was stated. Mrs. Richardson was released on her own recognizance.

"It was just a misunderstanding," Richardson said, "and it is all over now."

Mrs. Richardson left her husband and came to this city after a quarrel, it was said. When she got into difficulties her husband came at once.

WOMAN'S WILL VALID

Daughter Loses Fight Against Her Stepfather

A jury in Judge Trabucco's department of Superior Court returned a verdict whereby the will of the late Lottie M. Sayre will be allowed to stand. By this decision, E. W. Sayre, the surviving husband, and the mother of Mrs. Sayre receive all the property with the exception of $5, which was left to Mrs. Verneta Donnatin, daughter of the deceased.

Mrs. Donnatin attempted to break the will, contending her stepfather had influenced her mother's mind, inducing her to make the will in his favor.

She also charged that her stepfather's marriage to Mrs. Sayre was not legal.

THE REAL

Theodore Roosevelt

AS TOLD IN THE PRIVATE LETTERS OF

Maj. Archie Butt,

Aide and Intimate of "T. R."

Copyright, 1924, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

CAPT. BUTT TO HIS SISTER-IN-LAW

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26, 1908. Thanksgiving Day.

Dear Clara:

While I had not thought it necessary to go to the White House today, it being a holiday and one the President generally spends in the country, yet it was fortunate that I did go, for I found much to do.

As I passed through the office I looked at the list of the day's engagements which are always kept in Mr. Loeb's office and there learned that the President was to make a speech at the laying of a corner-stone of the Young Colored Men's Christian Association Building way out on Twelfth street. I called Mr. Foster's attention to it and asked him to find out from the President what time he wanted Col. Bromwell or myself to come for him. He sent me word that he would not take an aide with him. It seemed to me that this would be a mistake and I so told Foster and he agreed with me, but said he could not take it up with him again. I took it upon myself, in spite of Bromwell's oft repeated advice to me never to make a suggestion after the President had expressed an opinion, to go into the office again and to say what was in my mind. I thought it my duty as an aide. So entering, I said, as if I had not received his message:

"Mr. President, you have an engagement for this afternoon?"

CORNERS AIDE

"Yes," said he, "but I sent you word that I would not need an aide; didn't Mr. Foster tell you?"

I felt cornered, but I said:

"Yes, Mr. President, but I think you should take one, for these colored men know that you usually are accompanied by an aide on such occasions, and if you do not have one now I fear they will think there is some discrimination against them."

He had begun by frowning, but ended with a smile.

"That is true, and I had not thought of it in that light, so I will ask you to accompany me and let us look our best."

I repeat this, for it gives a new light on his character. I left his office feeling that if he had had more subordinates around him that would not mind making suggestions to him even though they were counter to his preconceived notion, he might have made even fewer mistakes than he has made. I refer now to his memorandum on euphonic spelling and his order to leave off "In God We Trust" from the coinage of the country.

GINGER ENOUGH

Going out to the ceremonies Mr. Loeb said to the President that he had looked over his speech and he and Mr. Foster thought he ought to insert a little more ginger into it. I saw what Loeb meant when I heard the speech, but I did not think it lacked ginger. It was a very cleverly worded lecture to the negroes to live properly and a word to the whites to help them. It did not mince matters, yet there was nothing in it to incite the negroes to hail him as a second Saviour, and nothing in it to offend the white sentiment of the South or of any portion of the country.

Coming back in the carriage I told him this and he then said:

"Loeb would have made me rouse the negroes to deeds of arrogance by putting ginger in it or else insult the white people by demagogic tirade."

Loeb confessed it sounded better than he thought it would sound and quite receded from his former position. The President then said this, which I think the only thing of importance I am quoting today:

"They wanted me to say something about the fourteenth or fifteenth amendments, but I refused most emphatically to do so or to advocate standing the Pyramid on its apex or inverting the Washington Monument."

It was evidently Booker Washington who made this suggestion yesterday and I am glad to know that it went unheeded.

SIMPLE FAMILY DINNER

I spent the rest of the afternoon with Aunt Kitty and Kate and at 8 was at the White House. It was truly a family dinner, only Straight of the State Department and I being outsiders. The Longworths were there, Miss Ethel, Mr. Wallingford, an in-law of the Longworths and the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and Quentin. It was a simple dinner, but a good one. The only thing needed was snow on the ground and wind whistling on the outside.

When the waiter began to serve the sherry, Mrs. Roosevelt said to him that it being Thanksgiving he could serve champagne. It is the only time I have ever seen anything stronger than sherry or rhine wine on the White House table, except at formal dinners.

I know you are interested to know what we had to eat and I will satisfy your curiosity.

THE LARGEST TURKEY

We had creamed pea soup, no fish of any kind, and then was brought in the largest turkey I have ever seen in my life. I had often read about the turkeys which some old fellow, a Mr. Vose in New Jersey, always sent the White House at Thanksgiving time, but I had not expected ever to actually participate in the mastication of one. The President asked how much it weighed, and said unless it weighed up to the standard that he refused to touch it. The head waiter told him it weighed a little over twenty-five pounds dressed.

Following the first waiter was a second carrying a large silver platter containing a roast pig with an apple in its mouth. Mrs. Roosevelt said that they would not get much else, so to take both kinds of meat. Quentin caused a laugh by asking:

"Mother, aren't we going to have vegetables?"

He was soon satisfied, for there soon followed spinach, sweet potatoes, sugared Southern style, and boiled rice. After this we had salad of lettuce and aguacatus, or alligator pears. Then came apple and mince pies and ice cream molded in the shape of quail with melted brown sugar poured over each to resemble gravy.

NEVER EAT MINCE MEAT

Mrs. Roosevelt said the President and Ethel never ate mince meat, and that whenever she had mince pies she had to have apple or lemon pies for them.

The President was in a splendid humor all through dinner and told anecdote after anecdote with as much zeal as if he had had a large and carefully selected audience to listen to him. In fact, I think he is more charming when only surrounded by his household. After dinner, while smoking in his library, while the rest of us were smoking, I should say, for the President never touches tobacco in any form, he spoke with some concern over the prospect of being followed into Africa by tourists or worse still, by a horde of reporters. He said that before going he would issue a statement saying that he would not open his mouth to a reporter while in Africa and that whatever was printed would be without authority and foundation.

"I feel absolutely ferocious at times when I am not allowed to have a moment to myself. I do not think any English newspaper men will attempt to follow me, for the English are rather decent in such matters and if our own people pursue me as they did when I hunted in the West I might be able to get the authorities to intervene until I elude them in the wilds.

TO DODGE REPORTERS

"They will never catch up with me if I get ahead of them once, and if they do in the jungle you may see my expense report to the National Museum read something after this order: 'One hundred dollars buying the means to rid myself of one World reporter; $300 expended in dispatching a reporter of the American; $500 furnishing wine to cannibal chiefs with which to wash down a reporter of the New York Evening Post.'"

We did not linger long over the cigars and we soon went into Mrs. Roosevelt's sitting room and library, which is over the Blue Room and which is largely furnished with her own personal belongings, where we sat down and tried to help Miss Ethel and Mrs. Longworth work out one of these newfangled puzzles, which are now all of the rage. Mrs. Roosevelt sat on the sofa knitting, and the President excused himself to work on his message. Everybody showed signs of being sleepy early and the family were left to their own devices a little after 10:30.

Affectionately,

ARCHIBALD.

ARMY OFFICER TO GUIDE HORSE SHOW

AMBASSADOR ARENA STABLES ALREADY HOUSING FINE EQUINE ENTRIES

Lieut. R. F. Manning, U.S.A., will officiate as ringmaster at the third annual Los Angeles Horse Show, which opens at the Hotel Ambassador arena on the 24th inst., making the third successive year that he has served in this capacity.

Interest among society folk in the show this season has resulted in the heaviest advance sale of boxes since these annual Los Angeles equine affairs were inaugurated three years ago, it is said.

Several prominent exhibitors have already arrived with their horses at the Ambassador arena stables, among them being Reed Bridgford of Joy, Ill., owner of a string of the finest Shetland and Hackney harness ponies in the country, and Mrs. Edna Cudahy Browne, who will enter her stable of jumpers; E. A. Stuart, Seattle millionaire, and owner of the famous Carnation stock farms, has engaged sixteen stalls, and is expected on the ground early next week.

Council Likely to Adopt Plan for Opening Broadway

The new ordinance of intention for the opening of Broadway from Pico street to Forty-first street, which provides for the contribution by the city of $500,000 toward the cost of the improvement, will be presented to the City Council next Thursday morning and will probably be adopted.

At yesterday's session of Council, objection to the suspension of the rules by Councilman Mushet caused postponement of action on the ordinance for one week.

Completa Derrota del Ejército de Estrada

PENJAMO (Guanajuato) Febrero 14.—Esta mañana pudo hacerse cargo el público de modo más claro de la importancia del desastre de Palo Verde, por el informe de los generales y de otros jefes que persiguieron al enemigo por los cerros que están más allá de la ciudad, los cuales encontraron cubiertos de muertos y heridos rebeldes. El recuento oficial da las siguientes cifras de bajas revolucionarias: Muertos, 200; heridos, 300; dispersos, más de 1000. Este número es más de la mitad de las fuerzas que tomaron parte en la batalla de Palo Verde. Tanto Estrada como Diéguez, generales rebeldes, van de retirada hacia Morelia con poco más de 500 hombres, resto de la hermosa caballería con que iniciaron hace dos días el combate de Palo Verde. A esta fuerza la siguen persiguiendo los federales.

Aunque estaba herido, el General Gonzalo Escobar, jefe federal, continuó dirigiendo la batalla hasta el final, y después de unas cuantas horas de atenciones médicas, se hallaba listo de nuevo hoy en la mañana dirigiendo los preparativos para una vigorosa persecución de las fuerzas rebeldes.

En la batalla de Palo Verde perdieron los insurgentes cantidad enorme de armamento de varias clases, todo su equipaje y sus archivos. Entre el botín figura el lujoso uniforme del General Enrique Estrada, con el que solía deslumbrar a la gente de lo interior. Cuéntanse muchos oficiales entre los muertos revolucionarios; dos de ellos son los coroneles Pablo Arreola y Vicente Estrada, hermano éste del líder rebelde.

Las fuerzas del General Escobar salen hoy en la mañana a perseguir a los rebeldes, a los que piensan alcanzar a marchas forzadas, como lo hicieron en Palo Verde.

Irregularidades en el Arrendamiento de Terrenos Adyacentes al Mar

El Alcalde Cryer declaró ayer que estaba instruyendo una averiguación de los actos de la Junta del Puerto, que otorgó el miércoles un contrato de arrendamiento por diez años, a la Compañía Constructora Panpacífica, de propiedades fronteras al mar. Agregó Cryer que tomaría las providencias que los hechos sospechosos reclamaran.

Conferenciaré desde luego con el comisionado Colden, dijo el Alcalde, pues no sé más del asunto que lo que he leído en un diario matinal. El arrendamiento hecho a la compañía constructora de la que es presidente Emil Cykler fija una renta muy baja, pues es la que se hallaba en vigor antes del primero de Julio, y ello a pesar de las protestas del comisionado Colden, y sin que se haya presentado ante la junta ninguna solicitud en forma. Dícese que el comisionado Kibele y el presidente McKee sofocaron las objeciones de Colden y votaron por el arrendamiento.

Ayer aprobó el Ayuntamiento que se iniciara inmediatamente una acción judicial para poner a prueba la validez del arrendamiento otorgado por la Junta del Puerto a la Compañía Petrolera Panamericana de E. L. Doheny. Este acto había sido recomendado por el Alcalde Cryer y por la comisión del puerto en el Ayuntamiento. Este último arrendamiento es de siete acres de la Punta I, que es propiedad del Ayuntamiento. El contrato es por treinta años.

El señor Stephens, Abogado de la Ciudad, se encuentra en Washington, adonde fue a comparecer ante la Suprema Corte, y durante su ausencia, ha quedado como substituto su ayudante, el señor I. E. Whitehead, quien ya se está ocupando en la acción judicial referida.

Pláticas Diarias en Español por el Prof. R. Guerrero, del Departamento Español de "The Times"

Es curioso, dice Cuervo, el uso de ciertos gerundios como "pasando", "subiendo", "bajando", en frases de esta estructura: "La tienda está bajando la plaza", como si se dijese "abajo de la plaza"; "La casa queda pasando el río", esto es, "del otro lado del río"; "yo vivo subiendo el teatro", es decir, más arriba del teatro". No sabemos, añade el citado sabio, si esta metamorfosis del gerundio en preposición está bien autorizada; lo cierto es que procede del empleo absoluto e indefinido de este verbal, según se observa en estos lugares: "Llegué con Quillarte, mi criado, a un lugar que se llama Acquaspendente, que, viniendo de Roma a Florencia, es el último que tiene el Papa". (Cervantes; "La española inglesa"); "Cerca de Carmona, viniendo de Sevilla, hay muchos olivares y tierras de siembra." (Moratín, "Obras póstumas, tomo II, p. 18).

Muy interesantes son las observaciones siguientes que hace el señor de la Peña sobre el uso del gerundio:

A pesar de que el gerundio por sí mismo no significa duración habitual, puede recibir este significado del verbo al cual pertenece o del verbo con el cual se construye, como lo comprueban las oraciones siguientes: "Los hombres pasan la vida formando proyectos y alimentando esperanzas"; "Viviendo santamente, moriremos del mismo modo."

No es apropiada esa voz verbal para significar hechos instantáneos, por lo cual no se puede decir: "está brillando un relámpago"; "veo cayendo una piedra"; pero sí habrá propiedad en esta otra locución: "está relampagueando".

Sin embargo, cuando el verbo determinante y el determinado significan hechos simultáneos de breve duración, bien puede emplearse el gerundio, v.g., "Sonando la una de la tarde llegó el tren de pasajeros".

El gerundio necesita de verbo que complete su sentido y le confiera la significación de tiempo que por sí no tiene. Estos verbos pueden ser concomitantes o determinantes, según que acompañan al gerundio o lo determinan. Los verbos concomitantes pueden expresar quietud, como "estar", o movimiento, como "ir", v.g., "estoy estudiando"; "voy leyendo". Tales verbos forman con el gerundio una especie de conjugación perifrástica. El gerundio acompañado de "estar" expresa acción duradera, v.g., "estoy comiendo"; precedido de "ir" denota un hecho que se verifica lentamente, v.g., "Poco a poco se fué formando una legislación especial para esta especie de sucesiones." (García Icazbalceta); "vamos declarando poco a poco cada una de las partes de esta unidad" (Fray Luis de León); "Tantos codos se han ido ciñendo la cuerda de San Francisco" (Doña Emilia Pardo Bazán).

El gerundio de verbos que significan sucesos instantáneos, como "caer", "morir", puede construirse con el verbo "estar", y así se dice con entera propiedad: "Ese árbol se está cayendo"; "el enfermo se está muriendo"; pero en este caso no se da a entender que está sucediendo lo que el verbo significa, sino que se prepara el verificativo próximo de este suceso.

EDISON GRANDNIECE IS GRANTED DIVORCE

STORY OF ASSERTED CRUELTY AND DESERTION IS TOLD COURT

Frailty and feminine grace won in a battle against brute force when Luela Edison Bourland, who declares she is a grandniece of Thomas A. Edison, was granted a divorce in Judge Summerfield's department of Superior Court. John William Bourland, the husband, is just the opposite of the wife—big and strong, according to Mrs. Bourland's testimony.

Mrs. Bourland's testimony set forth that her husband punched her on the nose, damaging it to some extent. Shortly after this asserted action he left her. A witness for the wife corroborated her on the charge of desertion.

The Bourlands were married December 22, 1920 and the asserted desertion took place October 1, 1922. According to the complaint, though her husband enjoyed a substantial income, she was forced to fall back on her mother for support. Testimony showed that her monther earns $1.25 a night as scrub woman in an office building.

According to the terms of the sale the defendants were not to open a similar business within five blocks of this place for a period of five years. The plaintiff charges that the defendants opened and conducted a shoe repair shop within the prescribed territory, this being a detriment to the plaintiff's business.

The restraining order was granted and bond set at $3000.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

WATER CHANGES FOR SANTA ANA

City Orders Work Rushed to End Epidemic

New Well and Mains Will be Constructed

Nurses Kept and $20,000 Outlay Voted

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, Feb. 14.—Acceding to suggestions made by State Board of Health officials designed to stamp out speedily an epidemic of typhoid fever and to correct water conditions which spread the malady, the Santa Ana City Council today had approved expenditures amounting to at least $20,000.

The public health service nurses were held from San Francisco to assist the city nurse in quarantined cases and to aid families unable to supply nurses.

At an emergency session, the Trustees voted to provide two automobiles for the nurses and authorized Water Superintendent Wray to make whatever changes in the water system that were deemed essential to public safety. It likewise doubled the water meter rate to finance the alterations.

PLAN NEW WELL

Structural plans call for a new connecting supply line between the city's two reservoirs, to be laid away from sewer and gas mains and near the surface; drilling of a new well, and the addition of a pump, elimination of overcrowded sewer conditions near the First-street reservoir, and other changes.

R. F. Goudy, State Sanitary Engineer, who found sewage polluting one of two reservoirs here and under whose supervision water changes already have been made, told the Trustees they should consider building a third storage tank in the near future and that ultimately an adequate water supply would be a timely problem.

NEARLY STERILE

Were the city forced to depend solely on its reservoirs in a case of emergency, he declared, only a day and a half supply would be available.

He added that water from six wells and the First-street reservoir, cut off from the mains at present, now showed virtual sterility, and that in a short time this source would be available in providing a domestic supply.

ROBBERS USE RUSE

Pose As Gas Men and Enter Homes in Long Beach

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Feb. 14.—A systematic plan for robbing Long Beach residences has been unearthed by local police, through information furnished them by officials of the Southern Counties Gas Company. Two men, it is said, posing as employees of the gas company, have visited several homes in various sections of the city recently on the pretext of inspecting meters and gas fixtures. In almost every instance, articles of value were missing following their departure, police said.

Perhaps the heaviest loser is Mrs. Mary F. Chambers of 1085 Linden avenue, whose purse, lying on a table, was emptied of more than $25, police say. Householders were warned by police today to insist on seeing the credentials of gas or electric company employees before permitting them to enter their homes.

Concrete Roof Collapses at Filling Station

Internal Injuries Suffered by Pasadena Man

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Feb. 14.—R. H. Postlethwaite, secretary and manager of the Valley Packing Association, is expected to die as a result of injuries sustained this afternoon when a concrete roof over the Penn Oil Station collapsed, burying Mr. Postlethwaite in the debris.

At the hospital where the injured man was taken he was found to be suffering from a broken collar bone, a crushed chest and severe internal injuries.

According to Forest Christensen, manager of the gasoline station at the corner of Broadway and Union street, where the accident occurred, he warned the motorist not to drive under the shelter as workmen were demolishing it. Mr. Postlethwaite, he said, paid no heed to his warning and continued to sit in the car. A few minutes later, several tons of concrete and steel fell on him. His car was completely wrecked. One heavy beam weighing 3600 pounds barely missed the man's head and cut the car practically in two pieces.

Postlethwaite was rescued from the wreckage by Mr. Christensen and his assistants. The noise of the falling pillars could be heard for several blocks and immediately attracted the attention of great throngs of people.

Mr. Postlethwaite is 62 years of age and is a resident of Monrovia. He is the manager of one of the largest citrus packinghouses in Southern California.

It's a foretaste of heaven to visit,
And it's Paradise when you can

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

BURBANK, Feb. 14.—Ernest Gehm of San Fernando Road declares he owes his life to the faithfulness of his pet dog and cat. They are accustomed to sleep in the room with him. Last night he was awakened by the frantic barking of the dog and the clawing of the cat at his neck. Being thus suddenly aroused from a sound sleep he was startled by the smell of burning cloth and leaping out of bed discovered that the bedding was on fire. It is his opinion that if it had not been for the alarm given by these animals the house would have been destroyed by fire, with the chances that he might have lost his life.

SUSTAINS APPEAL ON GAME LAW

Court Rules Inclusion in Refuges of Private Land Unconstitutional

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, Feb. 14.—Holding unconstitutional that portion of the State game law as it applied to the inclusion of private lands in a game refuge without compensation or consent, Superior Judge R. Y. Williams today sustained the contention of County Treasurer Joplin that the latter was arrested unjustly when he shot doves on his own property.

The ruling not only gives Joplin a victory in his test of the law, under which he was fined $25 in Justice Court, fro mwhich he appealed the case, but it stands as final, as the case is not appealable, court attaches said.

In a lengthy opinion, Judge Williams concluded, in effect, that the Legislature exceeded its right and went beyond limitations imposed by the constitution for the protection of individual property rights.

"It is plain to see that the law would create a servitude upon private property," the opinion stated, adding that the law was "so drastic as to prevent the property owner from keeping a dog or raising pigs and cattle upon his own property.

"In fact, he (Joplin) cannot have the wishbone of a chicken in his possession without violating this section if it applies to his property."

Joplin maintained that the State had no right to include private lands within the game refuge without consent of the owner or without compensation. His property had been placed in refuge R C, intended to include the Cleveland National Forest. Judge Williams held the Legislature apparently was under a misapprehension that the Joplin land, located near Santa Ana, was a part of the forest reserve.

APPROVES PLAN OF AUDITORIUM

Venice Board of Trustees to Rush Program

Bond Issue of $200,000 to be Voted On

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Feb. 14.—Tentative plans of the new municipal auditorium designed to seat more than 2000 persons and facing a concrete band plaza that will accommodate 4000 for open-air assemblies, have been presented to the Board of Trustees by Architectural Engineer D. D. Smith and approved by that body.

The auditorium is one of the long-felt needs of the city and it suffers and loses dignity in having to cross to neighboring cities when matters of large public interest are under discussion.

TO VOTE ON BONDS

A bond issue will be submitted to the citizens in the near future when an opportunity will be given them to decide whether the resources of this city will be bonded to the extent of $150,000 or $200,000.

Engineer Smith informed members of the board that the lesser sum would be sufficient to build and support a Class A building and that a free municipal automobile park which would care for 1500 automobiles could be maintained for $50,000 additional. The proposed site of the new building is between the Sunset and Kinney piers on Ocean Front. This property is owned by the city, which would eliminate the necessity of purchasing a site for the proposed auditorium.

STAGE PROVIDED

The main sections of the building, according to specifications are to be of shell pink plaster trimmed in old ivory terra cotta. The roof is to be of copper marquize and will shelter a space for an eighty-piece orchestra. Space for the Chamber of Commerce and extensive rest rooms will be supplied in the northern end of the building. A large stage sufficient to put on any standard performance will be supplied and a floor which will allow dancing after conventions or gatherings.

In presenting the project before the taxpayers the Trustees believe that the building will commend itself with very little opposition.

FRIDAY MORNING.

LUCK vs. INTELLIGENCE IN OIL

In oil, especially, the rich winners are looked upon as "lucky" individuals!

But the truth of the matter is that intelligence and foresight are the basis and foundation of most of the big, quick fortunes made in oil.

In New Mexico, new fields are being opened, yielding gushers—wells of almost pure gasoline at shallow depth.

A speculative boom and drilling campaign in the San Juan Basin of New Mexico is now under way. We have foreseen the possibilities of enormous profits to be made by buying leases on good prospective oil structure in geologically approved oil acres.

We advise you to buy now in New Mexico oil fields!

Buy in now at cheap prices. Sell out part of it at higher prices, probably only a few months from now! Hold part for the big possible profits!!

You can win if you invest intelligently in oil. Come to our office and talk it over with our geologist just back from New Mexico.

Buy a ten, twenty, forty or eighty-acre lease on structure. Buy now. Don't wait!

Prices now only $10.00 an acre — for potential oil land—think of it! Ten year, eighty-eight form leases.

MILLIONS IN THE MAKING
Higher prices for oil and gasoline are inevitable. Two increases have been announced within a month and more are a certainty.
Such advances will probably make the industry far more profitable than for any time in the history of California. Consequently the value of thousands of barrels of crude now in the ground will be greatly increased.
Thousands of people have already made small investments in the Standard Oil Company of California. Call or write at once for our 128-page book and the interesting story of how ten shares of $10.00 each in ten years, grew to $10,000.00 in ten years.

STOCK PLAN IS NOW APPROVED

San Joaquin Reclassification Action Confirmed

Corporation Earns $5.01 Per Share on Common

L.A.I. Directors Re-elected; Business News

Without a dissenting vote, the stockholders of the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation approved yesterday at the annual meeting the proposal to reclassify the 6 per cent preferred stock into 7 per cent, and to complete the adjustment of the $17.50 in accrued dividends by paying a cash dividend of $4.50. Over 80 per cent of the capital stock was represented to consider the reclassification plan and a further amendment to the articles of incorporation increasing the board of directors from five to nine members, both of which were adopted.

President W. G. Kerckhoff's report of operations in 1923 showed material improvement over the previous year, the surplus after the deduction of interest charges and depreciation amounting to $1,451,311, an increase of 14 per cent over 1922. After the deduction of dividends on the preferred stocks, the amount available for the outstanding common stock is equivalent to $5.01 per share, which is comparable to $4.12 for the previous year.

Operating revenue for the year totaled $6,896,353, a gain of $492,227 over the previous twelve months. After the inclusion of other income, the deduction of operating expenses and taxes, and interest and other charges, net income is reported at $2,281,508, or an increase of $376,688 over 1922. Subtracting depreciation of $830,497 leaves a surplus for the year of $1,451,311.

According to the amendment to the articles of incorporation approved by the stockholders, $6,500,000 of 6 per cent preferred outstanding on which $17.50 is due in accrued dividends, will be exchanged into 7 per cent stock at the option of the owner. The reclassification also involves $15,500,000 of the 6 per cent preferred stock authorized but unissued.

The directors were reelected, and authority given to increase the board from five to nine members. The new appointees will be announced as soon as legal notice of the amendment to the articles of incorporation has been given. The present members of the directorate are W. G. Kerckhoff, A. C. Balch, L. M. Farnham, B. R. Meyer, and A. G. Wishon.

The income account for the twelve months ended December 31, 1923, with comparisons for 1922, follows:

	1923.	1922.
Operating revenue	$6,896,353	$6,403,774
Operating expenses and taxes	3,964,544	3,791,906
Net operating income	$2,943,809	$2,613,218
Non-operating income	139,206	156,616
Gross income	$4,083,197	$3,769,226
Interest charges, bond discount and expense	1,800,690	1,864,188
Net income	$2,281,508	$1,905,126
Depreciation	830,497	684,397
Surplus for year	$1,451,311	$1,220,913

INVESTMENT MEETING

Directors of the Los Angeles Investment Company were reelected yesterday at the annual meeting o fthe stockholders attended by representativa holding over 2,500,000 shares. President Frank P. Flint read the annual report, which was published recently in The Times, showing net earnings for 1923 of $2,444,725.85, or the equivalent to 87 cents on the outstanding stock, the best year in the history of the company.

The company's program for 1924 was outlined to the stockholders by the president, and his recommendation was presented for an increase in the dividend rate from 10 per cent to 12 per cent, which will be acted upon by the directors at the coming meeting.

The directors of the company are President Flint, W. H. Harrison, general manager; W. P. Jefferies, Dan Murphy, A. C. Brode, W. B. Corwin and J. W. Burns.

PACIFIC MUTUAL

Directors and officers of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company of California were re-elected at the annual stockholders meeting conducted under the direction of President George I. Cochran. Arthur C. Parsons, manager of the branch office in San Francisco, was elected a vice-president.

According to the annual report read by the president, the company increased its new business in force $65,224,461 to a total of $499,040,161. Payments to policyholders since organization have totaled $95,170,482, which is in excess of total assets. Of this amount, $10,331,723 was paid in 1923.

GAS DIVIDENDS

The preferred stockholders of Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation are today receiving dividend checks to the total amount of over $370,000. The gross earnings for 1923 were $12,717,442. After deducting bond, operating and depreciation charges, the net earnings applicable to preferred and common dividends were approximately equal to six times the preferred dividend requirement.

Some idea of the favorable market conditions under which the local company operates may be gained from the fact that the annual per capita consumption of gas, calculated in British thermal units, is considerably greater in the Corporation's territory than in the cities of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Boston or San Francisco.

Dividends have been paid without interruption for thirty years.

DECLARE DIVIDENDS

The board of directors of the Southern Pacific Company announced yesterday that the usual dividend of $1.50 per share has been declared payable on April 1, 1924, to stockholders of record on February 28.

Directors of the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation have authorized the payment of Dividend No. 14 of $1.75 per share on the prior preferred stock on March 15 to stockholders of record the 29th inst.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Business Outlook Through Eyes of Bank Economist; Japanese Loan; What the World Wants

"The whole general business outlook is decidedly reassuring," says the February issue of the Review and Forecast, issued by the National City Bank of Los Angeles. The reviewer makes the truth of that statement evident later on by saying that his reports from some 250 sections of the United States indicate that the purchasing power of the many heretofore bad sections is increasing. The bank's letter admits that, viewed from the standpoint of old-type business indicators that trade seems to be "taking a sluggish side-wise trend," but the belief is expressed that this condition is due entirely to the fact that trade factors have not developed far enough to get the general public into the market, so to speak. An explanation of this stand is made by the bank's economist when he says that with production running along in a theoretical normal zone and adequately meeting seasonal demands and with no sharp upturn in general commodity price levels, or the prospect of a transportation tie-up, there is little to either encourage or force other than spot buying. However, the conclusion is reached that the general mass of tradesmen are neither protecting themselves against nor preparing themselves for the business activities which lie just ahead.

Immediately following this part of the bank's letter, appears an outline of a staff study covering business, the economic cycle and unemployment. In the editor's note immediately preceding this outline the statement is made that the outstanding fact found in the steps taken to complete this study is that there is now so little actual study given to the relationship existing between an institution's fundamental data and the economic cycle that the good such a study holds does not really benefit business to the extent it can.

Under the heading of "A Word of Explanation and Warning" the bank's economist states that, during a prosperity period almost anyone can forecast business trends, but, as the approach is made to the negative phases of the economic cycle only fundamental trends can give the true answer. When this period is reached one's foresight must be cleared entirely from trade propaganda and "easy news," and basic truth must be constantly viewed regardless of how one would like to have the information sound. The warning takes up the angle of the proper comparison of data. It urges that an institution's purchase of sales records of a liquidation or readjustment period are not comparable to those of an improvement or prosperity period. "Compare relatives," says the writer, "and not irrelatives. The conclusions drawn from such endeavor will be more accurate and current actions more appropriate to the requirements from which profits will flow."

Under the heading of "The Money Situation" and considered entirely from the national standpoint, it is said to be as easy as it should be without permitting excessive speculative activity. What is more, the reviewer says that with the Federal Reserve Bank's central data showing such a high reserve ratio (the highest since 1917) it seems wise that the business man should consider the data relating to money as of his own Federal reserve district to give him the true answer to the money situation as it relates to him.

Discussing "The Investment Situation" the bank's letter briefly states the causes of the early January rise in bond prices, drawing the conclusion that some of the factors causing that rise had ceased to be market factors and that from now forward the bond market would probably move downward with narrower fluctuations. The stock market is considered by the bank's economist to be approaching the period of selling on upturns. Caution is advised, however, in taking over new holdings for a "short ride," because, it is stated, only a few, if any, can really peg the market top.

The credit situation is carefully covered and an analytical study of the general commodity situation with a short study of certain basic items is given, together with a clear and concise review of the European situation.

JAPANESE LOAN

The credit of the Japanese was evidently not impaired by the disaster of last summer, for the new loan just offered in this country and in England is being eagerly absorbed, the British offering being probably ten times oversubscribed.

In spite of all the restrictions being placed around the loan to prevent British money being used in this market it seems a certainty, according to New York advices, that many millions of dollars will come here anyway, because of the inability of investors across the Atlantic to get the amount they want in that market.

Dow Jones quotes E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, as saying that the loan is of especial importance to Americans because the proceeds will largely be spent in this country in payment for materials and supplies needed by Japan in her reconstruction program.

"Such purchases," said Mr. Gary, "will obviously benefit American industry and commerce. I had an opportunity a few years ago to visit Japan and while there to study conditions. I returned home with a strong faith not only in the future of that country, but in the maintenance of friendly relations between its people and those of the United States. I predict the quick success of the loan, which I consider first-class in every respect."

The offering was made yesterday by a nation-wide syndicate and is for $150,000,000. It is an Imperial Japanese government external loan of 1924 thirty-year sinking fund 6½ per cent gold bonds. The issue is one of the largest foreign offerings in recent years and is being made to raise funds to retire in part the outstanding balance of the 4½ per cent sterling loan, first and second series, due February 15, 1925 and July 10, 1925 and for the purchase of materials and supplies for reconstruction work.

The bonds are offered at 92½, to yield 7.10 per cent, and are being sold by a syndicate composed of J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the National City Company, First National Bank New York; Guaranty Company, New York; Harris Trust and Savings Bank, Anglo-London-Paris National Bank, First National Bank, E. H. Rollins & Sons, Lee Higginson & Co., Yokohama Specie Bank, Ltd., Bank of Italy, Blyth Witter & Co., Dillon, Reed & Co., Wells Fargo Bank, Bankers' Trust Company, New York; Kidder, Peabody & Co., Union Trust Company, Security Trust and Savings Bank, Bond & Goodwin & Tucker, Inc. Subscription to the issue is being divided between the United States and Holland, while a simultaneous flotation of $25,000,000 is being sold in London.

A sinking fund commencing August 1 will be used to purchase such bonds in the market at not exceeding 100 per cent and accrued interest, as follows: From August 1, 1924, to July 1, 1929, inclusive, $5,000,000 per year; August 1, 1929, to July 1, 1934, inclusive $4,000,000 per year, and from August 1, 1934, to maturity, $3,000,000 per year.

WHAT THE WORLD WANTS

American trade envoys covering the world in the interest of foreign trade of the United States have reported to the Department of Commerce many openings for the sale of goods in foreign countries this week. Thirty-one countries are listed for a large variety of commodities ranging from the horse-drawn gig for South Africa to our more modern automotive equipment for several countries.

Brazil wants to purchase industrial machinery and includes a request for hospital equipment. Honduras is in the market for a large variety of electrical apparatus, including fifteen tons of copper transmission wire. Uruguay wants to buy 10,000 kilos of cotton waste. Ireland inquires for radio apparatus.

Industrial machinery of many kinds is inquired for, with a good demand for foodstuffs and specialties.

NEW BANKING RECORD

Los Angeles bank clearings yesterday established a new record for all time. The total was $34,946,641.51. The previous high mark was $34,339,535.75, established October 14, 1923.

At the same time the Hollywood clearinghouse record was broken when a mark of $1,852,084.46 was announced. The best previous record was made November 15, 1923, when the day's clearings totaled $1,786,825.19.

That the Hollywood clearings will soon reach the $2,000,000 a day mark was the substance of a statement issued by officials of the Hollywood Clearing House Association, commenting on yesterday's high total.

KANSAS MAY AMEND BANK GUARANTEE

Many State Institutions Would Like to Withdraw from the List

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOPEKA (Kan.) Feb. 14.—The conditions of the Bank Guaranty Fund of Kansas is causing much discussion, and a statement by the State Bank Commissioner has been issued to establish its exact status.

The banks are not compelled to operate under the law, but about 75 per cent of the State banks have entered the system. More than sixty-five banks have failed the last three years, mostly small concerns, but including one or two with losses around $200,000 to the guaranty fund.

The law allows five assessments annually on guaranteed banks, each of one-twentieth of 1 per cent of total deposits, and each assessment brings in about $70,000. Certificates are issued to all depositors when a guaranteed bank fails, these drawing 6 per cent.

The receiver under the banking department then settles the bank's affairs and pays the returns into the treasury to retire the certificates, the deficit coming out of the fund. Receiverships are very slow, only a few of the failed banks yet having had their affairs closed.

Many State banks are anxious to withdraw from the list of guaranteed banks, but no way seems possible until the losses are settled, unless there is a relinquishing of bonds deposited to insure payment of assessments. The law is more likely to be amended than repealed.

PROFESSIONAL SELLING HITS COTTON OPTIONS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Cotton options moved sharply lower in today's local market, due to heavy professional pressure coming at a time when the undertone had been weakened by disappointment over the absence of an adequate response to a bullish consumption report for January. First prices, on scattered commission house buying were 5 to 25 points higher. Heavy southern selling with some hedging operations caused a primary decline to a level of 25 to 50 points under yesterday's close. Here the list rallied again for a time, advancing 30 points. Then the real decline of the day set in and the list moved off steadily, closing 95 to 113 points net lower for the near months, with October down 56 points and spot quotations down 105 points at 3215.

Mercantile Trust Company of California, San Francisco, Trustee.

Mr. W. E. Creed, president of the corporation, summarizes as follows his letter regarding these bonds:

The Columbia Steel Corporation was organized in November, 1922, to manufacture steel on the Pacific Coast, beginning with the development of raw materials and carrying on manufacture to finished steel products. During 1923 it acquired all the properties, business and other assets of the Columbia Steel Company which at the time of acquisition was engaged in the manufacture of open-hearth steel, billets, bars and steel castings in its plants located at Pittsburg, near San Francisco, California, and at Portland, Oregon. The properties have been extended to include sheet mills, rod, wire and nail mills. It also acquired during 1923 the open-hearth furnaces, rolling mills and foundry of the Llewellyn Iron Works located at Torrance, near Los Angeles, California. In order to produce pig iron for its own requirements and the Pacific Coast market, the Corporation has acquired coal, iron and limestone properties in Utah, where it has approaching completion a blast furnace and by-product coke ovens.

The Bonds are secured by a direct first mortgage lien on all of the physical properties now owned or hereafter acquired. The properties on which the Bonds are a first mortgage lien were carried on the balance sheet on December 31, 1923, at $18,111,742. The balance sheet of December 31, 1923, after giving effect to issue of Series B Bonds are certified by independent auditors, showed net tangible assets of $21,436,207, or over four times the principal amount of $5,000,000 total first mortgage Bonds to be outstanding upon issue of series B Bonds.

Net earnings for the year ended December 31, 1923, available for bond interest and Federal taxes, as certified by independent auditors, amounted to $1,193,325, or 3.4 times total annual interest requirements of all first mortgage bonds outstanding including this issue. Net earnings reflect only nine months' operation of the Llewellyn mills, operation for approximately one month of the new rod, wire and nail mills recently completed, and no operating results from the new sheet mills, nor from the blast furnace and coke ovens nearing completion in Utah.

The mortgage securing the first mortgage bonds provides for a semi-annual sinking fund available beginning January 1, 1926, of 3% per annum of the total first mortgage bonds from time to time outstanding, or when greater in amount, 15% of net earnings, to be applied to the purchase of the bonds, if obtainable at or below the prevailing call price or to their call by lot at that price. Purchases and calls are to be made ratably from each series.

Proceeds of the Series B bonds and of $500,000 additional preferred stock to be issued, which has been subscribed at par to be paid in cash, will be used to reimburse the corporation for capital expenditures and to provide additional working capital.

We offer these bonds for delivery if, when and as issued and received by us, and subject to approval of legality by counsel. Interim receipts of Dillon, Read & Co. or temporary bonds exchangeable for definitive bonds will be delivered.

BOND QUOTATIONS

JAP BONDS RISE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Brisk activity in the new Japanese 6 1-2 per cent bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange on a "when issued" basis, and their ready advance above the offering price, inspired confidence in the bond market today. The improvement was reflected in gains throughout the high-grade list with particular strength in the bonds of copper companies which are expected to profit by orders from Japan.

Announcement that negotiations had been completed for the sale of International Great Northern to the Gulf Coast lines was responsible for an advance of almost 3 points in the International and Great Northern adjustment 6's which will profit by the accompanying guaranty of 4 per cent interest payments. The railroad list generally was stronger. Independent steels were stronger. Considerable foreign buying of these issues was reported. United States government issues held steady with little trading activity.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Following are closing quotations on bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange, furnished by Logan & Bryan, 638 South Spring street:

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

The Compton oil field again has two wells on production. The Union Oil Company's Callender No. 2 went on production yesterday for the second time with a flow of 1150 barrels per day, according to officials reports.

When the well blew in several weeks ago the initial production was said to be more than 2500 barrels per day, but it settled down and did 1400 barrels per day for ten days. The product was found to cut water and the well was killed. It was recemented and it is said to be 3822 feet deep—the same depth as when it was first brought in.

The recompletion of Callender No. 2 is the second real completion in the Compton field, the first occasion, when the well spouted in, having been more or less forced on the drillers because of gas pressure, which was so great that they abandoned the original plan to drill deeper and allowed the well to flow. Callender No. 1 was the first completion.

The Union Oil Company is preparing to bring in Carson No. 1. Yesterday the crew was drilling out the cement in the second attempt to get a water shutoff at 3957 feet.

It is reported that the Union is building a fourth derrick on its Callender lease on the north side of the tract, offsetting the General Petroleum Corporation's Gardena No. 1, which is expected to drill out the plug today or tomorrow.

Still Cemented

The Rosecrans well, which, according to officials of the Union Oil Company, started to drill out the plug at 3926 feet several days ago, has suddenly halted the operation after drilling partly through the cement, and is still standing cemented, it is officially reported.

The Potter well, the completion of which has been taken over by the Union Oil Company, started cleaning out yesterday. The hole is down 4520 feet. It has been standing idle for more than a year, with only 980 feet of casing in it, officials assert.

Well Completed

The Union Oil Company yesterday completed its Chapman No. 28 in the Richfield district, it is reported. The hole was 4155 feet deep, the initial production being 128 barrels per day of 32-gravity oil.

Shell Completion

Another well was added to the long list of producers owned by the Shell interests in the Signal Hill field last night when Jones No. 5, on the southeast slope of the hill, was brought in with a gauged flow of 1000 barrels a day.

The Jones No. 5 is located on the big Shell lease in the discovery area of the field, south of Panorama Drive and north of Catalina street. It is on production for the first time. The flow was running into the sump yesterday and no cut or gravity figures were available. The land on which the well is located is owned by Jonah Jones, Long Beach real-estate operator, who owns large interests at Signal Hill.

In Sticky Shale

The Tejon-Kern Oil Company, which is headed by William G. McAdoo, Jr., and which was reported to have found an oil-bearing formation in its well in the Wheeler Ridge field last week, is drilling ahead at 2750 feet in sticky shale, according to official reports. The well is located near the Wheeler Ridge postoffice, about fifteen miles east of Taft.

Production Grows

The Doyle-Clune well on Freeman street, on the east slope of Signal Hill, which was brought in by the McKeon Drilling Company on the 6th inst., is flowing 4200 barrels a day, according to J. J. Doyle, one of the owners of the well.

This well was placed on production flowing 2500 barrels a day, and was said to be one of the best wells brought in at Signal Hill in recent months.

The fact that it has increased its production 400 barrels a day, instead of dropping off, as is the rule with most new wells, is attributed to the well's isolation, no other wells having been drilled in the immediate vicinity.

Good Engineering Job

Cleaning out seventy-five feet below the shoe of a producing well without halting a flow which has been continuous for more than a year was the accomplishment yesterday at Herwick No. 7, pioneer well in the northwest extension of the Signal Hill field. Employing a Baker bailer and a patented process, Ed R. Herwick, owner of the well, and his crew succeeded in increasing the gas pressure considerable. It is confidently expected by the operator that the yield will be increased as a result of the work just completed.

Herwick No. 11, at Spring and Frankfort streets, opposite the discovery well, will be killed and deepened to 4800 or 4850 feet, it was announced yesterday by Ed R. Herwick. No. 11 has been producing about 100 barrels a day, but is though by experts to be on the top of the oil structure. Herwick No. 12, on the same lease, is drilling ahead at 4600 feet and will be carried down to about 4850 feet.

Recent completions and deepenings at wells on the west side are thought to have improved the prospects of the Herwick well considerably, operators point out. The bringing in of the Petroleum Midway's Walker and the Wilshire's Gordon, both north of Herwick No. 7, indicate that the latter well can probably be deepened for better production, Herwick declares.

Burbank Forges Ahead

Difficulties which are being encountered by the M. & H. Oil Company in the Oakridge Oil Company in their wells in the northwest extension of the Santa Fe Springs field may result in the Burbank Oil Company's well being the first to decide the possibilities of the field, in the opinion of operators who are watching the development work in that district.

The M. & H. well is engaged in a repair job, to be followed by a fishing job which will probably require several weeks to complete, and the Oakridge Oil Company's Rossi well has failed several times in its efforts to get a water shutoff. The Rossi well is now standing cemented and the crew has been shifted to other work, but will be put back on the job and the plug drilled out in the near future, officials assert. Unless the Rossi gets a shutoff in this attempt the Burbank has a good chance to be completed first, it is believed.

The Burbank was drilled out last Tuesday at 4189 feet and yesterday morning was bailed for a water test. It is planned to resume drilling today and a core will be taken immediately, according to officials of the Southern California Drilling Company who are drilling the well.

The Oakridge is rigging up its Gage and K. & B. wells preparatory to spudding in shortly, according to officials of the company.

Stands Cemented

The Bolsa Chica Oil Syndicate's well in the Long Beach field on Fruitvale avenue, south of Willow street, is down 4810 feet and is standing cemented, according to reports from the field. The Bolsa Chica well is being deepened from its original depth of 3800 feet.

Near Completion

The Bonded Syndicate's well in the Signal Hill field on Pasadena avenue and Center street is drilling ahead at 4500 feet and will be completed in about a fortnight, according to drillers.

Large Orders Are Received by Steel Mills

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CLEVELAND (O.) Feb. 14.—"Announcement of awards and reinage of steel fairly crowded the market during the past week," says Iron Trade. "At no time since the recent upswing of business two months ago has any period brought forth so many or so diversified lists of newly-created demands of major size. New mill bookings have been sustained at a heavy rate and for many producers they have been well in excess of shipments. Chicago mills especially are filling up with their deliveries. Production still is moving up. The Carnegie Steel Company has put in another blast furnace and is operating forty-eight out of fifty-nine as well as 92 per cent of its ingot capacity.

The Illinois Steel Company recently added two furnaces and is about to relight another, and is operating at 93 per cent. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation has all its steel capacity engaged. The recory of steel-ingot production in January after four months' losses was at even more rapid than pig iron. January steel output increased 17.3 per cent while the gain in pig iron was 3.6 per cent. In January the country was producing steel ingots at the annual rate of 41,460,000 tons. This represents 88.4 per cent of the high-record point reached last April.

"Orders for railroad cars just placed or on the verge of being closed, run into large figures. Those closed or near at hand, it is estimated, will call for 825,000 tons of steel. The invasion of foreign iron and steel on the Atlantic Coast continues. The recent total identified is fully 16,000 tons. At Boston 1000 tons of Belgium reinforced bars have been sold at 2.25 cents or 38 to $10 a ton under the American mill price. French structural shapes have been offered at the same figure at Boston. French billets have been sold to Portland, Me., buyers. At Providence, foreign foundry iron has sold at $21.75, duty paid, and other sales have been made in Philadelphia and New York territory. It develops that the sale of 4000 tons of French shapes for delivery at Norfolk, was for the electrification of the Virginian Railroad. French foundries have secured about 3000 tons, additional cast-iron pipe business on the Pacific Coast. The floating of the Japanese reconstruction loan, which is near at hand, will open a tremendous demand for building steel, it is believed, much of which will come to American mills. The East has been prominent in pig iron this week with sales of 125,000 to 150,000 tons at New York and Philadelphia, including 80,000 tons of basic iron to the American Bridge Company.

"The Iron Trade composite of fourteen leading iron and steel products this week is 43.83 compared with 43.49 last week."

PRODUCE MARKET IN SAN FRANCISCO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—Fruit unchanged. Demand for fruits appeared to be slower than usual. Limited stocks of apples are being withdrawn from cold storage but this movement is hardly satisfactory.

There was little change in the situation on lettuce. Prices generally ranged from $1.75@2 per crate, with an occasional sale at 2.50. Tomatoes were weaker with best Mexican stock selling around $3 per lug. Florida tomatoes moved slowly at $4@5 per lug. Green beans in demand with a range of 40@7 per pound quoted. Celery unchanged, supplies sold from 75@1.50 per pound. The potato market held about steady with moderate trading reported.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Petroleum stocks stiffened in their resistence to selling pressure yesterday on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange, and with the exception of Union Oil Associates, the finish was at firm prices. Activity in the mining list quickened while bonds were in moderate demand.

At a closing quotation of 40 3-8, General Petroleum common was up 5-8 of a point, Standard Oil of California was unchanged at 62 5-8, and Mascot Oil was awakened from a state of apathy to sell 10c higher to 1.00. Union of California sold up 1-4 to 118 1-4, while Union Oil Associates declined 3-8 of a point to 53 5-8. United States Royalties broke 2 1-2c to 17 1-2.

Trading in Richmond Consolidated overshadowed transactions in other mining shares, the shares ranging from 13 to 12c. Telluride was off 1-2c at 20 1-2 and Oatman United was active at 7c. Virginia Louise sold at 3c and Yellow Dog was up 1c at 22.

A sharp jump of 2 1-4 points occurred in Pacific Electric 5's of 1942. General Petroleum 7's of 1931 sold between 104 3-4 to 7-8, and Southern California Edison 6's of 1944 were up 1-2 point to 102.

Following are the closing quotations and sales:

DAILY MARKET LETTER OF THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The feature of the citrus fruits market was the irregularity of prices for oranges and grapefruit. There was an active demand for large sizes of California oranges. Sales of Washington navels amounted to some ten cars. Best brands ranged from $3.75 to $6.50 and on the choice grades from $2.75 to $4.10.

Florida oranges were of good quality with 176s quoted at 12½c to 25c lower while on the 200s and smaller prices were without change. The range of prices was $1.75 to $5.50.

STRAWBERRIES

Demand for Florida strawberries was slow and the general market appeared dull. There was quite a large number of boxes of prunes sold. Buying against future requirements appears for the time being to be limited. While there is no change in consequence from the high prices which have been operative it is thought that any concessions might stimulate more business. There is a continued steady demand for raising both as regards bulk goods and packages at current quotations.

Columbia River salmon are being rapidly cleaned up in the spot market at 2.52½ at 2.55 f. o. b. New York. Red Alaska talls are moving slowly at $2.35 to $2.45 f. o. b. New York, according to quality and packing. Pinks have been selling actively at from $1.32½ at $1.35 f. o. b. New York. There has been a good inquiry for California standard peaches with packers holding out for $1.80 f. o. b. the Coast.

SUGAR

More sugar was sold on Wednesday than originally reported, estimates placing the amount in excess of 100,000 tons at a price of 5 5-8c cost and freight. Canada bought some 12,000 bags of Santo Domingoes for prompt and February shipment at the same time at 5 5-8c cost and freight. There were no offers today, therefore upwards of 50,000 bags of Cubas, some 40,000 bags of Porto Ricos and several thousand tons of Philippines on the basis of 5 5-8c this forenoon, although later offerings of the same sugars came out at 5 9-16 and later buying interest developed at 5⅝c cost and freight.

Refiners have great deal of raw sugar coming to them in the course of the next couple of weeks and are expected to make rapid headway in the matter of catching up with deferred deliveries. The volume of business today was reported as limited. Some of the orders at 5.60c were being turned back. A liquidating market for raw sugar futures with first prices coming in 5 to 12 points net lower found a moderate amount of covering during the early forenoon at which period the feature seemed to be the returning strength of the distant months.

The day's sales were close to 37,000 tons which included March to May switches at even rates and March to July at a spread of 4 points.

COFFEE

After making new high levels on call the tone of the coffee futures became reactionary today. The initial gains amounted to 2 to 10 points after which a break of about 11 to 24 points was brought about through a renewal of liquidation. While recent advances have no doubt been based largely on the strength of the spot situation, today's reaction came in the face of still higher offers from Brazil although public cables indicated an easier situation. There was a rather pronounced narrowing today of the differences between the near and the distant months. After the low point of 13.35 for May; 13.11 for July; 12.92 for September and 12.75 for December had been reached, the old bull crowd came to the support of the market again resulting in net gains of about 8 to 10 points from these levels.

An irregular upward revision amounting to from ½ cent to 2 cents a pound has been named in all grades of mild coffees. No two sellers seem to agree on the price of Bogotas which are variously held at from 23½ to 25 cents a pound.

BUTTER

Receipts of butter today were 11,582 packages. The temper of the market was much weaker than any day this week. Offerings were liberal and with only fair demand extras in the creamery class dropped to 51 cents as an inside rate. Call sales were several 25-tub lots of extras at 51 cents.

Receipts of eggs today were 23,588 cases. The market showed no material change. The break of 5 cents a dozen yesterday carried values down to a point whereby sellers were unwilling to make further concessions. Buyers have been taking hold quite freely at prices now quoted arguing that they look cheap. Call sales were 50 cases California whites, extra firsts, 44 cents; 29 cases f.g. firsts at 39½ cents and 25 cases at 40 cents. Pacific Coast white extras, 45 to 46 cents; extra firsts, 43½ to 44 cents; firsts, 42½ to 43 cents.

BEANS

Increased firmness is reported in marrow beans and 12 cents is secured for choice quality. Pea beans, domestic and foreign, are quiet. White kidneys are steadier. Red kidneys improve slowly. Lima beans are steady.

The tin market is in the hands of professional market leaders who are forcing prices to spectacular heights in the face of the biggest visible supply with one ex

A FAIR RACE
The "favorite" in the oil derby pays a LITTLE profit if he wins, and it don't always win. That's the units or stock in the wells. The "long shot" in the race is the land or lease before the gushers come and when he wins he wins BIG. Our group leases in the new oil fields of New Mexico are, we think, the best "long shot" in the whole country today. 340 buys 5 acres—enough to make you rich if it "wins." A card brings full particulars and no obligation.

GAS TILT WON BY LONG BEACH

Southern Counties Plea for Injunction Denied

Sought to Keep City from Halting Pipeline

Decision May Affect Many Cities in State

The Southern Counties Gas Company lost a first tilt in court in its injunction suit against the City of Long Beach when United States District Judge James denied the company's application for a preliminary injunction to restrain the city from interfering with the proposed laying of a pine line in the city limits.

The injunction suit grew out of a lengthy battle between the city and the company which culminated in the voting by the residents of Long Beach of bonds to buy the gas company out or build their own gas plant.

The matter was taken to court by the company when the city authorities sought to prevent the company from laying a pipe line. The company applied for a permanent injunction seeking to restrain the city from interfering with the laying of the line. Pending the outcome of the trial on the main issues, the company applied for a preliminary injunction to restrain the city. This application was denied by the court.

MAY BE FAR-REACHING

The action of the court was also construed as a determination by the court that a gas company operating under the old constitutional franchise in a city to furnish light could not furnish power also except as it may be incidental to its main business. This construction would be of far-reaching import, affecting the operations of public utility gas companies in many cities in California. In denying the application for the preliminary injunction, Judge James merely kept the situation at a status quo, the company not having begun actual work on the construction of the pipe line.

As to whether or not the city of Long Beach can interfere with the laying of the pipe line will be a matter for the court to decide upon the evidence adduced at the trial on the application for a permanent injunction. It will be the contention of the company, it was reported, that it have not laying the pipe line for the purpose of furnishing power but for furnishing light as granted under the franchise. This the city denies categorically.

COMPANY NOT SURPRISED

The gas company is not surprised at the decision, according to Frank H. Bivens, district manager. "The question involves so much that a termination of the issue will be sought in the highest court of the nation," he said.

According to George A. Hart, special counsel for the city of Long Beach, the ruling is significant and indicates a decisive victory for municipal ownership and operation of public utilities.

"We went into the case thoroughly," said Mr. Hart, "at the hearing before Judge James and brought up all the questions of law that are involved. We believe that the result augurs a final decision against the legality of constitutional franchises for corporations that are supplying natural gas for fuel and power. Under the California franchise, gas companies may supply gas for light only."

Impersonation Fraud Punished With Heavy Fine

Mrs. John E. Foster, 23 years of age, was found guilty in Police Judge Pope's court yesterday on a charge of impersonating two Los Angeles women and obtaining merchandise by signing their names to orders.

Mrs. Foster, before her marriage, was employed in a downtown department store and became familiar with the methods used in ordering goods, she told Judge Pope. The temptation to obtain fine clothes for herself became too great and she decided to use her knowledge to her own advantage, she said.

The women Mrs. Foster is said to have impersonated are Mrs. C. G. Linter, 4212 Melrose avenue, and Mrs. C. B. Rhodes, 323 West Florence avenue.

After listening to the girl's story, Judge Pope fined her $250 and gave her a suspended jail sentence of thirty days.

MCCLELLAND TO RESIGN OFFICE

Letter Confirms Intention of His Deputy

Says Doney Friction is Cause of Separation

Politicians Recall Aide's Support of Lucas

Mr. Thomas E. McClelland, head of the complaint department of the District Attorney's office plans to resign within the next month, according to District Attorney Keyes.

The formal resignation has been placed in his hands, Mr. Keyes said, but Mr. McClelland has asked him his final decision to withhold from office by the first of March.

The subject of his resignation was discussed by Mr. McClelland and Mr. Keyes last November, but was continued indefinitely.

Opportunity to form a private association in private practice was given by Mr. McClelland as the reason for his desire to leave office at this time.

Both Mr. Keyes and his chief deputy denied that there had been any friction between them, and that it was responsible for the announced action.

Mr. Keyes added that he accepted Mr. McClelland's decision to remain in office with considerable regret.

Reports of the forthcoming resignation created additional ripples in the already ruffled political pool. Major McClelland was frequently looked upon as one of Lucas's strongest political supporters and advisers.

This, in the light of this supposition, the sudden appointment and the summary dismissal of Deputy Chief Lucas as Chief of Detectives of the District Attorney's office caused political significance.

Mr. Lucas was appointed by Mr. Keyes January 22, 1923, and on that time was removed "for the good of the service." The removal was announced by the announcement from Mr. Keyes that Mr. Lucas was recommended to him by the District Attorney McClelland.

Major McClelland is one of the best known deputies in the District Attorney's office. As head of the complaint department of the office he has been in charge of many investigations conducted by the county authorities. The recently-announced reforms of Mr. Keyes office include a new system of handling telephone and complaints, and Major McClelland in touch with scores of attorneys and the public.

Major McClelland received his appointment as Deputy District Attorney from Asst. Dist. Atty. Buron Fitts on May 14, 1923. He served as deputy and later in the complaint department.

Upon the appointment of Mr. Keyes, Major McClelland was named by him as the directing head of the complaint department, taking over his duties last June.

For many years he was Assistant District Attorney in Colorado. He was a major in the Colorado National Guard, and at one time was Secretary of Acting Adjutant-General of that State.

MILLIONS SOUGHT IN SUIT

C. Lewis Charges Trust Company Failed to Carry Out Palos Verdes Pact

Suit for $17,571,900, plus interest at 7 per cent from February, 1923, was filed yesterday by Edward G. Lewis against the Title Insurance & Trust Company. Lewis asserts the company failed to carry out its contract with him regarding a proposed subdivision of the Palos Verdes tract, which cost him $5,000,000 in net profits, and the suit enumerates expenses and the like.

The allegations in the suit, which was drawn and filed by Attorneys Overholtzer, Dunnaway, Edwin A. Meserve and Paul McPherson, that he had been given an option on 16,000 acres of the Palos Verdes in August, 1921, for $1,000,000, and that on December 14, 1921, he assigned this option to the trust company. The trust company, he alleges, was that $1,000,000 in underwriting profits had been obtained which was to be exercised and which proceeded with.

The company acted as such until December, until February 1, 1923, and then threw up the option without notice to Lewis and the underwriters who had paid their money back. Lewis says he was to receive 5 per cent of all registered subdivision sales and certain proceeds, and one-half of the net profits after the sales had been satisfied, in addition to expenses in mapping, promoting and advertising the project.

On February 9, 1923, he declares, the trust company announced that the $17,571,900 sales had been made and that the option would be exercised. The next day it declared its resignation as general trustee, in favor of J. [illegible] a trust officer of the [illegible] Bank. He complied with the request, but a month later the company gave up the project entirely, according to the complaint. Lewis asserts a total of $35,000,000 was realized from the sales, more than $5,000,000 was spent for advertising and that $5,000,000 was paid by the Lewis company to collect [illegible] payments.

Lewis, who has managed the Palos Verdes undertaking since its inception, resigned from the trust company, and last night that he had made it optional with the trust company whether or not it should exercise the option when it expires.

Breaks Ground for Monument

WORK ON MEMORIAL BEGINS

Mrs. McCan Turns First Spadeful of Earth on Pershing Square Site of World War Monument

Mrs. Martha Nelson McCan, as president of the Park Commission, yesterday morning turned the first spadeful of sod at the northwest corner of Pershing Square for the excavation of the World War memorial.

At once workmen began digging away for the space where the huge piece of red granite will rest. On it will stand a heroic bronze, depicting a soldier with a flag, a piece now being done by Humberto Pedretti in his studio, 1633 Cosmo street.

About the base of the monument will stand two cannon, of great historic interest in California.

UNVEILING MAY 30

On Washington's Birthday, the 22nd inst., the base will be officially laid, and on May 30, the statue will be unveiled. The cannon are now in the railway yard here. They are two 150,000-pound guns, which were a part of the first land defenses of San Francisco Bay, constructed by the United States after the overthrow of the Mexican regime. The cannon were obtained from the War Department by Maj. Robert C. Cotton, U.S.A., instructor of the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry, California National Guard, who is chairman of the monument committee.

The Santa Fe Railway donated the transportation from Fort Winfield Scott, the Presidio, San Francisco, where the guns have been resting since the period of their usefulness. They will add to the military interest in Pershing Square, where there already is a fine old piece of artillery, a bronze cannon of French manufacture, which served with the Napoleonic armies, was taken by the Spanish and found its way to Cuba, where it was taken by the American forces.

STILL NEED $1000

The monument is to be dedicated to "The Sons and Daughters of Los Angeles Who Participated in the World War." The cost as originally estimated was $10,000, half of which has been raised, but Maj. Cotton yesterday said an extra $1000 would be necessary because of the use of red granite for the base.

Among those who took part in the ceremony yesterday were Mrs. McCann, Maj. Cotton, Signor Pedretti, Roger Andrews, vice-president of the Citizens National Bank, treasurer of the monument committee; H. E. Newton of Truesdell & Newton, architects for the monument, and Charles O. Brittain, in charge of the construction.

I.W.W. OPEN MEETING IS PUT TO ROUT

Organizers at Harbor Accused of Criminal Syndicalism

An attempt by I.W.W. organizers to hold an open-air meeting last night at Fourth and Beacon streets, Los Angeles Harbor, was met with a raid by a squad headed by Sergt. A. A. Green. A crowd of several hundred was dispersed and four men, said to be ringleaders, were arrested.

Those arrested are Virgil Donatoni, 27 years of age, laborer; Fred Miller, 33, boilermaker; Andy Laurier, 35, seaman, and Robert Bellmont, 22, laborer. They were placed in the harbor jail on charges of criminal syndicalism.

Miller is said by the police to have been arrested several times on similar charges and to have served jail terms. He was active in the Wobbly strike last spring and has only recently reappeared at the habor, police said. Laurier is said to have been the chairman at the Wobbly meeting last Friday that was closed by the police.

Last night's arrests bring the total in the past four days to twenty, the police said.

CRYER TO OPEN HARBOR INQUIRY

Irregularity in Granting of Leases Seen

Low Rental Abolished Last July is Basis

Council Votes to Commence Doheny Action

Mayor Cryer declared yesterday he will make a rigid investigation of the action of the harbor board on Wednesday in granting a ten-year lease on waterfront property to the Pan-Pacific Construction Company, and will take whatever action the facts warrant.

"I shall confer with Commissioner Colden at once," he said. "I have no knowledge of the matter at present, other than what I have read in the morning paper."

The lease to the construction company of which Emil Cykler is president was granted at the low rental rate in effect before July 1, over protests of Commissioner Colden, and without a formal application being before the board, it is said. Commissioner Kibele and President McKee shouted down Commissioner Colden's objections and voted the lease.

FIGHT DOHENY LEASE

The City Council yesterday voted to start court action at once to test the validity of the lease given by the Harbor Board to E. L. Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum Company. This action had been recommended by Mayor Cryer and the Council's harbor committee. This lease was of seven acres of Pier 1, which is municipally owned, and was for thirty years.

City Attorney Stephens is in Washington appearing before the Supreme Court, and during his absence Assistant City Attorney L. E. Whitehead is Acting City Attorney. Mr. Whitehead said yesterday:

"In accordance with the Council's instructions I shall at once call into conference those attorneys who have declared the Doheny lease illegal, so that we can all join in a petition to Superior Court asking for a hearing. Thus a decision can be obtained from the courts as to the legality of the lease and the rights of interested parties. The law provides for an action when there is a dispute as to the legality of a grant of this kind. Each party will set forth its position to the court, and I assume that Mr. Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum Company will take part in the application. The City Attorney's office will defend the lease, as the charter provides that the City Attorney shall defend the acts of city officials, boards and commissions."

DIDN'T CARRY SATCHELS

President Workman of the City Council yesterday said that as he was on his way to the Council chamber three men, well known and prominent in Los Angeles, approached him in the corridor and asked him to withhold presentation of the harbor committee's report recommending that legal proceedings be started to test the legality of the Doheny lease of Pier 1. President Workman said he told the men that the committee report was before the Council and that their request could not be complied with.

President Workman declined yesterday to make public the names of the three men who approached him.

"No," said President Workman, "none of the men carried satchels. They did not tell me why they wanted me to withhold the harbor committee report. Of course, if I were called before a court and placed under oath I should give the names of the men who spoke to me."

Cykler's Pan-American Construction Company, which received on Wednesday the ten-year lease on west basin frontage, is under contract to build a $170,000 wharf for Mr. Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum Company at the disputed Pier 1 lease, showing that the oil company is proceeding to occupy its leased seven acres of the city

JOBS OF JUSTICES STOLEN

Kidnaper Slips Into Hall of Records and Grabs Juicy Fees from New-Made Couples

The kidnaping justice of the peace has appeared in Los Angeles township, if one is to credit the rumpus that raged yesterday in justice of the peace circles. Whom does this certain justice of the peace kidnap? is a fair question that the other justices of the peace answer with one word, "couples," which is justice of the peace cant for brides and bridegrooms.

It is one of the greatest scandals that ever came to pass in the justice of the peace line of endeavor. It came out yesterday in all its sordid details at an indignation meeting of the nine justices of the peace hereabout, the accused justice not being invited. Afterward, the presiding justice, Mr. Baird, took the charges and laid them before County Supervisor Bean, who was staggered and gasped that he would investigate.

The charges are more or less as follows:

A certain justice of the peace, whose courtroom is some distance removed from Temple street, has the quaint habit of sojourning in the corridor of the Hall of Records conveniently near the mar-

FUNERAL JOY-RIDER IS FREED

There was a young man named Clyde,
At a funeral once was applied.
When asked who is dead,
"I don't know," he said,
"I've only just come for the ride."

H. Aminta's name is not Clyde but the above lines tell more or less clearly what he did. And Judge Keetch of Superior Court, after hearing Aminta's story, ruled yesterday that taking a ride in one of the machines composing a funeral procession is not joyriding. Therefore he dismissed the joyriding charge against Aminta.

Philip Salcido, also charged with joyriding in the funeral procession and afterward, did not fare so well. His trial was continued and will be resumed today. The two men it is charged, were given $10 to hire a car which was to travel with the funeral procession. They kept the money, it is asserted, and took the first car they came to. Aminta rode in the car during the funeral but Salcido, it is declared, used it for joyriding purposes after the funeral.

EXPERTS VISIT JULIAN FIELDS

Prominent Los Angeles Men Inspect Oil Holdings

Trip Preliminary to Study of Companies' Assets

Promoter Conducts Party to Wells and Leases

A committe of prominent Los Angeles oil experts and financiers spent most of the day yesterday in making a trip of inspection over the producing properties and other physical assets of the C. C. Julian oil enterprises. This was in accordance with an arrangement made in the interests of the Julian stockholders and acceded to by Mr. Julian.

Accompanied by Mr. Julian and A. C. Julian, purchasing agent of the Julian Petroleum Corporation, the bankers and oil men making up the committee toured the oil fields in the Los Angeles basin, visiting the Santa Fe Springs, Whittier, Huntington Beach, Lomita, Torrance and Compton fields, and inspecting the Julian holdings in Los Angeles, Norwalk, at the harbor and in Wilmington.

No statement was issued by the committee after the tour. The committee will meet again, at the call of the charman, Judge William Rhodes Hervey, probably some time next week. A conference with Mr. Julian will follow this meeting.

TRIP IS PRELIMINARY

Yesterday's trip was a preliminary step necessary to acquaint the committee with the nature and scope of Mr. Julian's undertakings. A more thorough and detailed study of each individual property and asset will be necessary before the companies can be examined, members declared.

With ex-Judge Hervey in yesterday's party were Irving H. Hellman, R. C. Gillis, William T. Bishop and Charles H. Treat. William Lacy, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who attended the first conference with Mr. Julian last Monday, did not make the trip.

ORANGE EXHIBIT OPENS TONIGHT

San Bernardino Dressed Up for National Show

Displays Surpass Those of Other Years

Editors and Governor to be Saturday Guests

The lights will flash on tonight at San Bernardino, which will bring into being the fourteenth National Orange Show, California's great midwinter event. The city is bedecked in its best dress, banners and flags everywhere. The pressing of an electric button will cause thousands of lights to flash. It will be the signal that the great citrus classic of 1924 is ready.

The verdict of the 1924 show rests with the public, but the orange-show officials believe that the climax in expositions has been reached. These officials know that there are more feature displays than ever before in the history of the show. They know that more money and more time has been expended. They believe that the displays are more beautiful but the final verdict must be that of the public.

DISPLAYS EXTENSIVE

Last year there were thirteen feature displays. This year there are eighteen. One will see a glimpse of Old China, for the decorations have been carried out after the Mandarin fashion. There are Chinese temples, bridges, lanterns, carvings, silks, satins and bamboo, a life-size elephant, a wonderful fountain, the tower of jewels—eighteen displays that are marvels of workmanship, delightful by reason of their coating by California's golden fruits.

San Bernardino is filled with visitors. Tomorrow is editorial day, when Gov. Richardson and several hundred editors will be present. Secretaries of all Chambers of commerce in the Southland will hold a meeting and attend the show. For the next ten days tens of thousands of persons will make the trip to San Bernardino.

The feature exhibitors, that is those which will have what is known as feature displays, are: Fresno, Riverside, Redlands, Ontario, Pomona, Bloomington, Fontana, Colton, Hemet-San Jacinto, San Bernardino city, Santa Monica, San Diego, Elephant Orchards, Santa Fe, Pacific Electric, San Gabriel Valley Associated Chambers of Commerce, Orange county and Mutual Orange Distributors.

Here are the various departments of the show: Fruit rack section, feature display section, automobile show, industrial show, department of citrus by-products, department of citrus education and amusement zone.

DOZEN BANDS TO PLAY

A dozen bands will play during the show, headed by the Santa Monica band under leadership of Tomasino. Orchestras and singers and dancers of high class will provide other entertainment.

Special excursions have been planned from the bay district and from Long Beach by way of the Pacific Electric. Lions, Rotarians and Kiwanians will have special days at the show and thousands of members will form automobile cavalcades on these days.

One of the features of the orange show period will be that of the Sciots, who will visit San Bernardino to the number of 3000 on the 23rd inst. At that time they will give away to a good couple, a tiny baby. The baby will be given away because it has no home. And the Sciots are going to see to it that the baby is well cared for in the way of gifts of money for years to come.

San Bernardino is ready for the throngs. The National Orange Show is ready.

MAY BAR BORDER AT NIGHT

Federal Agent Asks Curfew to Loosen Mexicali's Vice Tentacles from Imperial County

A recommendation that the international border at Calexico be closed at 8 p.m. every day, instead of being opened all night was made to the Department of Justice yesterday by Agent-in-Charge Lucien Wheeler.

Mexicali has been made the clearing-house for opium within the past few days as the result of the issuance of special licenses to two opium-smoking dens here, according to information sent Agent Wheeler for transmission to the State Department by American Consul Von Strub at the border city.

Prominent citizens of Imperial county, said Wheeler, are telegraphing California Senators and Congressmen protesting the opening of these dens and asking them to use their influence to back Wheeler's request.

Gov. Richardson, who was in Mexicali yesterday, met Gov.-Gen. Rodriguez, but declined to comment upon the charges of Wheeler, stating that that was not a part of his duties.

"I acted with the hope that the matter will be taken up with the State Department at Washington," said Mr. Wheeler, "and that some arrangement may be worked out with the Mexican authorities in an effort to save Imperial county from ruin."

U. S. Atty. Burke, when acquainted with the facts, stated that the matter would probably be taken up with the Federal grand jury for the Southern District of California, with the intention of having that body make representations of its own.

JOHN M'CORMACK IN CITY

Famous Singer Here for Two Concerts Next Week at Philharmonic Auditorium

Carrying his hat in his hand out of reverence for Duse, who, he thinks, is the greatest ever, and preparing to peel off his overcoat and exchange his cane for a tennis racket, John McCormack, famous singer, arrived in Los Angeles last night.

As the village scribe might style it, Mr. McCormack is here on a combined business and pleasure trip. He will give two concerts at the Philharmonic Auditorium, next Tuesday and Thursday. Between times he will go to hear Duse and play tennis with Maurice McLoughlin, once the world's greatest tennis player. Mr. McLoughlin was on hand at the Southern Pacific depot to greet Mr. McCormack and his party.

Looking the picture of health, radiating his Irish humor, his soft hat slightly cocked on his head, a white muffler peaking out over the top of his black overcoat and his big cane hanging on his arm, Mr. McCormack let flow some genial "wise cracks" to friends and admirers who met him.

"You can say that I am in Los Angeles to hitch my cart to a comet," he laughingly said, referring to his tennis playing with McLoughlin, who was known as the "Comet" in the tennis world.

"Oh, this is a great place, Southern California," he continued. "I

HEAVY FOOT ON THROTTLE IS ANSWER TO BANDIT PAIR; MAN'S $600 ROLL IS SAVED

The cold feet of two automobile bandits and the heavy foot of L. Redman of 1139 East Sixty-second street, enabled the latter to escape a hold-up late yesterday and deposit $600 in the bank as he originally intended.

Redman was riding in his auto to the bank when another car crowded him to the curb at Central and Jefferson avenues.

"Stop your car and give us your money," one of the two men in the car shouted, waving a pistol.

Sizing up the situation, Redman stamped his foot on the accelerator, turned north on Central and speeded away.

As Redman faded in the distance he looked around. The bandits were evidently dumfounded by the show of nerve.

University police have good description of the men.

RADICAL FACES MUTINY CHARGE

Captain May Act Against One of Two on Ship

Deportation of Both is Advised by Board

Men Said to Have Tried to Wreck Boat

Although the Immigration Board of Inquiry yesterday recommended the deportation of Julius Anderson and Louis Poltaret, asserted I.W. W's accused of trying to wreck the freighter El Cedro on British Columbia rocks on the 6th inst., it appears probable charges of attempted mutiny will be sworn to by the ship's captain today against Anderson. Penalty of $1000 or five years' imprisonment or both may be imposed for such crime, and the man then deported.

The order for deportation yesterday followed an investigation by the board of the near-wreck and other asserted radical activities of the pair. Anderson indicated he would not appeal from the decision, and unless tried for attempted mutiny, will be deported at once to Denmark.

Poltaret will be sent back to Ukrania unless he appeals his case to the Department of Labor within forty-eight hours.

In addition to testimony of Capt. W. R. Brust and other officers that he wrested the wheel from Anderson when the ship was within a few feet of the rocks in Massett Inlet, large supplies of Wobbly literature, said to have been taken from the men, were introduced as evidence.

Before the board met, it was also revealed that the Canadian Royal Mounted police had traced the pair aboard ship on suspicion they had broadcast Red circulars throughout one Canadian town and tried to stir up strife.

It was through the diplomacy of Capt. Brust that the two were permitted to sail south, according to C. J. Mahar, port officer of the Los Angeles Lumber Products Steamship Company, which operates the freighter. A few hours after this deed of kindness, it is asserted, the two turned against the captain, and Anderson sought to pile the ship on the rocks. Both were subdued and brought here in irons on the 12th inst. They are now detained by the Immigration authorities in the Wilmington jail, Los Angeles Harbor.

STEALS JOBS OF CITY JUSTICES

riage license bureau. He is accused of employing those gentry commonly known as cappers, who, the charges go, solicit business from the young men and women, or those not so young (the cappers care not) who emerge from the marriage license bureau with the county's permission to wed written on a sheet of paper and also on their smiling faces.

Now, those desiring justice of the peace marriages ordinarily must leave the Hall of Records and walk a good distance north to the old Alhambra Hotel, where the local justices of the peace court rooms now are situated, and then maybe wait until his honor has finished hearing some action of law.

But the out-of-town justice of the peace, the other justices of the peace say, is of such an uncommonly accommodating disposition that he leaves his own courtroom at dull times, like Saturday afternoon, and, driving in his limousine through the green fields to Los Angeles, takes his stand in front of the marriage license bureau. In this way he can marry people right on the spot, for a justice of the peace in such matters may consider his courtroom under his hat.

The marriage fees of a justice of the peace fetch him from $2.50 to $10 a couple and the speed of doing the job makes it a highly desirable part of the justice's activities.

Awhile back the local justices noticed that their marriage fees were falling off. At first they thought that love was perishing in these parts, but one or two of them investigated and, they say, caught the rural justice in the act, doing a land-office business.

All this is held to be unethical, but there is some question about the matter. A lawyer is forbidden to employ solicitors, but there is no precedent against a lawyer who has become a judge from doing it, for the simple reason, it is said, that it never has been done before.

FOUR HELD IN POMONA CASE

Testimony Shows "Orgies" Consisted of Few Auto Rides and Occasional Bottle Tilting

Tales of asserted strip-poker parties in Pomona failed to reach the ears of Superior Judge Archbald yesterday when the cases of seven youths, charged with contributing to the delinquency of two minor girls, were called for hearing.

The so-called orgies, according to the testimony heard, consisted solely of a few automobile rides and an infrequent tilting of liquor bottles.

Of the seven boys who appeared in court, Jess Rabin and Orville Wyatt pleaded guilty to the contributing charge, which was based upon evidence that the two boys had given liquor to Aletta Brunton, 16 years of age, and Elsie Brunton, 18. The two youths asked for probation and their hearing was set for the 28th inst.

Jules Tissell and Ellsworth DeYoung pleaded not guilty, but following the testimony in their cases, were bound over to the Superior Court. Bonds were set at $3000 each. The cases of Ernest Evans, William Dougall and Norman McCoy were dismissed, the testimony of the girls showing that the three boys had not given liquor to them. Ralph Graveson, a juvenile, was held to answer in Juvenile Court.

Aletta Brunton told Judge Archbald that Jules Tissel and Ellsworth DeYoung had brought liquor to her home and had then taken her for an automobile ride. During the ride, she stated, she was given liquor by Tissell and DeYoung, which made her "dizzy and drunk-like."

Elsie Brunton testified that Ralph Graveson and another boy had brought liquor to her house on Armistice day, that they drank, played cards and danced during the evening.

"We drank from a glass that had 'Ladies,' 'Gents' and 'Hogs' engraved on it. I drank as high as 'Ladies.' Graveson drank as 'Hogs,'" the girl said.

Ruth Pickerell, 16 years of age, who is in the custody of her parents, testified to having gone on parties with William Dougall and Norman McCoy, but that no liquor was present at the parties. The cases against Dougall and McCoy were dismissed by Judge Archbald.

Six other cases, involving six other Pomona youths, are yet to be heard by Judge Archbald. Lester Devlin will appear in Juvenile Court on the 21st inst.; Jack Flamm and Dave Mills on the 26th inst.; George Trotter and Bob Bird on the 21st inst., and Norman Hill on March 6. Charges of giving liquor to juvenile girls, a contributing charge, constitute the complaints.

MEXICAN VICE CURB ASKED

such evidences of vice as are openly flourishing in Mexicali at this time," said Mr. Wheeler. "My agents have reported conditions from time to time, but I doubted the accuracy of their statements. I made a trip there to observe conditions and I was astounded at what I saw.

FESTERING SORE

"That place is a festering sore and should be cleaned out. The most depraved vice is publicly practiced, and apparently no efforts are made to curb it. Gambling, drinking and prostitution are carried on in great temples erected to catch the wages of Imperial Valley residents. That hell-hole is draining the resources and the health of the entire county. Business men told me that the workers on the ranches near-by are unable to pay their just debts nor to properly care for their families, as all their earnings are frittered away at the bars and gaming tables of Mexicali.

"The specific dangers to Southern California, beside the monetary loss, is that Mexicali is a center for booze, narcotic and Chinese smuggling. It is impossible to stop it at present, as Mexicali and Calexico are practically the same town, divided by one large street.

"While I was there I saw 250 young American girls, devoted to a life of shame, associating with filthy men of all breeds. Most of these girls are recruited from Southern California homes.

COUNTY UP IN ARMS

"The respectable element of Imperial county is up in arms. There have been thousands of appeals sent in to Washington to have this situation brought to a stop. One Sunday I heard an entire congregation lift up its voice in prayer that that sink of depravity be wiped from the earth.

"The ramifications of financial backers of Mexicali's dens are banking their money on the American side of the line and are said to have formed a slush fund for the purpose of fighting any attempt at closing the line. I understand that the organization extends to Los Angeles, where numerous people are interested in the houses of vice here.

EARLY CLOSING IS SOLUTION

"To my way of thinking the best manner in which to put a stop to the vice traffic of Mexicali is to close the border early in the evening. That would put the gambling joints and hop dens out of business."

Mexicali is the capital of the Northern District of Lower California, under the command of Gen. Rodriguez. Four disastrous fires have raged over Mexicali in the past five years, destroying saloons, gambling palaces and houses, as well as narcotic dens and large stocks of liquor, but each time the places have been built up larger than before. The Governor's Palace and the newly-established brewery are the most prominent edifices in the border city.

eer, and a party of newspapermen and photographers, made up the rest of the party.

The committee met at 9 o'clock in the morning in the office of ex-Judge Hervey, Pacific-Southwest and Trust and Savings Bank, and from there drove to the Julian central loading station, at Date and Alhambra streets. The members of the party were shown the land which Mr. Julian said will be used for a central distributing depot of his corporation, and a few temporary buildings now on the property.

WELLS ARE VISITED

The next stop was Whittier, where Mr. Julian pointed out a Julian Petroleum Corporation lease. On the way from Whittier the party was shown the Julian syndicate's wells at Santa Fe Springs.

The tank farm at Norwalk was the next stop. There the inspecting party was shown the storage tanks, pumping equipment with which the oil can be pumped to the loading tanks at the harbor, the boiler house, the other equipment necessary to the tank farm. A system of pipe lines, Mr. Julian said, connects this tank farm with the other units of the corporation's plants.

From Norwalk the automobiles carrying the party went to Huntington Beach, where Mr. Julian showed three producing wells as part of the corporation's assets. After getting their shoes covered with oil members of the party had lunch and drove to the harbor loading plant.

PUMPS IN OPERATION

There Mr. Julian led the committee over the ground leased by his corporation. The two tanks on this property, Mr. Julian explained, receive the oil pumped from the Norwalk tank farm. The Norwalk pumps were in operation when the committee called.

The Lomita and Torrance fields were the next visited. Mr. Julian showed the committee four Julian wells, some on production and others drilling. Only a brief inspection was made here.

The last stop was at the Julian refinery site, in the Wilmington district, comprising 231 acres. A number of steel storage tanks are already erected on the site. These tanks, the promoter explained, are connected with the adjacent fields at Lomita and Torrance, and are in turn connected up with the other Julian properties by a series of trunkline pipes.

pier regardless of the question which has been raised as to the legality of the grant.

Cykler's west basin lease is the latest of several large contracts he has received from the Harbor Board during the past year, these including a $147,000 order for concrete-asphalt piling, a $410,000 contract for dredging the west basin and an inside track on filling twenty streets in the Wilmington district from dirt dredged from the west basin. The estimated cost of filling, severing and paving these streets is $1,500,000.

SAYS PILING LEAKS

Harbor Engineer Ludlow has reported to the Harbor Commissioners that Cykler's patented piling, instead of being waterproof, leaks, but Mr. Cykler says that this is due to manufacturing errors which he says will be corrected at once. Harbor Engineer Ludlow has reported that the Cykler waterproof piling is sound in principle, but the piles leak. When the purchase of a large order of Cykler's piling was first before the Harbor Board a year ago, Engineer Vincent declined to recommend the purchase of a large lot of them until further tests had been made. So Harbor Engineer Vincent was given "the gate" by the Harbor Board, which proceeded to purchase the piling, and later on appointed Ludlow, who had been assistant to Vincent.

The lease of Pier 1 to Mr. Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum Company was given eight days before the Harbor Board raised its rental rates at the harbor, and also the lease to Cykler was given at old rates, although these rates were discarded months ago. Companies holding leases of city land at the harbor at the new increased rates strongly protested yesterday the asserted favoritism shown Cykler by the Harbor Board and said that they would join in a petition to the board for a reduction in their rentals to the same level as those charged Doheny and Cykler.

PLAN TO SELL ARIZONA HERE

Phoenix Chamber Will Open Branch in City

Delegates Declare State is Most Prosperous

Year Has Promise of Being Best in Decade

Every indication points to the most prosperous twelvemonth Arizona has known in ten years. This was the greeting brought to Los Angeles yesterday by a delegation of the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, which will establish a branch office here today or tomorrow.

In the delegation are H. B. Watkins, secretary of the Phoenix chamber; Eben E. Lane of the Phoenix Real Estate Board, and Dick Smith, district freight and passenger agent of the Arizona Eastern Railroad and the Southern Pacific Company. They were met here by Fred H. Watson, general passenger agent at Los Angeles of the Southern Pacific, who will assist them in finding headquarters.

All three delegates yesterday worked with all six hands, spreading local color, so that the picture given here of current conditions in Arizona is a composite production.

"We are here," they said, "to sell you a little of your own stuff. You know we raise everything in the Salt River Valley of Arizona that you raise in Los Angeles county, from cantaloupes to cattle and from chickens to citrus fruits. So what we propose is to disseminate a little promotion atmosphere here, right in the home-town center of the industry, so to speak, in an effort to attract a few of the surplus farmers you don't need.

"You supply the farmers, we supply the acreage. They buy here anyway. Forty-two thousand carloads of merchandise eastbound passed through Phoenix or ended their journey there last year, and 90 per cent of the haul was from Los Angeles.

"Arizona had the best rains this winter that the State has enjoyed in five years. When Julius Barnes, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who spoke in Los Angeles last week, paid us a visit on his way east we took him for a 100-mile motor trip through the surrounding desert.

"'Where's the desert?' he asked.

"'All around you,' he was told.

"'Why, that's not desert,' he rejoined, 'that's pasture.'

"There is more water in Roosevelt Lake today than at any time these past three years, and that means a supply sufficient for the next three years. The cattle ranges were never richer in forage. Last year our cotton acreage netted $105 an acre on 95,000 acres. This year we shall have 120,000 acres under cultivation.

"Real estate activity thus far this year is ten-fold what it was in the corresponding period of 1923. We still have a building shortage, in common with the rest of the country, but are rapidly cutting it down. The gross crop for all Salt River Valley products last year was worth $25,000,000. Bank clearings last week were $1,300,000, a heavy increase over the corresponding week a year ago. All the copper camps are humming with business. A poll last week of the directors of the Phoenix chamber showed that all of them reported better conditions to date in 1924 than they have known in four years, with prospects better still."

One hundred members of the Los Angeles chamber will be the guests of the Phoenix chamber on March 21. Their visit has been timed to coincide with the annual session of the Arizona Industrial Congress. The Phoenix delegates were emphatic in telling of the helpful co-operation extended to them by business interests of this city and by the Los Angeles chamber in particular. Their organization here will carry a branch staff of three. Announcement of their location will be made later.

BORDER OFFICERS AT LOGGERHEADS

HUNDREDS TURNED BACK ON EACH SIDE OF LINE IN CONTROVERSY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CALEXICO, Feb. 14.—Traffic between this border town and Mexicali, just across the international line in Mexico, was thrown into confusion today when a misunderstanding between American and Mexican immigration officials over passports caused hundreds of Americans and Mexicans on either side of the line to be turned back when they attempted to cross.

This morning American immigration officials turned back 150 Mexicans employed on American soil when they failed to show passports or head tax receipts. Mexican authorities retaliated by refusing admission to any American who had less than $100 on his person. Reprisal followed retaliation with popular indignation growing on both sides, but neither Mexican nor American officials tonight held out any hope that the new restrictions would be relaxed tomorrow.

IMPROVEMENTS GRANTED

The final ordinance for the improvement of Beechwood Drive from Temple Hill drive to Franklin avenue was adopted yesterday by the City Council. The work will be done at once so that Pacific Electric busses can operate over this street and give needed transportation facilities to the district.

ASSERTED BANDIT CAUGHT

Suspect in Pacific Electric Hold-up at Sherman Captured by El Paso Police

W. H. Yates, asserted gunman and bandit chief, wanted here in connection with a spectacular hold-up and robbery at Sherman on December 3, 1923, is under arrest at El Paso.

Extradition papers for the return of the suspect to this city are on the way here from Sacramento, and Detective Lieutenant Oker is expected to leave for El Paso today to bring Yates back.

The search for Yates has been in progress since four desperadoes held up two Pacific Electric officials at Sherman on December 3 and robbed them of $4000. The bandits were trailed into the Hollywood hills and two of them finally run to earth in one of the canyons. In the battle which followed one of the bandits was shot and seriously wounded, and the other captured.

The wounded gunman is Arthur Goslin, who is still at the General Hospital, recovering from his wounds. His accomplice, Howard Hanna, was recently sentenced to serve from five years to life at San Quentin.

Police declare that Hanna was the leader of the bandit quartet, and that he planned the hold-up.

M'CORMACK IN CITY ON VISIT

like it so well that I'm coming back here some time to stay. You know, Los Angeles is making great strides in taking a leading place in the musical world. The city is to be congratulated. Music has a great place in our lives. We ought to begin teaching it to our young children very early in their lives. It should be compulsory in all our schools as a great developer of the spiritual side of us."

With Mr. McCormack were Edwin Schneider, his accompanist; Lauri Kennedy, Australian 'cellist, and D. F. McSweeney, his manager.

Kathleen Key, great-granddaughter of Francis Scott Key, composer of "The Star Spangled Banner," was at the train to meet Mr. McSweeney, an old friend.

According to L. E. Behymer, of the Philharmonic, Mr. McCormack will spend a few weeks on the Pacific Coast.

FILM ACTOR SAVES PAIR FROM SURF

Rescue at Ocean Park Fourth in Two Days by Byron Munson

Harry La Barre and Stewart McLean, St. Paul boxers, were rescued from drowning at the beach near Crystal Pier late yesterday by Byron Munson, motion-picture actor and volunteer lifeguard, according to reports from Ocean Park. Both men were unconscious when they were taken from the surf.

The rescues make four in two days to the credit of the lifeguard. Wednesday Munson saved Willie Bernstein, fight manager, and a swimmer whose name was not learned.

Both near victims yesterday were warned against going into the surf at a particularly dangerous point. The boxers had been on the beach working out before the swim.

Munson had a struggle to pull the swimmers out. Both were revived after first aid had been administered and are apparently none the worse for their experience.

Johnny O'Donnell, another St. Paul boxer, who was in swimming at the time, narrowly escaped the treacherous eddy. He was carried to safety by George Manley, another boxer.

ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOLS INCREASING

January Report of City Superintendent Shows 27,000 Gain in Year

Daily attendance in the public schools during January showed an increase of 27,000 over January, 1923, according to a report made to the Board of Education yesterday by Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, superintendent of schools. Basing her estimate on the school increase, Mrs. Dorsey figured that the increase in the population of the city during the year amounted to nearly 200,000.

A report was submitted showing that seventy-seven children were spanked by teachers and principals during the last semester of school. Under the State law, teachers are required to report to the superintendent immediately when they are forced to us corporal punishment.

Bandit Believed Shot Is Hunted Among Doctors

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Feb. 14.—Hospitals and doctors' offices were watched by the police tonight in hope that a hold-up man, believed to have been wounded by J. D. Harris, 821 West Fourth street, would be forced to seek treatment. Harris succeeded in pulling a revolver from his pocket when the bandit jumped on his back outside Harris's grocery store at Fourth street and Golden avenue. He was confident one of the two shots he fired took effect.

WIFE OF POLICEMAN IS ACCUSED IN SUIT

LOVE FOR ANOTHER MAN IS GIVEN AS CAUSE FOR MATE'S PLEA

Mrs. Lillian B. Partin violated a court order and associated with a man named in her husband's divorce suit, according to charges under consideration by Judge Shaw yesterday. The case is to be resumed the 27th inst. The husband, Charles H. Partin, a police officer, declared two fist fights had been the result of the asserted attentions of M. J. Schenard to his wife. Violation of the court order was denied by Mrs. Partin.

Partin declared his wife had been seen in company with Schenard despite the order of the court that she keep away from him. The custody of two minor children had been awarded to her pending trial of the contested divorce suit on that condition.

Mrs. Partin had originally asserted her husband was guilty of misconduct with other women and that at one time he had threatened her with a revolver. In his cross-complaint Partin declared Schenard was responsible for all their domestic troubles.

Former Teller at Long Beach Denied Leniency

C. M. Talbott, former teller at the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank branch in Long Beach, who pleaded guilty to embezzlement, yesterday was denied probation by Superior Judge Houser and sentenced to San Quentin penitentiary for from one to ten years.

Talbott was a co-defendant of Murdock Kelly in the case, the latter having convicted two weeks ago. He also was sentenced to San Quentin. According to the prosecution, the two embezzled several thousands of dollars of the bank's funds through a system whereby Talbott cashed checks for Kelly which were held the drafts up until Kelly could "cover" on them.

Talbott, in pleading guilty to the charge, contended he was the unfortunate victim of circumstances and asked the court for leniency. He was the principal witness for the State in the prosecution of Kelly. An appeal is now pending in the court's findings at Kelly's trial.

BRICK BUILDING DRIVE IS URGE

Speaker Tells Convention Boom Activity

Quality and Advertising Ke to Success

California Needs Permane Homes, Says Expert

"We build good ships—at profit, if we can, at a loss when must. But we build good ships."

Something of the spirit in t famous motto of a famous firm what the national convention of the Common Brickmakers' Asso ation of America, in session he at the Biltmore, was told yeste day that its members must put i their product if they wish it to s ive against intense competiti from other building materials.

Preach permanency, deliv higher quality at lower pric standardize, advertise, distribu was the advice of speakers who a dressed the convention.

Reginald Johnson, president the Southern California chapter the American Institute of Arc tects, urged brickmakers to l their influence for more permane construction. "We need just good construction here in Sout ern California," he said, "as in t East.

"Put emphasis on the perm nency and don't be afraid if the is incidental mention of other m terials, such as hollow tile, co crete and stucco. Some of you advertising experts may tell you all wrong, but I believe th any influence you can exert in th direction of better building w help sell bricks.

ADDED COST SMALL

"Few persons realize how litt additional cost is required to buil at least the exterior walls of structure in permanent material Many architects themselves fail t realize, and of course the custome doesn't know unless he is tol Some of you brickmakers your selves may not realize. We n need education in permanency."

Prof. Hewitt Wilson, consultan to the Pacific Northwest Cla Workers' Association, urged th need of standards. "What is common brick?" he asked. "No body knows. It is one thing i Pennsylvania, another in Indian and another in California. But know what Portland cement is. Know its chemical composition. know what its breaking strengt is. None of you can tell me th breaking strenth of a commo brick. Specifying common bric means nothing, because there is n agreement on definitions.

"What the makers of cemen have done the makers of bricks ca do. It will be more difficult, be cause your materials vary, but it can be done, and I urge it upon you as necessary if you hope to com bat the falling curve in the con sumption of common brick and th rising curve in the consumption o Portland cement.

QUALITY ADVOCATED

"This organization is the instru ment for that task, but in strivin for increased production are you also prepared to give higher qual ity at lower cost? You can unite in many things, but to improve quality you must go out into your own yards individually. Quality is something that each manufacturer has to obtain for himself."

F. L. Steinhoff, managing editor of the Brick and Clay Record, exhibited charts showing what the rising curve of brick consumption ought to be, based on the ascent of a long term of years prior to 1916, and what it actually is. The graph is a jagged and precipitous decline from 1916 to 1918, with a relative slow recovery since that year. The level today has not yet risen nearly to the previous peak.

National advertising, price, quality and service were his prescription. The first three were essential, but in themselves they were worthless, lacking service—that is, distribution.

ADVERTISING AIDS

There must be, he said, intensive distribution through dealers. The brickmakers must help the dealers, by national advertising, the dealers would help the brickmakers by local distribution. They would connect the product and the customer, the demand and the supply.

"Seventy-five per cent of other building materials are handled through dealers," he said, "and less than 40 per cent of common brick. It is significant that while the demand for your product has been falling away, the demand for tiled brick has risen inversely. Your graph is way below normal consumption and theirs is way above it. Ever since they started a huge promotional campaign, with an advertising fund of $1,000,000, they have kept climbing."

Other papers on the program Saturday were "Brick in Architecture," by D. Knickerbacker Boyd of Philadelphia, an expert on structural standardiz, and "Co-operation Between Building Industries and Public Officials," by John J. Backus, president of the Pacific Coast Building Officials' Conference. Yesterday afternoon some of the brickmakers went to see the game Play at San Gabriel, while others took the trolley trip up Mt. Lowe. The convention adjourns tomorrow after a banquet at the Biltmore tonight.

PURSUIT OF LUXURY

The American people spend one-eighth of all the money, or $8,000,000,000, for luxuries each year, but, then, face powder and poker chips are listed as luxuries and everybody knows how essential they are.

MISSIONARY FIELD

The League of Nations might try its hand in getting some of the churches on speaking terms with one another. There is nothing more clannish than a creed—even a creed that protests love of all mankind.

NOTHING NEW

The man who said that no new crime had been invented in 1000 years was an optimist. If he keeps track of the American Congress he will see that body not only discovering new crimes, but investigating them.

FOR ART'S SAKE

One of our fair actresses has had her nose remodeled from a Roman pattern into a perfect Grecian in order to adorn the screen. When our loved ones are prepared to sacrifice their beaks for their art civilization is indeed safe.

THE DEAD ONES

Of course, it is all right, but possibly some of the pioneer Egyptians look upon the ransacking of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb in about the same way as we would if the wild men of Borneo organized an expedition to invade the grave of George Washington. But the delving in Egypt is in the name of science and that covers a flotilla of sins.

GOING DRY

There will be no water to spare for new irrigation projects in and about Los Angeles. Chief Mulholland says that the normal rainfall at this time of the season is nearly ten inches, while we have thus far had but 1.73. Instead of eight feet of snow in the Sierras we have had less than six inches. There is less moisture so far this season than for forty-six years.

THE TAXPAYER

County government in California will cost more than $147,000,000 this year, of which some $55,000,000 is for school use. Last year the total bill was a trifle less than $133,000,000, so that we are reporting progress at the rate of $14,000,000 for every big moon. Seven years ago the total of county assessments was $65,000,000. We have grown wonderfully in population of late, but the tax collector is still in the van. If our population could only keep up with the taxation this would be a wonderful country.

NEW CRUSADERS

England has a new secret grouping called the Crusaders. The new Crusaders wear no masks, but in their meetings they have white robes with a red cross on the breast. They are for universal peace and world brotherhood—regardless of race, flag or creed. They overlook frontiers or boundaries, but recognize governments as representing law and order. It is claimed that there are already more than 1,000,000 members in England and their influence in elections is being felt. Now the new Crusaders are invading Canada and the United States.

THE EAST WIND

A missionary who has just returned to America after thirty years of services in China says that mah jongg is not an ancient game with the orientals. It came in with modern banditry—in fact, the Chinese brigands who rob at night despoil each other at the mah jongg game by day. It is purely a gambling proposition and the missionary insists that it is to blame for most of the corruption in modern but struggling China. There is a contagion about it that continues to spread and this religious worker knows of capable and competent Chinese men and women who have lost virtually all their possessions through their adhesion to this devastating pastime.

BLOODY GROUND

Seems as if it would be a good idea to put a barbed-wire fence around Williamson county, Illinois, and leave the citizens to fight their own battles and work out their own salvation. Between mine massacres, labor outrages, Klan embroilments and official pusillanimity the county has become a by-word and reproach. It has cost the rest of the State hundreds of thousands of dollars to preserve the semblance of order in bloody Williamson and it has been but a pale, pink semblance, at that. It is a travesty upon our national spirit. We are sending missionaries to China and Japan, while we have a Williamson county in the heart of our own country. Around Herrin the residents appear to spend most of their time shooting at one another from ambush, and a stranger is only safe when accompanied by a battalion of militia. If the government could bring about the disarmament of Williamson county it would be a notable accomplishment in the direction of world peace.

MAKING REVOLUTIONS UNPOPULAR

Reassuring reports are coming from Mexico. The important posts seized by the revolutionists are again in possession of the government forces. Order has been restored and the leaders of the revolt against the Federal government are reported to be in flight.

President Obregon was commander of the government forces in fact as well as in name. He left the capital and took charge of the troops in the field; and he proved that during four years of civil life as the President of the republic he had lost none of his military acumen. Like Washington, he was first in war and first in peace. If complete security is restored and Mexico develops along lines of peaceful prosperity, he will later receive that still more desirable title, "First in the hearts of his countrymen."

President Obregon's early and comparatively bloodless success is due in a large part to the prompt action of our own government in permitting him to secure military equipment for his troops in this country. President Coolidge did not flinch or falter, despite adverse criticism from political groups. He insisted upon carrying the Monroe Doctrine to its logical conclusion.

Since the Monroe Doctrine gives notice to foreign powers to keep their armies and fleets away from American shores, it logically follows that we must assume responsibility for maintaining law and order in the two Americas. We deny to European countries the right of armed interference, even though the lives and property of their nationals be destroyed.

But in claiming the right to protect the other American states we assume the duty of aiding the existing governments in putting down armed revolt. Mexico and the Central and South American states are all republics. Their constitutions provide for national elections at which the rulers are chosen by a vote of the people. Legal means are provided for either continuing or changing a government.

When a minority in one of those countries goes outside the law, when it begins to confiscate, burn and slay, it is the duty of this country, under the Monroe Doctrine, to aid the existing government in restoring order.

And this has been done for 100 years without involving our government and people in a foreign war. The support which we can give has been limited to moral aid and financial assistance. These governments cannot carry always on hand sufficient military equipment to put down a revolution. But if those plotting revolt know that this equipment will be forthcoming from the United States they will be wary about starting something which is more likely to destroy them than the government.

All foreigners in Mexico, except a few radicals who went there for the purpose of inciting revolt, and all Americans who own property there and are conversant with Mexican conditions, are united in their praise of the prompt action of President Coolidge in supporting the existing government. And the majority of the educated and loyal Mexicans themselves are equally grateful. They see in it the beginning of a period of unexampled peace and prosperity in Mexico. The menace of revolutions of violence has been mostly conjured away.

The policy followed in Mexico is no new departure. It coincides with that adopted in Cuba and, at times, in South America. The American government places itself behind the forces of law and order; and the moral and financial support thus offered has made armed interference unnecessary.

If the policy pursued by President Coolidge had been that of the first Wilson administration the Columbus raid would never have taken place. It would not have been necessary to send armed troops into Mexico, an attempt at punitive justice that cost many millions of dollars and failed miserably. The fault was with our own government, with its vacillating policy of "watchful waiting." President Coolidge's policy has already justified itself. It establishes a precedent. It replaces the teeth in the Monroe Doctrine that were lost during the Wilson administration.

VOTING MACHINES

According to the experiences of cities which have used them, voting machines make for election economy. While the initial cost is considerable, it is apparent that the machines reduce the cost of voting, make election returns available in a much shorter time and virtually remove possibility of errors.

Los Angeles county Supervisors are considering the purchase of a number of voting machines for the purpose of giving them a trial in this county. Such a trial order would seem advisable in view of the records already established by the machines and it is to be hoped that the machines will be ordered in time to make them available for the coming May election.

Seattle's experience is that the cost of the vote there was reduced to less than 25 per cent of the former system. Election returns have been available in San Francisco and other cities using the machines within an hour of the closing of the polls. Other reasons advanced for the use of voting machines are that they preclude any election fraud, that they largely reduce election costs and mechanically protect voters from making errors that would invalidate their ballots.

The machines have been indorsed by many registrars of voters. The Los Angeles County Registrar has examined them and approves them. It may not be wise to completely change the voting system at one election, but it would certainly seem to be wise to purchase a trial order that the new method may be given a fair trial here. If satisfactory the number of machines can be gradually increased until eventually the ballot-box system is entirely displaced. Gradual installation will facilitate the instruction of voters in the use of the machine, such use not being complicated or difficult.

THE DEBS PARTY

The Socialists are going to have their national convention in New York on May 17. They are going to be early in the field, even if their accomplishments are as nothing. Possibly they will pass through their ancient program of nominating Eugene Debs for President and denouncing the government and the Supreme Court. Debs says his health is poor, but the Socialists could run him as a candidate if he were ossified.

He Can't See the Reason

BEGGING LETTER WRITERS

To illustrate one of the burdens of the very rich an article in the American Magazine describes the enormous volume of mail, of a begging nature, received by Henry Ford. It averages 10,000 letters a week and comes not only from persons in all walks of life, but from countries scattered all over the globe. India has the distinction of being the only country of which it can be said that not one of its nationals ever asked the motor magnate for money. If all the requests were granted, his secretary declares, they would aggregate $350,000,000 to $400,000,000 annually.

All persons of great wealth are the recipients of innumerable begging letters, but Ford's mail of this sort is said to be the heaviest in the United States. Every morning a large truck rolls up to the Ford offices completely filled with missives, and it is necessary to keep a huge staff of clerks and secretaries merely to sort it over. Only a few of the letters ever reach the private secretary, much less the hands of Mr. Ford himself.

Budding young artists and musicians crave the wherewithal to go abroad and study, wives plead for funds to pay off bills contracted without their husbands' knowledge, and one modest gentleman wanted a mere three million to buy a certain silver mine. The task of reading the mail must sadly shatter one's faith in the human race, so eager do vast numbers of people seem to get something for nothing and so devoid of proper pride that they would write to an utter stranger for money. Each writer gets a courteous reply, replete with wholesome advice, and probably hates the millionaire for the rest of his days. Ford states that the "cure of poverty is not charity" and that the only proper way to help a man is to "help him to help himself."

AMERICAN HUSBANDS SLAMMED

After spending a year in New York, Julio Cambo, a popular Spanish author, has returned to his native heath and written a biting diatribe on the inhabitants of the U.S.A. It is a book termed "A Year in the Other World" and, despite the fact that he never was outside of New York, purports to present the people of the entire country to the horrified view of the Spaniards.

Sundry things in the American scheme of life annoyed Senor Camba inexpressibly, but it was chiefly the girls and women who "got his goat." He conceded that the American damsel was lovely to look at, but her lack of sentiment jarred his sensibilities. "With her," he averred, "love has been supplanted by the fox trot and the one-step."

But it is when contemplating the high position of married women and the sad state of their husbands that the Spanish novelist rises to the greatest heights of indignation. Much the same reaction that takes place in an American woman when she first observes the servility of the women of the Far Orient seems to have attacked Senor Camba when he realized the slavery of his sex to the weaker one in the benighted United States. "If the slavery of woman in some European countries is a disgraceful thing to behold, a no less disgraceful thing to behold is the slavery of men in America."

One gathers that he burns to start a movement for their freedom, but he sadly confesses that they appear to revel in their servitude.

"In America women are free at the expense of men, and this may be all right—for women," declares the writer. Pages are given to enumerating the degrading toil he saw men of his acquaintance performing, such as washing the dishes and giving the baby his bottle and other odd jobs around the house. From which one infers that the proverb, "What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," is not held in much respect in Spain.

PLAYING A DOUBLE-HEADER

A man who was arrested for bigamy the other day confided to the court that the great argument against a man's having two wives was the circumstance that it took an awful lot of money to keep just one of them.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM

BY HERMAN J. STICH

Morons of the Soul

How about those men, wise in psychological matters, who are untutored, perhaps abnormal spiritually?

As they analyze, weigh, classify, measure the minds of fellow-mortals, they may themselves be found, by a greater jury than their compeers, by a finer justice than any human judge, lacking in the essential qualities of a normal soul.

Writers of treaties, makers of books (all good in their place,) these same rationalizing agents of human thought may have far to go before they reach the spiritual stature needed for those who are not morons of the soul.

How about the vision to see evil and good in death-locked grapple, which even the dullest son of earth must see, and not with that have the fuller vision of good triumphant, enthroned? He sees but vainly who does not see all.

How about the shallow cynicism, the pagan pessimism which, beholding the grossly apparent evil, cannot sense the purer vital forces, forever at work?

How about the critics who, amid the jazz of apparently pleasure-mad days, cannot hear the symphonies of a rarer life? Who cannot feel, amid obvious materialism, the spiritual adventure, the miracle of glad life?

To a stoker, deep in the body of a ship, to a newsboy, to a seamstress, to the latest immigrant, waiting for the opening of the gates of Ellis Island, there may be a vision of wonder, a quickening of the soul-adventure, beyond the grasp of the analyzing mind.

When Darwin lamented that, after his unstinted devotion to scientific thought, he had lost the sense of art, his appreciation of beauty, his love of poetry, he touched the tender spot of scientific and psychological research. And Darwin, great-souled man that he was, deplored what he had lost.

Of all morons, those of the soul are most to be pitied.

An old book of poetry says, of the worldly-wise, the spiritually ignorant:
"He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh. The Lord shall have them in derision."

RIPPLING RHYMES

CRIPPLED DRIVERS

Chug Choosmith has two wooden limbs
And he is nearly blind, yet in his pewter car he skims, while dust clouds rise behind. Gig Toob has epileptic fits at unexpected times; and in his scorching bus he flits as I compose these rhymes. Jim Casing's boy is nine years old and sawed-off for his size, yet he presents an aspect bold as up the road he flies. And Casing's grandsire's been on deck since apples first were sour, and it is sad to see him trek at fifty miles an hour. For some day he will hit a cow or slay a farmer's hen, and if he seems a relic now, what will he look like then? Oh, any man may licensed be to drive a deadly wain, though he is deaf and cannot see and isn't strictly sane. So fatal drivers run amuck in every blood-stained town, and if we haply dodge a truck a roadster runs us down. The day must come when every swain who would a license win will have to prove that he is sane, his works all sound within. He'll have to show a doctor's screed which proves that he is sound, with wits that are not gone to seed, with legs that reach the ground. He may not drive a car of zinc, nor yet a car of tin, if eyes or ears are on the blink, if he is steeped in gin. Some happy day, no doubt, the State, which hasn't woke up yet, will put the lid on every skate whose driving is a treat.

DRUG FIENDS FEWER

The much-alarmed gentlemen who have been mourning over the increase in the use of narcotics since the Eighteenth Amendment was passed are advised to study the official statistics. The New York police report a decrease in the number of drug addicts from 35,000 in 1921 to 9000 in 1923. This cheering change was brought about by strict enforcement of the law against the sale of habit-forming drugs.—[Lincoln Journal.

THIS IS THE DAY

The United States battleship Maine was sunk in the harbor of Havana in the year 1898. The sinking followed an explosion at 9:50 p.m. of a submarine mine and the partial explosion of two or more magazines within the ship. The Maine sank within fifteen minutes in thirty-three feet of water. Of the 350 men and officers on board at the time of the explosion 250 were lost. The sinking of the Maine was a proximate cause of the war with Spain.

LAWS OF THE PACK

BY RANSOME SUTTON

Carveth Read, professor of psychology, University College, London, has written a book to show that human laws and customs have grown out of the laws and customs of human hunting packs, which were organized on lines similar to those of existing wolf packs.

Pack laws and herd laws are, of course, fundamentally different.

Herds are organized so that the members may help one another defend themselves, whereas packs are organized for offensive as well as defensive purposes.

Herds repel, but never make, attacks; when attacked the bulls and cows move forward and the calves fall back and, after warding off the attack, they never run down their foes. "A pack of wolves, on the other hand," says Prof. Read, "relies not merely upon running down its prey, but resorts to various strategems to secure it: as by surrounding it; heading it off from cover; arranging relays of pursuers; setting some to lie in ambush while the rest drive the prey in their direction. . . . Failure to co-operate effectually is punished with death. Primitive man, beginning with more brains than a wolf, may be supposed soon to have discovered such arts and to have improved upon them."

Hunters and students of wolf psychology have become familiar with the laws of the pack—roughly stated as follows:

First Law: Each wolf shall find its rank in the pack by fighting, member against member, and in such fights the others shall take no part; each shall outrank all it can whip and be outranked by those that can whip it.

Second Law: In all things the members shall obey the head wolf, but the head wolf may be deposed any time by ranking rivals in a finish fight, whereupon members shall serve the survivor.

Third Law: When warm weather brings small creatures out of their holes the pack shall disband, for each can then live without the help of others; members may choose mates and each pair live in its own lair, which no other wolf may enter.

Fourth Law: When snow falls and solitary hunting becomes profitless the head wolf shall howl the call to the colors to begin war on big game, whereupon each pair shall leave its lair and present its cubs for approval by the assembled pack; any cubs [illegible] fit to run with the pack are killed.

Fifth Law: Loyalty to the pack is a wolf's first duty; regardless of risks, members defend one another. Outside the pack no animals have [illegible] need respect.

Sixth Law: Females [illegible] not be permitted within the [illegible] hunting grounds; they must be killed and eaten as are [illegible] to others.

Seventh Law: Females shall not be harassed by [illegible] stalked into positions where they cannot defend themselves courageously; then the head wolf must lead the charge, and every member of the wolf that fails to do [illegible] particular duty.

Eighth Law: When [illegible] been pulled down and [illegible] himself without [illegible] ing members; better to [illegible] the feasting is good than to [illegible] over questions of [illegible] carcass is being devoured.

Ninth Law: Between [illegible] animals which live in [illegible] less herds can be [illegible] stragglers cut off, leave [illegible]

Tenth Law: Put [illegible] in dogs; if they can be [illegible] away from their masters [illegible] and kill them.

Eleventh Law: At [illegible] of man, run for your [illegible] kills from afar; in [illegible] line, under cover of [illegible] may enter sheep folds, but [illegible] those sheep folds, but [illegible] else, you may kill for the [illegible] the killing.

Twelfth Law: The [illegible] has touched, nor shall [illegible] in his parks, for he [illegible] he touches and his fate [illegible] ship leads to chains and [illegible]

There are many [illegible] these are the Twelve Commandments of the [illegible] ancient and honorable [illegible] Prof. Carveth's conclusions sound, from which [illegible] have been evolved. We [illegible] thankful that pack [illegible] expressed in the Fifth Law [illegible] ing expanded by Golden Rule [illegible] international agreements, [illegible] tribes and peoples [illegible] for themselves alone. We [illegible] also be thankful that our [illegible] ancestors were pack animals; [illegible] if human laws and human [illegible] had grown out of herd customs [illegible] mankind could never have conquered the wilds.

I WAS THINKIN'

By the Foothill Philosopher

I was thinking, recently, of the discussion among ecclesiastics concerning the truth or fallacy of certain doctrines of transcendentalism in connection with the history of the Man of Nazareth. And I reflected that this friendly quarrel is not a new thing under the sun, but that it has been going on for nearly twenty centuries. And I have been wondering why the papers make so much of it.

And in this connection, I have concluded that "modernists," in and out of the church, will continue to think and to examine and that "fundamentalists" will go on believing and that the great mass of people will think and believe as they will, or as they feel they must, regardless of theologians and scientists.

And I've been wondering if the man of faith hasn't as solid a rock to stand on as the scientist who pretends to believe nothing except that which can be proved to be true—and yet who admits that even a generally accepted scientific fact (which has been "demonstrated" to be true) can be annihilated by a new discovery which can be used to demonstrate that the former demonstration was only relatively true.

And I've been thinking that the reason there is no "criterion of certainty" and that mind is the eternal doubter is because the mind cannot possibly know anything, being only the canvas upon which the spirit paints, at will, pictures which man considers substantial and which go to make up what mortals call "Life."

And I have thought how, while the mind is forever in darkness, in spite of its fever and struggle to know, faith lives eternally in the light, assured of the existence of everything it desires. And I have seen how that man whose life has been touched with a ray of "The light that never was on sea or land" and who has, as it were, become identified with the Spirit of Truth, finds no trouble in believing every glorious, transcendental doctrine ever conceived and taught. To such a man all things are possible and he does not need to wait for science to find "the ultimate construction of matter" in order to declare, and to realize in part, the existence of a supreme Consciousness that includes all space and time and objects, together with all men and their thoughts, words and actions.

A SELF-TAUGHT PROFESSOR

For half a dozen years Edward Wilbur Berry has been a full-fledged professor at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. For the ten years before 1917 he served his apprenticeship as instructor in paleontology. A year ago he in that special field of scholarship was recognized by election to membership in the National Academy of Sciences. Recently he was chosen president of the Paleontological Society of America. And, at that, Prof. Berry never had been to college until he went to Hopkins to become a teacher of others.

How in the world did he ever fit himself for such a job? By the difficult but possible process of educating himself. Dr. Berry worked first as a traveling salesman and then as editor of a small-town newspaper—turning his leisure hours into a university course.

WORDS, WORDS, WORDS

To know that truth and [illegible] are inseparable, according to [illegible] is the sum of all earthly knowledge, and no doubt if he had been asked to give the most beautiful words in the English language he would have given "truth" or "beauty," the two are [illegible] faculty of Princeton University take a less poetic view of the [illegible] standing words in the dictionary. To them "loyalty" is first, with "courage" second, "sportsmanship," "self-respect," "honor," "truth" even "duty," trailing behind.

"Words, words, words," might be the cynical comment on this [illegible] play of savants and men of letters. Loyalty is fine, such critics would say, but it could not come without truth, which Poloniius made essential to fairness to oneself as well as loyalty to one's fellows. Truth they would affirm, should [illegible] come first, perhaps loyalty next, though both subservient to truth and the product of truth. And beauty, which Keats regarded as the twin of truth and a part of it, three at least in the poetic [illegible] should occupy an important place on the list.

And what becomes of faith, hope and charity, none of which is mentioned? Surely they deserve a place of honor, either all of them or the greatest of them.

However, let the philologists have their little fun with the dictionary. It can only help to show these things of air which mean so much in life.—[Louisville Courier-Journal.

QUITE LIKE HOME

A westerner was making his first trip across the Atlantic. He was on deck while a hurricane was blowing and on being advised by the captain to be below he said: "I guess not. I'm up here to see how one of your 'terrific gales' compares with one of our Kansas cyclones. This is a mere zephyr to what I've seen out our way.

A big wave just then broke over the deck, sweeping the speaker aft. They picked him up with a broken leg, a twisted shoulder and a sprained wrist. When he came to he said to the captain, "Guess that reminded me of home, eh?" It was a blamed sight wetter."—[Boston Transcript.

THE HAPPY HOUR

Do not let it break thy rest.
Should it come with rain or chill, oh,
Think how soft and warm the pillow!
Shall a man, like worm about,
Furnish meat for early bird?
Must we shivering leave our bed so?
Warm, because the clock has said so?

Must we still respect be showing To the foolish rooster's crowing? Does the sun obedience owe To the call of cock or chanticleer?

F THE PACK

bled pack; any cubs adjudged unfit to run with the pack shall be killed.

Fifth Law: Loyalty to the pack is a wolf's first duty and, regardless of risks, members must help one another. Outside the pack no animals have rights which need respect.

Sixth Law: Foreign wolves shall not be permitted within the pack hunting grounds; trespassers shall be killed and eaten as a warning to others.

Seventh Law: Formidable game shall not be brought to bay but stalked into positions where they cannot defend themselves advantageously; then the head wolf shall lead the charge, and woe be unto the wolf that fails to do his particular duty.

Eighth Law: When prey has been pulled down each may help himself without waiting upon running members; better to feast while the feasting is good than to fight over questions of rank while the carcass is being devoured.

Ninth Law: Beware of lone animals which live in herds; for lawless herds can be stampeded and stragglers cut off, leave them alone.

Tenth Law: Put not your trust in dogs; if they can be traced to or away from their masters, turn them and kill them.

Eleventh Law: At sight or scent of man, run for your lives—he kills from afar; in times of famine, under cover of darkness, you may enter sheep folds. Where those sheep folds, but nowhere else, you may kill for the joy of the killing.

Twelfth Law: Eat nothing man has touched, nor seek sanctuary in his parks, for he poisons what he touches and his false friendship leads to chains and cages.

There are many lesser laws, but these are the Twelve Commandments of the hunting pack—the ancient and honorable code of Prof. Carveth's conclusions on sound, from which human laws have been evolved. We may be thankful that pack patriotism, as expressed in the Fifth Law, is being expanded by Golden Rules and international agreements, so that tribes and peoples no longer live for themselves alone. We should also be thankful that our earlier ancestors were pack animals, for if human laws and human society had grown out of herd expediency mankind could never have conquered the wilds.

"Well, de Hawaiians played mighty fine an' I liked 'em, but I like Unc' Remus bes' uv all. If I wanted to make mahhage wif anyone it would be dat man. He's got de beatenes' way wif him, an' how he can play de ha'monica! Day was some white folks sho' done lots to give eberybody a good time, such as Zefer Alcots Sparrow, what played de piano. De name was Sparrow, Ah think, but it was sho' some kin' uv bird, 'cause de fust numbah was 'Hark, Hark, de Lark!'

"Den dere was a lady what played de guitar, an' her husband—Ah doan' recolleck the exac' names uv each uv 'em, but dere las' name was Bickford. Dere was a white man who sang real sweet—jes' lak a li'l girl—his name was Reginald Ellis.

MANY PRESENT

"Now, Cologne, Ah, has a good reason fo' wantin' to get all dese names right, 'cause Ah wants you-all to see ef dere wasn't sum'thin' lak dis happened dat yo' knows uv.

"Dere was a whole raft uv cullud folks. Dey was a white lady wiv 'em, but dey was some that played de ha'monica jus' gran'. Dey was called de Ha-monica Four. De Plantation Jubilee Singahs was some singahs, to mah min'. Nevah in ma bo'n days has such mellifluous music come f'um eny cullud folks. Dey was a white lady wiv one uv the sweetest voices Ah ever heard. Dat woman can sing, Cologne, an' ef you-all can fin' her jus' get her to sing fo' you. Her voice ain't like nothin' Ah evah heard, 'cep' maybe crystal bells' an' I nevah heard those. Her name was Gladys Blackwell Pickering.

"One cullud woman I didn't like. Dat was Mirandy Snowblossom Johnsing. Anyone dat cain't depreciate a man lak dat Unc' Remus is not to my likin', an' she jes' fought wif him all de time. Mebbe de white folks thought she was funny, but Ah didn't."

COPELANDS PLAY

The noon program presented Frances Copeland, pianist, Elizabeth Copeland, pianist, and Maude Shenberg, soprano, pupil of Miabelle Everett.

Ferris R. Miller, manager of the Better Business Bureau, delivered the eighteenth of his series of talks on truth in advertising.

Elizabeth Copeland, pianist, played one number, Chopin's "Ballade in A Flat." Several selections were demonstrative of the skill of her sister, Frances Copeland, who arranged the program. Frances Copeland also arranged the matinee program, assisted by Elizabeth Copeland, who is an affiliated teacher of the Olga Steeb Piano School in Los Angeles and Glendale. Maude Shenberg, soprano, pupil of Miabelle Everett, sang again.

MacDowell's "Scotch Poem" was played, with all the expressive fire intended by the composer, when Miss Elizabeth Copeland rendered it during the matinee concert. Numbers by Frances Copeland were again played for Radioland.

CHILDREN'S HOUR

The Children's Hour was full of interesting features. Phyllis Myers, 6-year-old reader, made "A Valentine Wish." Dickie Brandon, screen juvenile, was at KHJ to send valentine greetings to all his radio friends and gladden their hearts. The 4-year-old chap is one of the most popular youngsters at KHJ Studio.

Anton Chris, guitarist, and his pupils presented an interesting concert. As a teacher, Mr. Chris has been very successful, as the group of his pupils here last night demonstrated for the benefit of all who might desire to "listen in." The following pupils played solo numbers on the guitar, with guitar and ukelele accompaniment: W. T. Lee, O. Gabourg, Sylvia Hughy, A. W. Kempson, H. J. Murphy, Mary Fite, James Fanella and Jack Heady. Mr. Chris gave several splendid solos. Most of the selections on the program were Hawaiian.

CREATION OF DEPUTY TO FIRE CHIEF ASKED

While Fire Chief Scott has under him a number of assistant fire chiefs, there is no chief deputy who is empowered by ordinance to take command of the department during the Chief's absence. So Chief Scott yesterday, with the approval of the Board of Fire Commissioners, asked the City Council to create the position of Deputy Fire Chief.

TRIO'S TRIAL OPENS IN ASSERTED MAIL FRAUD

SUSPECTS ARE SAID TO HAVE MISREPRESENTED IN LAND FILINGS

Accused of having used the mails to defraud, B. F. Hahn, O. S. Kenyon and J. W. Rieff yesterday went on trial before Federal Judge Bledsoe. It is asserted the men misrepresented homestead lands to prospective investors and induced persons to pay them money for the privilege of filing on government land.

G. M. Walls, chicken-raiser of Huntington Park, on the witness stand described his dealings with the accused trio. According to his story he was induced, after replying to an advertisement, to accompany Rieff on a trip to the Mohave Desert, near Victorville, where he looked over quarter-sections. Rieff later induced him to file on a certain homestead, which, he stated, was misrepresented. He testified that he paid Rieff $150 and gave him a note for $200.

The case is being prosecuted by Asst. U. S. Atty. Graham and Special Land Office Agent A. A. Wilhelms.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Charles Modini-Wood and her young daughter, Miss Mona Wood, who left Sunday morning for the East, are planning a most delightful visit in New York City and will enjoy several weeks of opera and theaters. They will be joined in the eastern metropolis by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth C. Beaton (Florence Wood-Clark,) who have been for three weeks in the East, and they will all return home together, planning a two months' visit. As a farewell to her friends, Mrs. Wood entertained Friday afternoon with a delightfully planned luncheon at her home in Shatto Place. The table held as centerpiece an exquisite silver basket filled with spring flowers in the pastel tones. A Madeira damask cloth covered the table and the place favors were satin ribbon roses with foliage. Monogramed cards marked the covers. After the luncheon a most enjoyable program was given. Miss Mona Wood entertained with "open house" Friday evening a number of her young friends calling to say farewell and remaining for an informal dance.

For Visitor

Honoring the Princess Lavarovich-Hreblanovich, who is the guest of her sister and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Anderson at their home in West Eleventh street, Mrs. Chappel Q. Stanton entertained with a tea at her home in Lafayete Park Place Wednesday afternoon. The house was fragrant with a profusion of blossoms and foliage, and the hours were from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Bridge and Mah Jongg

The new fiesta ballroom at the Ambassador will be the setting for a brilliant society event on the afternoon of the 26th inst., for the benefit of the building fund of the women's residence hall at the University of Southern California. Among the guests will be many co-eds and debutantes. There is to be bridge and mah jongg and the first prize is a seat at the $200-a-plate luncheon at the Biltmore on March 3.

Mrs. R. D. Shepherd is chairman and Mrs. William Lee Woolett vice-chairman. The two are ably assisted by Mmes. Chester T. Hoag, Guerdon Wattles, Alexander Barret, Robert H. Fuller, Arthur Wright, Hansen Moore, Gilbert Firman.

To California

Mrs. Constance Peters, the well-known artist, has just returned from Europe to continue her painting in California. While abroad Mrs. Peters visited Wales, France and Sicily and also spent some time in Africa. She is the guest of Mrs. Stephen Raymond until next week, when she will go to San Francisco. Mrs. Peters's paintings are on exhibition in the galleries in the Darby Hotel, 234 West Adams street, until next Wednesday.

From Chicago

Among the visitors from the East who come every winter for several months' visit are Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Cox of Chicago, who have taken a bungalow for several months at the Maryland in Pasadena. Mr. and Mrs. Cox maintain a suite of apartments at the South Shore Club in Chicago, where they stay when not at their immense estate at Geneva Lake. Mr. Cox was formerly vice-president and treasurer of the William Wrigley Company, retiring several years ago.

At Home

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Johnson (Virginia McNaughton of San Diego) have closed their apartments and are "keeping house" in their parents' home at Twenty-eighth and Hoover streets, while Mr. and Mrs. Fred O. Johnson are on a trip to Panama.

On Trip

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sylvester of Kansas City are enjoying a delightful visit in Southern California and are domiciled at the Biltmore until they leave, on the 20th inst., for Honolulu. While in Los Angeles they have been much entertained, having passed many winters here with Mrs. Sylvester's brother, the late Ferd K. Rule, and his family. Mrs. Sylvester is one of the leaders of Kansas City society, and every year they plan some extended trip of several months. After a six weeks' visit in Honolulu they will return home by way of California and will again stay several weeks in Los Angeles.

THE LAST WORD — BY ALMA WHITAKER

THEY LEAVE US RICHER

If we have loved them it seems so dreadful when they die. If they have had some fine attributes, some splendid robust virtues to give to the world, we can't understand why a merciful God could have taken them so soon.

And yet, after a while I think we begin to understand. For if we have loved them, they have left us so infinitely richer.

I have come to see this, to feel it very ardently. I believe that they give us some of those fine and lovable qualities for which we loved them. I believe they augment our strength, our characters, our spiritual understanding and, perhaps, our wisdom. They leave us the very best of them.

Well, I remember the days of my own intolerable priggishness. I was a curious little bundle of priggish complexes which I could not for a moment justify today. And, oh, I was adamant in my youthful judgments. And there was a dear man friend who tried to smile me out of them, to modify my young self-righteousness, to give me the wider understanding.

And this man, too, was incapable of self-pity. Just by example he showed me that. I could admire and appreciate these qualities in him—but not enough to acquire and practice them myself. When he died, valiantly, after long illness during which those precious virtues of his never faltered, my world seemed to have collapsed. But soon, so very poignantly, I began to realise that his spirit was trying to confer these virtues upon me. Those virtues which my own character had so conspicuously lacked. And never today do I launch upon harsh judgments, never today do I feel spasms of self-pity, without remembering, without a very definite sense of wasting, wickedly misusing my precious inheritance. Sometimes I fail him, just for a spell, but at least I can no longer smugly justify my weakness.

And lately I mourned the loss of a dear sister-in-law. Such a gay gallant soul, so ever ready with sympathy, so thoughtfully, understandingly generous, so immeasurably kind. She was never "too busy" to neglect the ones she loved, never put off the writing of affectionate little letters, never let thoughtful deeds slide into nowhere. One of my own pet alibis for these failures to make kind impulses take tangible form is that I am "so busy." I hear a friend is sick. I mean to run over and see them—well, anyway, I will write, or perhaps a telephone would be quicker. Tomorrow, perhaps, or the day after. But I am so busy—and before I quite realize it, my friend is either recovered—or dead—without a word of interest from me. I am full of regrets—but I failed them.

But now, I am not failing quite so often. I am conscious of the ability to make just a little extra effort. I am not half so glib with excuses. And when I am, I remember and am ashamed. And I am noticing that all of us who loved her, and all of us who lacked to some extent in those precious qualities of hers, are experiencing this sense of a fine heritage, too. She has left us the best of her.

I know a keen, hard-headed business woman whose son died not so long ago. That son had not his mother's shrewd business instincts. He could not drive a hard bargain. Always he would rather give than make, concede than take. And sometimes, with loving reproach, he had disapproved of mamma's extreme shrewdness. But she had always claimed that "someone must have a business head in this family"—and she had lived up to that harsh responsibility. But when her boy died, that boy whom she loved, that boy for whom she wanted to make money, she seemed a broken woman. God had taken only affectionate, sentimental terest. After the first gr seemed for a while as though one soft spot in her heart harden, too. But you see, loved him. And he had the best of him. And it is against her will, the better gan to work. All who have ness dealings with that cold woman today are seeking, ing upon the charming She is still a business genius that is in her blood—but there no terrors in trading with her. They call it the softening hand of old age—but I tell you that age can become increasingly unlovely, if it be no such merciful inheritance.

And I want to tell you that is not just those who have lost us who leave us those heritages. Rather must it be those who have loved. It is much more portant to love than to be loved for our soul's sake. For we then only have we earned heritage. You see, we so often love people for the charming qualities that we ourselves And that is a sign of growth. And that is why their goodness ognize our need.

I am always distrustful of read about family quarrels over dead relatives' money. I don't believe we could control from the about the money left by the ple we have really loved. in such cases one realizes how these people are who can fight dead men's money. For they get their just deserts in the of the money or not, they missed the best part of the heritance that could have been theirs. How ironic must be the souls of these departed ones see their heirs fighting like kenny cats over the cash they left behind which is worthless. And missing more so very precious that might have been theirs.

Shall we then waste our beloved dead, when they have for our greater enrichment? greater enrichment?

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

Although many girls in the city have been enjoying the new Salvation Army Evangeline Boarding Home for Women since its opening in July, the formal dedication did not take place until Tuesday of last week, when Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the Army, arrives in the city. The formal ceremony will begin at 3 o'clock with Charles H. Tool of the local advisory board presiding. Miss Booth will speak about the home and the work of the Salvation Army.

Preceding the dedication, open house will be held when friends of the Army may inspect and view the beautiful new home which stands at the top of the hill at the intersection of Boylston and Sixth streets.

It is a lovely place for girls to live. In the first place there are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lumby who give a welcome for all, while many tricky ideas and conveniences have been worked into the home with a thought for the comfort of the occupants. The main part of the first floor is given over to large living and lounging rooms, decorated in soft rose and gray, taking care of the social need of the girls, where they may entertain their friends.

The dining room is particularly attractive with bright blue and white chintz drapes standing out in relief from the soft cream walls. Rooms in the extreme rear of the first floor the absolutely essential department of the home is to be found, for there is a complete laundry and a large room is given over to sewing with many machines installed.

Tuesday noon the advisory board of the Salvation Army will entertain Miss Booth at a luncheon at the Alexandria, to which will be invited many of the business men of the city. The board members are Harry M. Haldeman, chairman; Henry O'Melveny, Prentice H. Toll, Harry Chandler, Mrs. May Garland and Frank Wiggins. These men, together with the women's auxiliary, will attend the dedication at the Evangeline Home after the luncheon.

St. Louis Woman to be Guest

Mrs. George Gellhorn of St. Louis, formerly a vice-president of the National League of Women Voters, will be the honor guest and speaker at the monthly luncheon and program of the Southern California section of that organization, to be held the 29th inst. The luncheon, over which Mrs. Arthur S. Bowman will preside will be served at 12:45 in the ladies' dining-room of the Men's City Club.

Further evidence of the nonpartisanship of the league is shown in the invitations which have been sent to the different governors of States to speak at the fifth annual convention of the league, which will be held at the Hotel Statler, Buffalo, N. Y., from April 24 to 26. The States to be represented include the second region of the National League of Women Voters, the governors invited to discuss various phases of State government are two Republicans, Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania and William D. Denney of Delaware, and three Democrats, Alfred E. Smith of New York, Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and George S. Silzer of New Jersey.

Miss Belle Sherwin, first vice-president and head of the department of efficiency, is to preside. Miss Sherwin is directing the "Get Out and Vote" campaign. At least 75 per cent vote this coming November is the League's goal. So organized is the National League that this week, which is two months before the annual convention, the proposed program will be sent out to the State groups.

CONFESSIONS OF A BABY

Baby Talk

"Oh, oo pitty, pitty baby! Whose itty, bitty baby is oo? Tum to me, oo tunnin babsie, won't oo?"

It was a very sweet lovely woman calling on us, and she made those funny inarticulate noises when I was introduced to her. Of course, at six months I cannot be expected to understand, except by intuition, what people say to me, but such a jargon as the nice lady used I had never heard before. My mamma and all of my family, while they address me in many loving terms, always speak to me in clear and correct English.

I looked at the beautiful lady gravely. It was evident that she was a very sympathetic, dear woman and loved little babies very much, and I could see that she thought I was very nice.

"Won't oo tum to me, tweetheart?" she repeated, putting out her arms to me. Of course, I did understand that motion and her appealing smile, and I responded by letting her take me.

When she had me she continued those inarticulate sounds. Mother looked a little serious and somewhat disturbed during the noises, and finally she said: "Alma, dear, now that you have moved into our neighborhood, we want to see a lot of you—but you musn't teach baby bad habits."

"Bad habits! Good Heavens, Anna, what do you mean? Me? Teach baby bad habits?"

"Yes, dear, bad language habits. We never talk baby talk to Sockums and we never shall, because we realize that babies have no other way of learning to talk than through the language they hear around them, and we don't want him to learn a type of language that he has to unlearn afterward. He must learn to speak correctly, and that is why we are always particular to speak correctly to him, even now, so we won't be in the habit of baby talk when he begins to talk and imitate our words.

"I know it is a great temptation to use baby talk. I want to do it often myself, but I refrain when I realize that he will learn to talk through hearing us talk. What we say he will think is correct, and we feel that it will be a waste of time and energy both for him and for us, time which we could use to better advantage, to give him a language that he has to unlearn.

"You know, Alma, if you were going to learn a language you would want to take your lessons from one who spoke that language in a cultivated form, rather than from one who would give you incorrectly pronounced and slovenly constructed sentences that you would be ashamed to use and would have to unlearn, wouldn't you?"

"Why, of course I would. I never thought of it. My, what a lot of new and valuable ideas we have in the training of the modern child! From now on, baby dear, I realize that I shall have to address you in the purest diction, but I am still going to think of you as the tweetest, tunninest, tutest itty babsie I ever saw, just the same, old dear!"

"Oh, Alma, you're incorrigible! You mustn't think that we are going to extremes in this matter. We undoubtedly will have some baby words for him for a few things, but we really are going to be careful that his whole vocabulary is not made up of words that he has to unlearn.

"Then there is another side to this question of teaching the babies to speak correctly, Alma. Our doctor tells us that sometimes serious speech defects, such as stammering, which may be more or less permanent, may have their origin in not teaching the children to speak carefully and correctly from the beginning."

Haven't I a wonderful mamma? All the time thinking about me.

I notice another thing my mamma and all my family do. They always speak in soft, low voices to me, and even when I am naughty, (oh, yes, I am naughty at times) they never raise their voices and shout at me. I know from the seriousness of their faces and the firmness of their tones that I have been naughty, and not from their shrieking at me. So I shall have a nice voice too, you see. I'll talk to you more on the subject of my talking next week.

Au revoir, Mamma, dears.

A. SOCKUMS.

MAIL THEFT FUNDS ARE RECOVERED

Federal Officers Locate Valise Hidden in Yard of J. U. Hemmi

In a black valise which they dug out of the ground in the back yard of J. U. Hummi's home at Torrance postal inspectors yesterday found an additional $5570 of the $25,000 stolen in the robbery of the Anaheim postoffice on December 27, last.

The valise, it was stated by the officers, bore the name of J. R. Abernathy, who with two other men, J. L. Findley and C. R. Wheeler, are facing a Federal indictment charging them with robbing the mails. Abernathy was formerly superintendent of schools at Anaheim.

The recovery of the valise followed a confession made to postal inspectors by Hemmi. The confession was made the same day the three indicted men were arraigned in Federal court and pleaded not guilty to the charge.

In his confession Hemmi stated that Abernathy came to his home at Torrance in a car and gave him the money with the statement that he desired it to be concealed because it represented the proceeds of a questionable contract into which he had entered with the city. The total given him, Hemmi said, was $10,000. He also received instruction to convert the money into drafts by sending it to friends in Kansas. He had succeeded in doing this with some of the money, he said in his purported confession, and was awaiting the return of the drafts.

Dismiss Charge of Nuisance in Roadhouse Case

The charge of maintaining a nuisance, preferred against the owners of two Washington-Boulevard roadhouses after former Director Hunt's whirlwind campaign against hip-pocket drinkers, was yesterday dismissed by United States Commissioner Long. The men named, were Morrie Rauch, proprietor of the Green Mill Gardens and Dave Wolf, of the Plantation.

Charges were made against these men after numerous arrests for violation of the Volstead Act were made in their establishments. It was brought out in Commissioner Long's court that there was no evidence against the proprietors other than that their patrons were drinking intoxicants.

CHARGE DISMISSED

Broker Had Been Indicted for Embezzlement as Bailee

A charge of embezzlement against William G. Yeo, broker, was dismissed by Judge Shenk yesterday on motion of the District Attorney, who stated there was insufficient evidence to win a conviction in the case.

Yeo was indicted by the county grand jury on a count charging him with appropriating to his own use $11,000 worth of bonds belonging to J. W. Burlington of 1755 West Adams street, for whom Yeo was said to have been acting as bailee.

AGREE ON NEW POLICE PLAN

Chief Vollmer and Aides Complete Reorganization Scheme; Commissions' Approval Sought

Decisive action in putting into effect a complete reorganization of the Los Angeles police department was taken yesterday at a meeting of all division commanders with Chief Vollmer in his office at Central Police Station.

The reorganization, which involves many changes to conform with a system of police organization adopted and approved by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, has been under investigation and discussion by the Chief and his division commanders for the last three months. But not until yesterday was it finally decided that the new system could be put into effect in Los Angeles without disrupting the present police machinery.

Second Deputy Chief Jackson has been instructed to request the Civil Service Commission to meet with the Chief and division commanders at the earliest possible date with the purpose of arriving at an agreement with members of the commission as to the advisibility of putting the new system into immediate effect and to gain the sanction of the Civil Service Commission on the new rating scale for the police department personnel which is part of the reorganization plan.

WILL PRESENT PLANS

With the sanction and approval of the Civil Service Commission the plan will be presented to the Police Commission and finally for ultimate approval to the City Council. The Chief announced that if the Civil Service Commission, Police Commission, and City Council approve the system will go into effect within the next three weeks.

The outstanding feature of the reorganization plan is the adoption of a system whereby the whole law enforcement body is broken up into eleven definite divisions. These divisions in no way conflict with what are now known as police subdivisions. Under the new system all of the present and prospective new police divisions will be included under the one head of uniform division. As shown graphically in a large chart in the Chief's office the new system starting with the office of the Chief of Police and running down to the lowest position in the organization, that of fourth-class patrolman, is as follows:

Directly under the Chief are the positions of the first and second deputy chiefs of police. The first deputy is known as the head of the intelligence department of the police organization, designated by Chief Vollmer as the "brains" of the law enforcement body. Directly under his command will be four intelligence officers, officially known as inspector of vice, inspector of crime, inspector of traffic and inspector-general.

WOULD ELIMINATE GRAFT

Each of these inspectors will be in command of a squad of men specially equipped to carry on the secret-service work of the police department. Through the work of these squads the Chief states he will be able to keep his finger on the pulse of the public and the department and in this way eliminate from the rank and file any tendency toward political affiliations or graft.

The second deputy chief will command what will be officially known as the personnel administration department. Four inspectors working directly under him will be in turn in absolute charge, respectively, of four distinct branches of administering the affairs of the police personnel.

Following these two positions is the position of divisional inspector of discipline. This position is now held by Inspector McDowell.

Then, according to the new plan, come the heads or captains of the eleven newly created divisions of organization. They are listed under the heads of vice, crime crushers or the invisible division, the uniform division, the property division, the detective bureau, the engineering division, the jail division, the crime prevention division, which includes the juvenile bureau and city mothers' bureau, the transportation division and the record bureau.

RATINGS TO BE CHANGED

The captain and officers in the transportation division will have charge of the rolling stock of the department.

The other divisions which form a part of the new system were created shortly after Chief Vollmer took office in August. The work of these divisions will remain the same though the rating of the officers and process of promotion, within each division, will be changed according to the new plan.

Going down from the captain in each division, are the positions of lieutenants, sergeants, first-class, second-class, third-class and fourth-class patrolmen, with the exception of the detective bureau.

Promotion in the department under the new plan will be made according to the following system: Recruits will be given three months' schooling. They will be tested for patience, bravery, endurance, both mental and physical, and for diverse personal abilities. At the end of this period they will be rated and be given a gun and a badge.

CONSIDER OFFICER'S LIFE

They will then serve a probationary three months, at the end of which they will again be rated by their sergeants or other superior officers and either moved up the line or dropped off the force, according to the rating which they have made.

In rating members of the department for promotion the Civil Service Commission will be asked by the Chief, the latter announced, to take into consideration the entire life and family history of the applicant for such promotion.

When each new officer finishes his three months probationary period he may choose whatever branch of the service he desires to follow. At the end of this three months period he is eligible to take a civil service examination for third class patrolman.

At the end of the six months he is eligible to take a civil service examination for second class patrolman. At the end of eighteen months he may take the examination for first class patrolman, and at the end of two years stands eligible to become sergeant.

Once a man starts up in a certain division, he must remain in that division. If he afterward desires to go into a different line of police work he must go back to first-class patrolman and begin all over again. Through this procedure the Chief states he hopes to have a police organization made up of specialists and experts.

LA MARR MANAGER GRILLED

Attorney for Roth Challenges Testimony on Fear of Personal Disgrace in Case

The testimony of Arthur H. Sawyer, manager for Barbara La Marr, that he was moved to pay $100 to Herman L. Roth, Hollywood attorney, out of fear of personal disgrace should he refuse, was challenged yesterday by Roth's counsel in a cross-examination of Sawyer, which lasted all day.

Sawyer's testimony in the trial of Roth, who is charged with extortion, had been that he paid $100 to the attorney in Levy's Cafe last November after Roth had threatened to make public an affidavit charging him and Miss La Marr with intimacy.

The defense yesterday attempted to establish that Sawyer was influenced largely to agree to a settlement of a divorce action brought against Miss La Marr by Ben Deely by a desire to save himself, Miss La Marr and the companies employing her from financial loss.

Defense Attorney Tilden introduced as evidence an article which appeared in a Los Angeles newspaper at the time of Roth's arrest under Sawyer's name. In this article Sawyer declared he was actuated in going to the District Attorney's office with the complaint by a desire to save Miss La Marr and as a means of putting a stop to attacks made against the motion-picture industry. Tilden declared no mention was made of any fear of personal disgrace in the article.

Sawyer identified the article as having either been written or dictated by him in the office of the newspaper publishing it.

On cross-examination in the morning he declared: "I paid Roth the $100 on his immediate demand that I should show some sign of good faith or he would have an amended complaint, naming numerous corespondents, filed immediately along with an affidavit charging Miss La Marr and myself with intimacy."

It was stipulated by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Hill that the producer paid $400 in marked bills to Roth in his office onthe day of his arrest as carrying out a trap agreed upon between Sawyer and the District Attorney's office.

Sawyer was asked whether he sought to make a settlement with Roth on the advice of Frank Drew, San Francisco attorney, as well as that of the District Attorney's office. He denied this. Drew was the attorney who handled the investigation of Miss La Marr's marriage with Ben Deely, which she declares was illegal.

Several hours were spent by the defense counsel in delving into the various contracts engaged in between Miss La Marr, Sawyer and motion-picture organizations employing her services or releasing her pictures. It was brought out in testimony that Sawyer has the actress under personal contract.

Sawyer declared he received in October and November of last year the sum of $200 a week as production manager in Miss La Marr's pictures. He also has an interest in the profits of her pictures through the Author's Stage and Screen Plays of which he is a member, according to testimony.

Numerous attempts were made by the defense to determine Sawyer's state of mind when he was told of the likelihood of the amended complaint being filed.

"Did you not fear that such publicity would cause the censorship organizations to take action against Miss La Marr's pictures?" he was asked.

"I did not," he replied.

"Isn't it true that such a result might follow?"

"I don't know. The censors have done some mighty funny things in the picture business."

The question was also put to Sawyer if he did not fear it would come within the province of Will Hays's authority.

"I did not," he answered, "because Mr. Roth told me he was a close personal friend of Mr. Hays and that Hays wouldn't do anything."

Sawyer declared he had asked Frank C. Drew to withdraw from the case, although Drew told him he had an answer ready to Deely's original action.

He said Drew told him Roth had agreed to settle for $5200 to be paid $100 weekly, but that Roth had denied this when he went to see him. The attorney said the sum was much too small, at that time, Sawyer declared.

The film man constantly maintained he was moved by fear of personal disgrace to pay the money.

CITY MAY GET HUGE FACTORY

Auto Manufacturer Comes to Inspect Ground

Assembling Plant Likely for Los Angeles

Detroit Man is Attracted by Prospects Here

Coming here to look over the ground with an eye to the future expansion of the business of his firm in this section, Walter P. Chrysler, head of the Chrysler-Maxwell Motor Corporation of Detroit, stated on his arrival yesterday that the rapid development of Southern California and particularly the growth of Los Angeles are attracting an increasing number of eastern business firms to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Chrysler, who is at the Biltmore, suggested that eventually his corporation may establish an assembling plant here. "Our plans on this point are in a merely formative state, however, and I cannot state at this time when they will materialize," he said. "The principal object of my visit is to investigate conditions as they relate to the future expansion of our business and I can make no definite statement as to precisely what course we will pursue as a result of my findings.

"All indications at present point to a volume of business which may equal that of 1923, which was a record-breaker," he said. "This refers not only to the automobile business but other lines as well. Our country has about 60 per cent of the wealth of the world, our labor conditions are good, we are still far behind in our efforts to catch up with the building demand, and I see no good reason why the country should not continue to prosper.

"In my opinion, the fact that this is election year will not materially affect the situation. Time was that a Presidential election caused a lull, but business conditions have now changed so that politics do not affect them so much as formerly."

He stated that 4,000,000 cars were produced in the United States last year, of which perhaps 55 per cent were Fords. Of this number of machines, 1,500,000 represented replacements.

"During the present year our firm is planning to turn out about 110,000 machines," he said. "Last year our production was about 75,000."

Mr. Chrysler was formerly the head of the Buick Company and later took over the management of the Maxwell. During the last three years and a half he has perfected a new car, the Chrysler, to be placed on the market this season. The corporation will operate two separate plants, one manufacturing the Chrysler, the other the Maxwell.

He stated the trend in automobile prices is upward. "The public has been educated to a point where it demands excellence in cars," he said. "It is not possible to manufacture an inferior machine today and get away with it. Naturally, this means better materials and improved workmanship, which in turn means a gradual increase in the cost of the finished product."

Fails to Hear Warning; Dies Under Wheels

Failing to hear shouts of warning from the crew, J. L. Allbright, 70 years of age, 3842 South Harvard Boulevard, was crushed to death under the wheels of a box car attached to a Southern Pacific switch engine yesterday near the Haas-Baruch Company at Second and Alameda streets. The body was taken to George K. Willett's Undertaking Company.

According to George Hoover of River Station, foreman of the switching crew, the aged man did not see the approaching car and continued walking on the track in spite of frantic efforts of the crew to attract his attention.

BAKST HOLDS ART SALON

Noted Russian Colorist Expounds His Theories of Costuming to Match Wearer's Personality

Following his lecture on women's dress at the Biltmore yesterday Leon Bakst, member of the Imperial Academy of Art at Petrograd and noted fashion arbiter, selected Peggy Hamilton, fashions' editor of The Times, and Nita Naldi, film star, as the most startling types of blonde and brunette. With their assistance, he gave a demonstration of his theories of style and color.

For Miss Hamilton the designer chose brilliant colors and for Miss Naldi he practically confined himself to black and white.

The lecture-exhibition was the first of a series on "The Art of Costume," which Mr. Bakst is scheduled to make in Southern California. His audience was made up of society women and style experts from the various stores and studios of the city.

Mr. Bakst speaks little English and his lecture was given in French, necessitating the use of an interpreter. In the intervals between technical discussion of his original designs, he said he regarded Los Angeles women more pleasingly clothed than those of New York or any other American city he has seen. Such a condition is natural, he said, because of the influence of the sunshine and the joyful and happy atmosphere that pervades the city. He praised the American girl as a vivacious type without an equal.

Another lecture will be given tonight in Bovard Auditorium, University of Southern California. The subject will be "The New Form of Art and Color." Tuesday, he will repeat yesterday's lecture at the Raymond Theater, Pasadena.

A feature of his lecture at the Biltmore was the attendance of a group of Russian women who reside in Los Angeles, headed by Mlle. Kyra Alanova, who was associated with Mr. Bakst in exhibitions in Petrograd at the Ballet Russe.

HEIRESS OF DOGE IN CELL

Father of Ramona von Gradenigo Spends Life's Savings to Prove Title to Vast Fortune

Chile Ramona von Gradenigo, prospective heiress to a vast Italian fortune, is eagerly awaiting the expiration of her sentence in the County Jail. Her father, Oscar von Gradenigo, said to be a descendant of the fifty-seventh Doge of Venice, is spending the last of the funds hoarded through a lifetime to obtain title to the princely possessions of his distinguished forbear.

The father runs a little woodworking and repair shop at Oakland, where he labors from early morning to night in carving furniture, parrots, cranes and ships in full sail. The proceeds of his labor have gone toward establishing his title to the tapestried palaces, the vast wealth and the glory of the great Doge. These he expects, will soon be his but he does not intend to assume the title or to take the fortune for himself. It will all go to his daughter Ramona, 25 years of age, his only child, who is serving a year term in the County Jail here for forgery.

SAVINGS SPENT

The father, seeking the fortune that he might buy pretty things and luxuries for his only child, told of his struggles and history yesterday.

"When the letter came telling me of her arrest, I fall down," Gradenigo said. "Never in 400 or 500 years in our family had there been a black spot. I go to Los Angeles and into the courtroom. They all watch to see how I act. I see my girl. I had a white face. When she see me she fainted."

Out of his savings of twenty-one years' work in Oakland, where he is known in every section for his skill, Gradenigo has given $2000 in three years to help his only child establish himself. In the past five years he has paid out $5000 to establish his claim to the great fortune in Italy, which is now held in trust by the Italian government.

FORTUNE HUGE

The family began with Pietro, Doge or Duke of Venice, 1289, the woodworker said. Giovannin, with whom the great family fortune really began, was the fifty-seventh Doge of Venice. The Oakland woodworker traces his direct male line through Giacomo Gradenigo, Governor of Zara, Italian city on the Adriatic Sea, in 1775. Oscar Von Gradenigo and his brother in Italy are the only heirs to the vast fortune, estimated at about $18,500,000.

Geneological experts and attorneys have been employed by the Oakland man to prove his claim.

"I do not care for a million more than a nickel," he said. "I am not a dreamer. If I were young—ah, well, maybe it would be different. I might then be ambitious. But now today or perhaps tomorrow I am gone," he stated, explaining why he did not wish the fortune for himself.

LOCAL LINE ALLOCATED FREIGHTER

Federal Shipping Board Turns West Cactus Over to Swayne & Hoyt

Allocation of the 8800-ton freighter West Cactus to Swayne & Hoyt, Inc., for its South American service out of Los Angeles Harbor was announced yesterday by the United States Shipping Board. Allocation of the West Cactus gives Swayne & Hoyt five sister ships, aggregating 44,000 deadweight tons, for its express service between Buenos Aires, Rio De Janeiro and Pacific Coast ports.

This is in addition to six government ships of 55,000 deadweight tons which the concern operates to Australia from this and other Coast ports. The ships in South American trade, and their present positions follow: West Jappa, San Juan, Porto Rico, the 9th inst.; West Notus, Buenos Aires, the 10th inst; West Calera, due Los Angeles from South America, March 10; West Camargo, due Los Angeles Harbor to load for South America, the 23rd inst., and the West Cactus, to be turned over to Swayne & Hoyt at San Francisco tomorrow.

New Clubhouse to be Erected for Film Girls

Property has been purchased by the Hollywood Studio Club for a new clubhouse at Lexington and Lodi avenues, Hollywood, it was learned yesterday. The old clubhouse on Carlos avenue where many of the present-day film stars made their home at one time, will be sold and funds derived from the sale used in the erection of the new building.

It is planned to erect a building large enough to accommodate at least 100 girls. Many prominent motion-picture people are interested in the Studio Club and Will H. Hays, president of the Motion-Picture Producers' Association, is said to have given his unqualified approval to the plans for the new clubhouse.

TO TALK ON "MR. ZERO"

Youthful Law Breakers Hear Court's Edict

Out of seven defendants sentenced by Judge Reeve yesterday to State institutions, six were youths who had either just become of age or who are now under age, it was disclosed by examination of probation reports.

Harry Gayle, 21 years of age; George Massey, 19, and Arthur Lawton, 20, were sentenced to San Quentin for from five years to life for robbery. Louis Kovack, 19, was sentenced to Preston School of Industry until he reaches 21 years. He was convicted of petty larceny after a prior conviction on the same offense. Samuel Simmons, 19, who was convicted of joyriding in another's automobile, also was sent to Preston. George Goldie, also 19, who was convicted of an offense against a minor girl, was sent to Preston.

Sam Johnson, a negro, was denied an application for probation, after conviction of bribery, and was sentenced to San Quentin for from one to ten years.

NEW COMEDY HIT FOR LOEW SCREEN

Announcement was made last evening by executives of West Coast Theaters, Inc., that Loew's State Theater had secured the seven-reel comedy feature, "Her Temporary 'Husband," said to be the biggest comedy hit of the year.

Arthur Kay is scoring a modern musical synchronization to the picture in which will be incorporated all the syncopated tunes written during the last two years.

"Her Temporary Husband" is said to eclipse every comedy feature made since 1920. It is predicted that it will outshine such famous releases as "The Connecticut Yankee," "The Kid," "Grandma's Boy," or "The Hottentot." In its cast Sidney Chaplin, Owen Moore, Tully Marshall, George Cooper, Chuck Reisner John Patrick and Charles Gerrard are the male contingent, while Sylvia Breamer plays the only feminine role. A special preview of the picture will be arranged for Los Angeles' critics and trade paper correspondents.

"WASHINGTON, JR.," NEW CLUNE FEATURE

In celebration of Washington's birthday, Manager Lund of the Clune Broadway Theater has arranged a program typical to the occasion.

The feature picture, "George Washington Jr.," is a comedy drama which combines thrilling adventures with hilarious situations wherein a youth follows the example of George Washington and never tells a lie. Wesley Barry has the leading role.

As an extra attraction an out-of-the-ordinary single reel picture is being presented. It is "A Midshipman Cruise," showing life of the United States Navy man on shipboard and also scenes of the various countries visited.

"Done in Oil" is a Christie comedy of many laughs, and with an especial program of music rounds out the program.

SCIENTISTS DEPART ON EXPEDITION

Power Yacht Black Swan Leaves for Southern Seas for Exploration

Three months in research work and study of the little-known submarine life of the South Pacific will be spent by Dr. Wilton McCarthy, noted scientist, and a party of other scientists who sailed from Los Angeles Harbor yesterday morning aboard F. C. Hubbell's power cruiser Black Swan. Specimens and data acquired during the cruise will be given to the Field Museum, Chicago.

The first objective of the expedition will be Tiburon Island off the West Coast of Mexico. The Black Swan then will proceed southward to Central American waters and later westward to infrequently visited islands in the South Pacific.

A complete laboratory has been installed aboard the craft, including equipment for the securing of plaster casts of all specimens desired.

In addition to the party of scientists headed by Dr. McCarthy, there are also making the cruise, the owner and Mrs. Hubbell; Mrs. Fred Hubbell, and Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Kaufman. The cruiser is in command of Capt. Jack Marlowe, veteran West Coast yacht skipper.

The Black Swan, largest power craft of her type on the Pacific, was originally built by R. C. Durant. She is 112 feet in length and is powered with twin engines of 400 horsepower.

"WHEN MAN'S A MAN" TO STAY AT TALLY'S

Demonstrating that the readers of Harold Bell Wright's novel as well as the motion-picture-going public have heartily approved of the cinimabation of "When a Man's a Man," Tally's Broadway Theater announces another week of this attraction, to begin tomorrow.

John Bowers, Marguerite De La Motte, George Hackathorne and many others have achieved individual triumphs in this play which Sol Lesser offers as the first of a series of Harold Bell Wright's novels to be immortalized on the screen.

FOURTH WEEK FOR "WOMAN OF PARIS"

The success of Charles Chaplin's "A Woman of Paris," at the Alhambra Theater, is having its most emphatic demenstration with the announcement that this drama will begin its fourth week at popular prices tomorrow.

It is estimated that over 400,000 have seen the picture thus far. Despite the fact of the long run every performance is packed. Edna Purviance, Carl Miller and Adolphe Menjou play the leading roles while Chaplin, behind the scenes so to speak, achieves a tremendous triumph as one of the world's greatest directors.

WILL BE REAL STAR

NORMA SHEARER TO HEAD MAYER CAST

By Grace Kingsley

Maybe they haven't actually nailed a gold star to her dressing-room door, but the fact remains that the role which fell to Norma Shearer's lot yesterday, when she was as signed a role with Louis B. Mayer, really rdises that young lady to stardom.

The role in question is that of the feminine lead in an all-star cast of Meredith Nicholson's "Broken Barriers," which Louis B. Mayer is to make as a special for presentation through Metro, with Reginald Barker directing. The part is that of Grace Durland, a beautiful young girl of strong character, who attempts to mold her career and shape her life in defiance of the conventions.

Looming up as real star material, Miss Shearer has attracted a great deal of attention and favorable comment recently through her fine work in "Pleasure Mad," the feature running this week at Loew's State, and also in "Flaming Passion." "Broken Barriers" will present her as a typical modern girl, offering the actress her big opportunity for individual stardom.

Actual shooting will be started as soon as production arrangements can be completed. Irving G. Thalberg, vice-president and general manager of the Mayer organization, is in daily conference with Mr. Barker regarding the selection of the balance of the cast.

Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin are writing the scenario. Percy Hilburn, who has been with Barker for the past six years, will be chief cameraman.

FIRST STAR FEATURE GIVEN LEATRICE JOY

Now that Leatrice Joy has been raised to heights of stardom, it is natural that she should have been waiting eagerly to see what her first starring vehicle under her contract with Famous Players-Lasky would be.

And yesterday it was announced by Jesse L. Lasky. The story will be "The Guilty One." It is to be adapted from the stage play by Maisel Morton and Peter Traill, and Anthony Coldeway is now at work writing the screen play. Joseph Henabery will direct, and the picture will be made in the West.

Miss Joy is now completing one of the featured roles in Cecil B. De Mille's current picture, "Triumph," written by Jeanie Macpherson from the story by May Edginton.

A Line From Herbert Heyes

From no less interesting a person than Herbert Heyes, well known to both stage and screen, and who left here with Mme. Nazimova as leading man in her Orpheum act, "Collusion," comes a letter disclosing the fact that he is to remain on the stage for a time at least.

"I am under contract to John Cort to play the star part in a new play, 'Katula,' which is to open here in New York on April 7," writes Heyes. "The play looks like a winner. So it looks as though I am to remain away from the pictures for quite some time.

"No doubt you heard about the objection to 'Collusion' made by certain religious gentlemen here, which resulted in Mme. Nazimova's being paid over $12,000 for a single performance at Keith's Palace Theater.

"We occupied considerable front-page space in the New York dailies at the time of the controversy. We then joined the Grand Guignol Players at the Frolic Theater under Selwyn's management for a limited engagement. The play was very successful with the French players.

"I am now playing the lead in the picture production of the stage success of last season, 'It Is the Law,' a J. Gordon Edwards special. Edwards directed me in all my roles opposite Theda Bara."

Blanche Sweet Forehanded

Being forehanded is a great virtue, Blanche Sweet apparently thinks. At any rate, she is making a collection of horse-shoes as a fad. So far she has only three, a gilded one that hung in her grandmother's parlor in the days when one gilded even the family rolling-pin for parlor decoration purposes, a little one from a Shetland pony which Miss Sweet drove when she was a tiny girl, and a delicate, finely-wrought one cast by a race-horse on the Sheepshead Bay track.

The last is an expensive one. It cost the actress several hundred dollars, for the horse lost the race, though he had led by half a lap until he cast his shoe.

"It won't be long before there are no more horseshoes, and a comprehensive collection of them will be valuable and interesting," Miss Sweet explained.

"I aim to have every variety of horseshoe and as many shoes of interesting history as I can collect."

Here and There

Roy Stewart has been cast for an important role in the picture version of "Sundown."

Violet Schramm has just concluded a contract as leading lady in a series of comedies made by Fred Caldwell, and has accepted a week's engagement at the Raymond Theater in Pasadena, where she will play one of the big roles in "Lombardi, Ltd."

Oversees Amnesia Scenes

If Matt Moore doesn't act like a person afflicted with amnesia, when he appears in "The Breaking Point," the story by Mary Roberts Rinehart, which Famous Players is making, it won't be Paramount's fault. For he was directed in his loss-of-memory scenes by no less eminent an authority and alienist than Dr. Cecil Reynolds, who took a day or two off from his professional duties to see that Moore made his "nut" scenes realistic.

Changes His Nose

If this thing goes on, you soon won't be able to recognize a single friend. I mean this business of nose operations. Now it is Harland Tucker, former leading man at the Morosco, has been and gone and had his handsome acquiline nose made into a more classic feature.

Old Jokes Filmed

Now there'll be no way of escaping the old jokes! For your favorite joke may have celluloid immortality, if you so choose! Also you will be paid for your contributions. And all due to George H. Kern and Grand Asher, the former director, the latter producer.

Mr. Kern has had a novel inspiration in pictures. It is nothing less than the filming of a series of one-reel subjects in the shape of Laugh-o-Graphs, or, in other words, joke pictures put over on the screen by actors.

These subjects, which will be directed by Mr. Kern, formerly with Christie Comedies, and who recently directed "Unfoldment" for Associated Exhibitors, will be gathered from far and near, and the public is invited to send in favorite jokes, with names and addresses attached. Those used will be paid for at the rate of $5 per joke, it is stated.

"Lucia" Offers Much of Beauty in Song Art

Another success was scored yesterday afternoon by the San Carlos Opera Company in their presentation of Donizetti's opera, "Lucia di Lammermoor," at the Philharmonic Auditorium.

Consuelo Escobar's singing was a decidedly artistic achievement. She took the title role, and brought out well both in the singing and the acting, the emotional and dramatic qualities which this difficult part demands.

Her aria, "Then Swift as Thought," was exceedingly sweet and expressive, as was also "Shed Thou One Tear," in which her extraordinary technical facility was again plainly evinced.

Manuel Salazar as Edgar of Ravenswood, made a wonderful impression upon his audience. His voice is rich and powerful, and he displays great emotional intensity, as well as dramatic fervor.

The role of Henry Ashton, Lucia's brother, was taken by Giuseppe Interrante, who depicted well the subtle villainy of this character. His singing is distinguished by smoothness and finish of style and he has especially fine breath control.

The other main parts in the opera were taken by Francesco Curci, who enacted Lord Arthur Buckiaw, and Natale Cervi, whose singing of the role of Raymond was also very effective. Norman was portrayed by Antonio Canova, and Alice by Frances Morosini.

Throughout the performance, the fine ensemble and shading was very noticeable, and in the second act, the tragic sextet was given a superb rendition, the acting as well as the singing reaching a wonderful emotional climax. Mr. Salazar's work here was notably good. This number was repeated in response to a continued ovation by the audience.

In the beginning of the third act, where Raymond announces Lord Arthur's death at the hands of Lucia, the action on the part of the chorus was too much restrained, thereby causing this scene to lose some of its effectiveness.

The orchestra, under Carlo Peroni's baton, furnished fine support, as usual, during the entire opera, and the beautiful harp solo, which introduced the garden scene in the first act, was especially well received.

BENEFIT SHOWING OF "SCARAMOUCHE"

Musically, Los Angeles is one of the prominent cities in the United States. Here the young musician, as well as the finished artist is given opportunities, thanks to the various musical organizations who are sincerely trying to educate the people of our city to the love of good music. Perhaps the greatest efforts along those lines are being made by the American Music Optimists. This group stands for American compositions, and American musicians, and the members, many of whom are known nationally and internationally, are making their greatest effort on behalf of the young artist students.

This effort is materialized in a fund known as the scholarship loan fund and by its means money is lent, at a very low rate of interest, to deserving students. In an effort to replenish this fund the American Music Optimists, through the courtesy of H. B. Wright, managing director of the Criterion Theater, will have a benefit performance tonight at the showing of the Metro feature "Scaramouche," at the Criterion. This benefit is sponsored by such men as John Smallman, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Raymond Harmon, Frederick Herrman, Frank Colby, Charles De Maruuba, and Maestro Guerrieri.

Gaining Attention in Comedy

Marie Mosquini

She has played leads in "Two Wagons—Both Covered," and in "Uncensored Movies," now showing at Millers,' opposite Will Rogers. Both pictures have been unusually popular here.

Ann Luther and Gallagher Decide to Part

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—After a marital cruise which lasted only a trifle more than three months, the good ship Gallagher lost its second mate today when Ann Luther, film star wife of Ed Gallagher, admitted that she and the first half of the Gallagher and Shean team had decided to separate—for the time, at any rate.

Miss Luther this afternoon vigorously denied at first that she and her lately acquired husband were about to travel in different directions. After a hasty consultation with her attorneys, however, she finally admitted that it was all true.

"Ed and I simply decided that we would live apart for the time being," stated the latest Mrs. Gallagher, "and that's honestly all there is to it.

"There's going to be no divorce or anything like that," she continued. "I still love Ed and I believe that he still loves me. But we saw that things were not going along as smoothly as they might, so we decided to separate.

"Mr. Gallagher is going to continue playing on the road and I'm going back into pictures."

Helen T. Gallagher, the actor's first wife, divorced her husband on November 21, 1923.

ARCHAINBAUD WILL DIRECT "FOR SALE"

Corinne Griffith's new First National production will be "For Sale." George Archainbaud has been engaged to direct. Work will begin within two weeks.

Miss Griffith returns to the studio from Hawaii where she spent a brief honeymoon with Walter Morosco, whom she married in San Diego immediately after the completion of "Lilies of the Field."

"For Sale" is an original story by Earl Hudson.

The engagement of Archainbaud brings star and director again together for the first production since "The Common Law" in which Miss Griffith achieved conspicuous commercial and artistic success much of which she personally attributes to Archainbaud's direction.

WITWER STORY HEADS CALIFORNIA PROGRAM

"The Great White Way," the film version of H. C. Witwer's story, "Cain and Mable," will be the feature attraction at the California Theater beginning tomorrow.

Witwer is nationally known for his colorful stories of the prize ring and "The Great White Way" is notable because of its cast which includes Anita Stewart, Oscar Shaw, Tom Lewis and Hal Forde. In addition to these professionals there are to be seen "Tex" Rickard, Irvin S. Cobb, Joe Humphries, Johnny Gallagher and the entire Ziegfeld Follies chorus.

BUSHMAN TO LEAVE FOR EUROPE SOON

Francis X. Bushman will leave Hollywood about the 23rd inst., to join the Goldwyn company in Italy for the filming of "Ben Hur," which will be made at Florence and Rome under the supervision of June Mathis, who adapted Gen. Lew Wallace's famous novel to the screen.

Bushman will leave New York on the Berengaria, and will be accompanied by his sister, Miss Bernadotte Bushman. They plan to visit the Blue Grotto of Capri, Naples and other Mediterranean points of interest before returning to America.

VARIOUS NEW PICTURE PLANS ARE ANNOUNCED

By Edwin Schallert

Word from the East says that Lois Wilson will be absent for some time, as her services have been engaged by Hodkinson, with the permission of Famous Players-Lasky, to appear in a feature called "Another Scandal," that will be directed by E. H. Griffith in Florida. At present, Miss Wilson is playing in "Monsieur Beaucaire," but as soon as she finishes in this she will fill the other engagement.

The cast for "Cytherea," which George Fitzmaurice is filming, is about half-completed. Other players will porbably be engaged within the next few days.

The Hal Roach studios have announced a new production schedule including two feature-length pictures, as well as short comedies. Two newcomers, Glenn Tryon and Blanche Mehaffey, who recently appeared in a rural comedy-drama, called "The Fighting Tylers," which has just been shipped East for national distribution, are starting work on another interesting story.

New Play for Sara

A new play is to be written for Sara Sothern by Channing Pollock. Miss Sothern was formerly a member of the Wilkes Stock Company at the Majestic Theater, but made such a hit during the original presentation of Mr. Pollock's "The Fool" here, that she was engaged for the New York production. She was tremendously successful in her interpretation of the little lame girl during the run of the play there.

Costarring Right Along

Monte Blue and Marie Prevost seem to have formed a regular costarring team. They appeared together in "The Marriage Circle," and later in "The Rose of the Ghetto," which R. William Neill directed for Grand Asher release, and now they have assumed the leads in "Beggars on Horseback," which Bennie Zeidman is producing.

Estelle Taylor in Lead

Estelle Taylor has been signed to play the lead in "The Wise Son," a feature which Max Graf will produce at the Pacific Studios in San Mateo. Miss Taylor will leave for the North in a few days. Her last role was as Mary Queen of Scots, in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall."

"Under the Red Robe" Richly Decorative

The splendors and the glitter of the costume pictures are still with us, and if you are not wearied of the pomp and circumstance that seems to go with the grand procession you will probably voice your interest in "Under the Red Robe," which opened last night at Grauman's Rialto Theater. It is yet another contribution to the dazzling decorativeness of the film spectacle, and while it echoes any number of stories that have gone before, there is in the romantic adventure that forms the plot a good share of reliable entertainment value.

The picture introduces two people who are well known on the stage, but who, at least in one instance, have never been seen before on the screen. John Charles Thomas makes his debut in the heroic role, and Robert B. Mantell is seen as Cardinal Richelieu which he has oftentimes made noteworthy in the play of that name. Alma Rubens is the feminine lead.

There isn't the least doubt in the world that a perfectly good singer would be lost if Thomas ever went into pictures permanently, and I cannot imagine that the films would greatly benefit thereby. His acting is neatly repressed, but he inclines to a portliness which does not adapt itself to the popular notion of hero types. He is particularly misfit in a part that is supposed to follow the somewhat exhilarating Fairbanks style, such as he has in "Under the Red Robe."

Mantell hardly makes Richelieu as interesting a figure on the screen as on the stage, though he does bring an ennobling tradition to the portrayal. He figures to an extent in the plot which concerns certain political differences that existed in France during the reign of Louis XIII.

Miss Rubens looks attractive in some of the costumes, but on the whole this could not be described as her sort of role. She does much better in a modern environment.

Mary MacLaren is seen as Anne of Austria, the same that she played in "The Three Musketeers." Genevieve Hamper, William H. Powell, Sydney Herbert, Rose Coghlan, Gustave von Seyffertitz, George Nash, Otto Kruger, Evelyn Gosnell are others in the cast. Alan Crosland directed.

"Under the Red Robe" offers much of lavishness in investiture to attract and though cheaper tricks of comedy and action are not altogether avoided, the story will doubtless have a satisfactory popular appeal.

EX-HEAD OF CAFETERIA ON TRIAL FOR FRAUD

The trial of O. A. Olin, former president of the Union Cafeteria Co-operative, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, began yesterday in Judge Keetch's department of Superior Court. The principal witness against Olin is W. C. Washburn, a cook, who declares he invested $500 in the company headed by Olin after being promised a good position. He said he got the position, but was discharged within a few weeks. The money was not returned to him, however, he stated. Dep. Dist.-Atty. Ryan and Powell are prosecuting the case.

Opening Sale
Ambassador Hotel Tract
At Santa Barbara

On Saturday, Feb. 16th at 9 a.m. one-half of this wonderful park will be open for reservations; On Sunday, Feb. 17th, the 2nd half will follow suit.
This park comprises the thirty-one acres surrounding the Ambassador Hotel, which burned down some time ago.
Milo Potter, over twenty years ago, at an expense of thousands of dollars, laid out this wonderful park, and then built the Potter Hotel on the Burton Mound in the center. He planted palms, rare shrubs and trees and flowers, which he, with the soul of an artist, gathered from all over the world. Winding roads and paths, shady nooks, rose-covered bowers, fountains casting their spray to the breezes, bamboo groves, flowering plants, these he built, even as an artist would paint a picture of his heart's desire.

I well remember the first day I spent in California; it was twenty years ago; I got off the Pullman and walked into the Potter Hotel grounds; I had never seen anything as beautiful before. It was afternoon; I looked inland at the mountains, bathed in purple and gold and rose, with their turrets and domes outlined against the painted sky; here and there nestled amongst the hills some dream place; where some man and some woman lived their lives in happiness and joy.

The air was warm but vibrant with life and laden with the sweet odor of flowers and shrubs.

To the south and east, beginning at the borderland of palms, and extending to the rugged Santa Cruz islands lay Santa Barbara Bay asleep in the sun, aglow with all the soft iridescent colors of the rainbow, rolling as gently as a baby's cradle, with a new mother rocking her first born. The line of a poem came to my mind—

"And in the afternoon, I came to a place where it always seemed afternoon."

Well, time swept on in its never ending flight; I visited many lands and saw many far-famed beautiful places, but deep down in my heart the charm of Santa Barbara, and its surroundings, its atmosphere, its climate, its flowers, its beauty loving people, its protected bay held first place. By and by the hotel burned and one day, two months ago, H. H. Cotton, a friend of mine, told me that the "old Potter Hotel Park" was for sale and asked me to run up and look it over. No need for me to look it over; I know every shrub, every tree, every path in the Park; I wandered about the grounds, and gazed on the sea and the mountains and the islands rimming the horizon.

We are reserving for hotel purposes the old site of the Ambassador Hotel; the above drawing was made for us by J. F. Walker, Architect of Santa Barbara, in order to show what can be done with this wonderful oval mound. The hotel site is for sale—not to speculators but only to those who will agree to build a real hostelry.

Mr. H. H. Cotton, Walter Leimert (owner of Bellhurst,) A. C. Blumenthal and myself purchased this 31 acres. Then E. L. Webster, New York Life man, bought a part of my end.

After careful consideration and conscientious study, with the help of the Planning Commission of Santa Barbara, we decided to preserve all the natural beauty of this Park; to lay out home sites, apartment sites, etc., in such a manner that the beauty would all be preserved and retain for hotel purposes the oval mound where the old Hotel stood.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS FREE

We found that it would cost us $100,000 to install paved streets, sidewalks, curb, walks, sewer, water, gas and electricity. (All utilities go in alleys or on the back of lots. All wires in conduits.)

We investigated the price of water front business property adjoining our Park and found that owners had refused $500 per foot.

DEDICATE PARK

We agreed with Santa Barbara to dedicate for Park purposes, an 80-foot strip (bordered with 25-year-old palms) running from the Hotel to the sea.

WE NOW OFFER THE 140 LOTS IN THIS TRACT AT PRICES RANGING FROM

Terms—¼ Cash. Balance 6—12—18 Months

OUR BUSINESS PROPERTY FACING THE OCEAN

$250 Per Foot for Insides
$350 for Double Corners

Terms—¼ Cash. Balance 6—12—18 Months

THERE IS ONLY 964 FEET OF THIS OCEAN FRONTAGE.

Street is already paved; 20-foot sidewalk already in on each side; sea wall in, curb, etc. in. Street car on the ocean side of boulevard

Santa Barbara owners say our prices are too low; that is true, but we are merchants; we figure on making a certain profit; with that we are satisfied and besides we want you, our customers, our friends, to make money. You have purchased many times from me and NO MAN HAS EVER LOST A DOLLAR IN MY OFFICE.

Double bungalows, duplexes, bungalow courts, single residences built on this plat will sell or rent for as much as similar structures in the Wilshire District, and the sites cost about one-fifth as much.

Now, I am anxious for you to drive up to Santa Barbara and see this property. It's just 100 miles. The drive is pleasant—bordering the ocean for a long ways. If you come, myself and son and all our crew will be there to greet you and show you around. You can't miss the place.

Our property is right in front of Santa Barbara, bordered on three sides by the city, with the Pacific Ocean for a front yard.

No reservations made without substantial deposit.

Street improvements without cost to purchaser.

No shrubbery or trees can be removed from the Park.

Hellman Commercial Bank and Trust Company of Los Angeles issue all contracts and deeds.

Building restrictions on business frontage must conform to Spanish type with arcade and 15-foot walk under same.

All apartments, bungalows, bungalow courts, duplexes, etc., must conform to general scheme of beauty.

This property is the finest parcel I have ever seen platted; the supply is limited; come at once and make your selection. I am not only sure that every customer will make a substantial profit, but I am also sure that when you secure a homesite there you just won't want to sell.

Now, don't delay; don't hesitate. This property is all I've told and a hundred times more. Come up and see it.

Ham Cotton said to me last Sunday: "Ole, this is the finest subdivision I have ever seen." My wife said: "It's lovely here, isn't it?" You'll say the same.

Signed

OLE HANSON.

GOOD NEWS IN A DRY YEAR.
It's back to the farm with me, as there are no more dry years. The clouds that have darkened the farmer's blue sky are gone and he is now eating grass from the fat of the land and growing up his family in a wholesome way. Some folks like city walls, office desks, stuffy streets and traffic jams. I do not. I feel a sort of kinship to the toy out-doors, if you love the whiff of new turned earth, the fragrance of blue bloom of smokeless skies, if you like good things to eat, health, good friends, assurance of success, happiness, and independence—then Santa Barbara is the place for you. Come over and see the Alfalfa Ranch. I have been on the job with the ranchers and see the size of the checks that they are getting every two weeks for their products. Our farmers have an irrigation when they want it, no matter whether it rains or not.

GOOD NEWS IN A DRY YEAR.
It's back to the farm with me, as there are no more dry years. The clouds that have darkened the farmer's blue sky are gone and he is now eating grass from the fat of the land and growing up his family in a wholesome way. Some folks like city walls, office desks, stuffy streets and traffic jams. I do not. I feel a sort of kinship to the toy out-doors, if you love the whiff of new turned earth, the fragrance of blue bloom of smokeless skies, if you like good things to eat, health, good friends, assurance of success, happiness, and independence—then Santa Barbara is the place for you. Come over and see the Alfalfa Ranch. I have been on the job with the ranchers and see the size of the checks that they are getting every two weeks for their products. Our farmers have an irrigation when they want it, no matter whether it rains or not.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
Coast and Geodetic Survey

Tides, Los Angeles Harbor

Note—The following tabulation of the tides is compiled from the Pacific Coast Tide Tables of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. The tides are arranged in the order of their occurrence, beginning with the first tide after midnight in the left-hand column. There are usually four tides, two high and two low, each day; but occasionally what would be the fourth tide occurs after midnight and thus becomes the first tide of the next day. The columns of heights give the elevation of each tide above the plane of reference of the Coast and Geodetic Survey chart soundings, except where the numbers are preceded by the minus sign, or dash, when the heights are below the plane. The tabulations are furnished by the Field Station of the Survey, Customs House, San Francisco, Cal.

Sunrise and sunset are computed for Los Angeles Harbor. Moonrise and moonset for Los Angeles.
